SYDNEY, SATURDAY, JANUARY 30, 1915.

26 PAGES.

SUMMARY.

It is reported that the German battle-cruisers Seydlitz and Derfflinger got home little more than afloat.

Narratives of survivors from the Blucher show that the British broadsides made the ship reel.

Guns were torn from their settings, and whole gun crews were hurled to destruction. Men were swept from the deck like flies.

Shells burst in the interior of the vessel in a halo of flame.

Those in authority lost their heads, their nerves being unable to stand the strain.

The light-cruiser Arethusa finished the Blucher with a couple of torpedoes.

The Germans on Monday attempted to pierce the Allies' line, and capture Bethune.

The Emperor watched the preparations on Saturday, and inspected the German positions at La Bassee.

The attack was supported by heavy artillery and an armoured train, which fired 20 shells into Bethune.

The Germans planned to draw the Allies towards Festubert by a vigorous attack, while two infantry columns made a turning movement.

The Allies were aware of the plan, and the German infantry advancing in close formation received a murderous fire.

The Germans were caught between the English artillery in front and the French artillery on the flank, and were mown down.

A Paris communique states that the total German losses on Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday exceeded 20,000.

The enemy made a great effort on the Emperor's birthday, but it was a good day for the Allies.

Attacks were repulsed along the whole front, and all the Allies' attacks resulted in progress.

The latest communique says that the fighting consists chiefly of artillery duels, the situation being unchanged.

A small force of the enemy entered Givenchy. The British fired from windows, and wounded many. The rest surrendered.

After the battles in Belgian Luxemburg in August, several small French detachments were unable to rejoin their corps.

They carried on guerilla warfare in the dense woods for four months, and ambushed passing Germans.

One force of 450 ultimately passed the German lines, and rejoined the French in the Argonne.

Other bands still continue their guerilla warfare.

The civilian population has quitted Thann, in Alsace. The town is on fire, owing to the German bombardment.

The crew of the Zeppelin which was brought down by the forts at Libau in the Baltic are to be treated as criminals.

They will be court-martialled for murder or attempted murder in attacking an undefended place.

An influential Kurdish Sheikh, Shah Madmoof, has joined the Russians.

He states that the Turks massacred almost the entire Armenian population in the Alashkert Valley.

New orders have been issued relative to alien enemies and naturalised subjects of enemy origin.

The State Parliament sat last night. The Superannuation Bill was introduced and read the first time.

The basis of contributions and pensions is the same as was provided in the bill of 1913.

Mr. Fisher left Wellington last evening for Sydney. He expresses a high opinion of New Zealand.

Mr. Massey stated in an interview that he had not the slightest doubt that reciprocity could be arranged.

The Federal estimates provide for the spending of £250,000 this year in New South Wales, exclusive of the Federal capital.

Owing to the war and the slackness of trade nearly 10,000 people have left Broken Hill.

The Necessary Commodities Control Commission was asked yesterday to grant permission to increase the price of oatmeal.

A deputation urged the Acting Prime Minister to assist in preventing enemy subjects from exporting wool to Germany.

It was declared that German buyers could get into touch with their houses by sending communications through America.

Mr. Hughes replied that the Government would do its utmost to discourage German competition.

The Minister for Defence referred yesterday to the expansion of rifle clubs in New South Wales.

He said that he should be glad to see the same enthusiasm in the other States.

A number of pastoralists gave evidence before the Necessary Commodities Commission as to the causes of meat being dear.

Among the causes given were the drought, higher wages, increased taxation, shortage of trucks, and extra cost of handling.

The Balmain New Ferry Company has decided to reduce the number of trips on certain services.

Efforts are to be made to share the work among the whole of the hands while the reduced services are maintained.

The University Senate proposes to institute a Walter and Eliza Hall travelling medical fellowship.

The beer strike at Kurri Kurri has ended. The hotel-keepers gave in. They announced that the price of pints would in future be 3d.

Deputations, however, intimated that unless the hotels agreed to give half a pint for 1½d the boycott would continue.

The licensees declared that they would fight vigorously against the latest demand.

The drought in New Zealand has broken, and heavy rain is falling.

Mr. D. Hall speaks enthusiastically of the result of the reafforestation efforts by prison labour in New Zealand.

The South Coast miners have declared their intention not to work with non-unionists after this week.

The owners will probably challenge the action of the men.

The exports of coal from Newcastle maintained a fair level during the week, the total being 73,182 tons.

A series of grass fires occurred in the Neotsfield district, resulting in considerable losses.

Two men were killed by a boiler explosion at the Tasmanian Fertilising Company's works at Risdon, near Hobart.

Seventy-five per cent. of the members of the Carpenters' Union in Western Australia are out of work.

The Labour Federation has urged the Minister for Home Affairs to give preference to unionists on Public works.

The cricket match between Victoria and Queensland was commenced at Brisbane yesterday. Scores: Queensland 89, Victoria 179.

In the match Victoria v Tasmania, played at Melbourne, the Tasmanians were disposed of for 48. Victoria lost eight wickets for 300.

The real estate market was quiet during the week. The indoor sales were fairly well attended.

Business was animated on the Sydney Stock Exchange. Many sales were effected, prices generally showing an upward tendency.

A more active market ruled in the mining section, as improved business was recorded, and values were firm.

The proclaimed prices for flour, bran, and pollard were unchanged yesterday.

At Darling Harbour 663 tons of wheat and 155 tons of flour were manifested to arrive.

A strong market was in evidence at the auction sale of tea. Competition was keen.

Prices generally were a farthing, and in some cases a halfpenny, above those of the previous auction.

There was a good inquiry for butter at 123s per cwt. Cheese was weaker.

The first of the new season's Clarence River maize sold readily at 5s a bushel.

Forecast.—Still hot and sultry in northern districts, with some scattered thunderstorms; elsewhere fine, with moderate temperatures and S.E. winds.

FARMER'S 9 TO 10 SALE

DON'T MISS THIS, THE FINAL OPPORTUNITY OF FARMER'S 9 TO 10 SALE, WHICH CLOSES POSITIVELY AT 10 O'CLOCK.

ABSOLUTE FINAL CLEARANCE OF SEASONABLE MODELS IN THE COSTUME DEPT.

AFTER THE 9 TO 10 SALE
THIS SATURDAY MORNING,

Quantities of Summer Costumes and Dresses will be laid out on Tables in our Costume Showroom for this last swift, decisive distribution, and will be sacrificed this morning, after the 9 to 10 Sale, at

HALF THE MARKED PRICES.

To let such an opportunity pass by would be to ignore the greatest economy event of the season. The prices at which these Costumes are marked already show substantial end-of-season reductions, and when it is remembered that we are sacrificing them at Half the Reduced Prices—well, further comment is needless. We quote examples:—

STANDARD OIL ENGINES,
MARINE, STATIONARY, HOISTING,
OPERATING ON BENZINE OR KEROSENE.

The prestige of these famous Engines is ever increasing, and we are continually receiving orders, many of them being repeat orders, from all parts of the Commonwealth and South Sea islands. These Engines are built for hard work, and the construction is so simple, and the working parts so easily accessible, that the merest novice has no difficulty in obtaining every satisfaction from the running of the Engines. The fittings on the Marine Patterns are nickelplated.

CHEAPER FUEL FOR OIL ENGINES.

In response to many suggestions that we should provide a cheaper fuel for "Standard" and other Benzine Oil Engines, we have pleasure to intimate that we have made arrangements for supplying a high-grade Special Engine Distillate in any quantity, at prices which will greatly reduce the running cost of all Benzine Oil Engines. Prices and further information from

WAUGH and JOSEPHSON,
Goulburn and Brisbane streets, Sydney.

AT THE FRONT.

Where Reliability must be the First Consideration, a Launch fitted with 18-h.p. NIAGARA MOTOR has been selected by the Government to accompany the First Expeditionary Force. This speaks volumes.

SKANDIA. SKANDIA. SKANDIA.
The successful CRUDE or KEROSENE OIL ENGINE.

As a comparison of the cost of running with other Engines, the SKANDIA ENGINE installed in the Schooner ALCAIRO, which supplanted a benzine engine of equal power, shows a saving of 5/ per hour on 8 hours per day, this is equal to £14 per week, and £728 for 12 months, practically double the cost of Engine.

Manufactured in from 5 to 600 b.h.p., with special advantages, suitable for every kind of marine craft and cargo winches.

Also for stationary work, pumping, electric lighting, farm machinery, hoists, mining, and industrial sets.

Fuel used costs 6d per gallon.

Intending purchasers before deciding on another engine should look further into the merits of the SKANDIA, as it will do for them what it is doing for others. A better investment never known.

Write to-day for particulars, or, better still, call and have a demonstration.

DON'T GO ROWING, GO FERROWING with a FERRO Rowboat Motor.

This Motor justly deserves your confidence. Clamp a FERRO on your Rowboat or Skiff, and travel from 7 to 9 miles an hour. It takes less than one minute to attach or detach it.

The following advantages over other Rowboat Motors will at once show the vast superiority of the FERRO:—

1. BOSCH Waterproof High-tension Reversible Magneto, or with Waterproof Battery Ignition.
2. BOSCH Waterproof and Shock-proof Spark Plug.
3. Kingston Float Feed Carburettor.
4. Priming Cup in Cylinder.
5. Drain Cock in Crank Case.
6. Removable Bearings.
7. Mechanically Perfect in Design and Balance.
8. Muffler, water-cooled.
9. Steers with both Propeller and Rudder.
10. Propeller is adjustable.
11. Baffle Stern protects propeller.
12. Motor is Reversible.
13. Price very reasonable.

And, above all, FERRO quality. IT IS 2½ H.P.

AMUSEMENTS.

JUST A SUGGESTION—

The crowds are as dense nightly at

THE WHITE CITY,
THE WHITE CITY,
THE WHITE CITY,

that friends
are apt to lose one another and not meet again during the evening.

THE WHITE CITY
THE WHITE CITY
THE WHITE CITY

is quite big enough to get lost in;
so, before leaving the plateau to enter Fairyland proper, just whisper to "him" or "her,"

ACTORS' DAY. ACTORS' DAY.

FEBRUARY 6,
WHITE CITY, FEBRUARY 6.

Sir RONALD MUNRO FERGUSON and Lady HELEN FERGUSON are the Patrons. Sir GERALD STRICKLAND, the State Governor, will be present.

The day of days in the theatrical year, when all the members of the profession in Sydney will be throwing themselves heart and soul into the work of helping the funds of the ACTORS' ASSOCIATION of AUSTRALASIA.

ALL THE FUN OF THE FAIR.

Every Star will be busy at stall or booth. Mr. FRED. NIBLO will have his squad of freaks in parade. Miss DOROTHY BRUNTON will have a platoon of fair young amazons from the "Girl on the Film" in her train, helping the good cause. Miss ETHEL DANE will lead the Palace Theatre Company to the front at the Midget Theatre. Mr. JULIUS KNIGHT, Miss IRENE BROWNE, and the Scarlet Pimpernels will show how to outwit the Germans. Miss JOSEPHINE COHAN will charge as much as she can. Miss DAISY JEROME will help to lighten things up at her stall. Mr. MAX MALINI, the great conjurer, will illustrate how the KAISER juggles with battalions.

THE ONLY THING WANTED

Is the Public. You are one of the public. See that you are there.

Lady helpers are still needed. Lady Surfers and Divers wanted for Cavill's Carnival on Actors' Day.

Mr. WALTER BENTLEY, at 205 Culwulla-chambers, will be glad to hear from helpers.

WRINKLES of worry turned to lines of laughter at "High Jinks" Next Saturday.

Sydney, 23rd December, [illegible]
George-street North.

INCOME TAX.

"INCOME TAX (MANAGEMENT) ACT, 1912," AND "INCOME TAX MANAGEMENT (AMENDMENT) ACT, 1914."

NOTICE is hereby given, under section [illegible] of the "Income Tax (Management) Act, 1912," that Returns of Income received during the year 1914 for the purposes of the assessment of Income Tax are required to be furnished to the Commissioners of Taxation, at their Office, George-street North, Sydney, on or before the tenth (10th) day of February, 1915, and all persons who are in receipt of income, and all persons liable under the provisions of the above Acts in any representative capacity to furnish returns for the purposes aforesaid, are hereby informed that the prescribed Forms of Returns are now available, and (except those for Companies) may be obtained on application at any Post-office, Police Office, Customhouse, Railway Station, and the Office of any Clerk of Petty Sessions in New South Wales, Stamp Duties Office, Phillip-street, Sydney, or at the Office of the Department of Taxation, George-street North, Sydney.

Forms for Companies can be obtained on application at the Stamp Duties Office, Phillip-street, Sydney, or at the Taxation Office, George-street North, Sydney.

All persons carrying on any business, including grazing or farming of every description (whether the land used in this connection be Crown lease or freehold), trade, or profession on their own account, or who are in receipt of income from rents of property, or salary or wages, are required to furnish Income Returns irrespective of the amount of their income.

It should be noted that taxpayers who neglect their obligation in this respect are liable to a maximum penalty of £100, and no taxpayer will be relieved from liability to the penalty by reason only that a notice to furnish the return may not have been received by him, or that the prescribed form may not have been delivered to him.

All employers of labour are required to furnish to the Commissioners the name, occupation, and address of each and every employee, together with the amount of the salary or wages, bonuses or commissions, paid during the year 1914.

Special attention is called to the fact that owing to recent legislation income derived from any gains or profits accruing to any taxpayer on the sale by him during the year of income of any estate or interest in land, including a lease of land and including the goodwill of any business carried on on the land where such estate or interest was bought by him, or the land was leased to him during such year, or the four years next prior thereto; or of shares in any company bought by him during such year, or the two years next prior thereto; or any other personal property of what kind soever, and of the value of fifty pounds or upwards, bought by him during such year, where the buying or selling of such estate or interest, or of such shares or property, or the leasing of the land was not in the course of the business of the taxpayer, shall be deemed to be income derived during the year of income, from a source in the State, and is NOW LIABLE TO TAX.

All owners of taxable lands in the Western Division of New South Wales subject to mortgage should furnish particulars of every such mortgage, in order that they may derive the benefit of any deduction to which they may be entitled in respect of the interest on the mortgage of their lands, including improvements thereon.

Forms of the prescribed Return (Form E) may be obtained on application at the Office of the Commissioners of Taxation, and should be furnished on or before the tenth day of February, 1915, before mentioned.

J. W. HOLLIMAN, }
R. N. JOHNSON, } Commissioners of Taxation.
W. H. WHIDDON, }

N.B.—Particular attention is called to the observations and directions with the Forms of Return.

Office of the Minister of Public Health,

PURE FOOD ACT, 1908.

It is hereby notified for public information that his Excellency the Governor, with the advice of the Executive Council, on the recommendation of the Board of Health, confirmed on appeal by his Honor Judge Murray, a Judge of the District Court of the Metropolitan District, holden at Sydney, has, under the provisions of the "Pure Food Act, 1908," prohibited after the 28th February, 1915, the advertising or sale of the treatment of the "Ladies College of Health," and of the drugs used in connection with such treatment.

NOTICE OF PROPOSED ALTERATION OF THE RIDING DIVISIONS OF THE SUTHERLAND SHIRE.

In pursuance of the provisions of the "Local Government Act, 1906," and the Acts amending the same: Notice is hereby given that it is proposed to alter the Division into Ridings of the Sutherland Shire, so that the boundaries of the respective Ridings shall be as in the Schedule to a notice of the proposed alteration of Riding Divisions published in the Government Gazette of January 29, 1915, No. 8, Folio 263.

The effect of such proposed alteration, if carried out, will be to cancel the existing Riding divisions of the Shire, and substitute the following:—

The area north of National Park, and lying between Woolooware-road and Sylvania-road, together with the waters of Port Hacking and George's River adjoining, will be comprised within Riding "A"; the area north of National Park and east of Woolooware-road and Burraneer Bay, together with the waters of Port Hacking and George's River adjoining, will be comprised in Riding "B"; the remainder of the Shire, including National Park as proclaimed on April 16, 1886, will be comprised within Riding "C."

The Council or fifty electors of the Shire may, within one month after the date of this notice, make written representations to the Minister on the question as to whether the division into ridings of the said Sutherland Shire shall be altered as in the Schedule to the Notice in the Government Gazette referred to, or in such other manner as may be considered advisable.

THE RIGHT TYRES FOR ROUGH ROADS,

PALMER CORD TYRES.
PALMER CORD TYRES.

The expense of country touring will be lessened—and the pleasures increased—if your Car rides on Palmer Cord Tyres.

They do not generate internal friction, and by reason of their unique construction, they resist strain, heat, and moisture.

There is absolutely no canvas contained in them—the foundation being of "airless" cords impregnated with rubber.

Let us send you the Palmer Tyre Book—it gives all the details of construction.

WON THE RACE.

Admitted one of the most severe motor car races ever held in the world took place in South America recently. It started from Monte Video, and ran to Salto and return—1200 MILES OF CATTLE TRACKS, DESERT, AND SCRUB AND SWAMP—1200 miles of country that no ordinary motor car can travel—to prove the terrible conditions of the course ONLY 3 CARS FINISHED OUT OF 18 ENTERED. Experts said that the car to win the race must be the best machine made for rough, hard work. The winners were

"OAKLANDS" FIRST AND SECOND.

This proves to you that for Australian roads and conditions, where often and often cars are subjected to the most severe and racking strains and stresses, there is no better car than the little 20-h.p. medium-weight, medium-priced "Oakland" (a duplicate of the winner)—a car that for power, strength, comfort, simplicity, and satisfaction none can better—a handsome, silent, luxurious car with the most perfect electric self-starting and lighting system in use (the famous "Delco")—a car you should investigate before you're too late to secure one, as the supply is limited.

THE "OVERLAND."

The Overland broke the record from Adelaide to Broken Hill, 325 miles, time 9 hours 48 minutes, averaging over 33 miles an hour, beating previous record by 4 hours 7 minutes, and putting up a better average by 10 miles an hour. Roads in bad condition, mere tracks in part, and sandy at that. Between 70 and 80 gates had to be opened.

THE BEST BY TEST.

This is a remarkable performance, but a better indication of Overland quality are the hundreds of satisfied owners in every part of the State. The Overland is in its glory on the rough roads.

ONE OWNER'S REPORT:—2½ years in constant use.
Total Repair Bill, £3 10s.

Another owner reports 30,000 miles run, and not one new part required.

WHEN BETTER CARS ARE MADE — BUICK — WILL BUILD THEM.

PROOF BY ACTUAL USE.

Nearly three years ago Mr. H. J. Varcoe started a hiring business in Coonamble with two well-known makes of cars. The business grew with the district, and he required a third, and so bought a Buick. He has since sold the business, and started in Gilgandra with another Buick.

Two years ago Mr. Chas. Maunder started a similar business in Quirindi with an old 1909 warrior of a Buick and another make of second-hand car, and soon after added a new car of another make. Last week he required a fourth car, and his experience of the past made him buy another Buick.

THE WHOLE WORLD WONDERS HOW THE BUICK CAN GIVE THE FEATURES AND QUALITY OF HIGHER-PRICED CARS AT THE BUICK PRICE, AND THE WHOLE WORLD IS AVAILING ITSELF OF THE VALUE GIVEN.

PROOF.

During July, August, September, and October the factory produced 10,922 more cars than the corresponding period of 1913, and up to the middle of November was 10,000 cars in arrears of delivery.

(Published in the "Automobile," December 3rd, 1914.)

PRICES.

Complete with spare tyre, tube, and rim, Hood, Screen, Curtains, Dust Envelope, Bosch Magneto, Zenith Carburetter, 2 Acetylene Lamps, Generator, 3 Oil Lamps, and all Tools.

£375 TOURING CAR (from stock), 815 x 105 Tyres.
£315 ROADSTER (to arrive), with 810 x 90 Tyres.

With the Delco Electric Starter, Lighting, and Ignition, Marvel Carburetter, and balance of equipment as above.

£385 TOURING CAR (to arrive), 815 x 105 (Tyres).
£340 ROADSTER, with 815 x 105 Tyres (to arrive).

The Buick is the lowest-priced Car made with the Delco system, and is the only system fitted by such good makers as the Cadillac, Hudson, Oldsmobile, Carter Car, Cole, Republic, and many others.

THE LATEST "RUDGE MULTI" MODELS.

Experience has proved that for satisfaction in workmanship and efficiency on the road Rudge-Multi Models are unequalled. Built by the best British experts, these Models embrace the very latest improvements, and embody features that place them "right at the front."

3½-H.P. SINGLE-CYLINDER (499 c.c.), 85 m/m x 88 m/m.
5-6 H.P. (750 c.c.), 85 m/m x 132 m/m.

The latter model is ideal for side-car work, being fitted with powerful long stroke engine and extra heavy tyres and rims for Australian roads. It is easy to handle and control, and all parts being easily accessible it can be kept in perfect order. The Rudge Multi Gear allows 20 variations of speed, and possesses great advantages over other variable gears.

HOUSES AND LAND FOR SALE.

HABERFIELD GARDEN SUBURB.

HABERFIELD,
THE PLACE OF BEAUTIFUL HOMES.

HABERFIELD,
admittedly one of the most healthy districts around Sydney, and although within half an hour's walk by tram, or train to Summer Hill, of the G.P.O., has a climate equal to that of Springwood, on the Mountains.

THIS IS NO IDLE BOAST,

AND CAN BE SUBSTANTIATED UPON INQUIRY from any of the numerous and well-known residents of the district.

You will notice by the daily papers that Cottage building, to a very large extent, has been curtailed. We are pleased to say that this is not the case as far as Haberfield is concerned. We are still going strong, and finish cottages every week. At the present time we have the to offer of anyone in the State.

As an example of a type, we would call your attention to a very artistic Cottage, built of Brick on Concrete Foundation, all Cavity Walls, best Red Bricks, Tuckpointed in front, in order to improve the appearance, pebble dash stucco is introduced. The Entrance Porch is made quite a feature of the Cottage, and is arched over from door. Tesselated Pavement to the floor.

The Entrance is a Lobby, which can be used as a Smokeroom is desired. This is a plain [illegible] Tuckpointed, with Bracket Shelf [illegible] imitation beams on the ceiling. Handsome [illegible] Dining-room, which is nearly 20 feet long [illegible] Ceiling, parquet design, with Stencilled Friezes [illegible] Picture Rail. Beautiful Art Mantel. There are [illegible] rooms, all nicely finished and tiled. Linen Press, [illegible] room, tiled floor, Porcelain Bath, Lavatory Basin, [illegible] every possible comfort.

The Kitchen, which is well finished, can be used as a Breakfast Room, if so desired; the Laundry being big enough and so arranged to carry gas stove, dresser, and table, etc. At the rear is a enclosed Sleeping-out Verandah, or it could be turned into a living room. This is about 12 feet wide and about 30 feet long.

The whole property is most complete in all directions, and beyond doubt is one of the best of its class, now being offered to the public.

THE PRICE OF A COTTAGE OF THIS TYPE IS £800.

Our Terms, as is generally known, range with a Deposit from £50 upwards, and the instalments can be 25s to 30s per week, including interest.

THE TITLE IS TORRENS, and you have the protection of our building covenants, which prevents anything but buildings of a good character being erected in the neighbourhood, nothing objectionable can be introduced at Haberfield.

For further information please call at any of the Offices.

PUNCHBOWL.

MAYVILLE ESTATE, a superb Poultry and Fruit Farm Estate, only 12 minutes' walk of Punchbowl railway station. Good, well-grassed, sloping land—cleared, charming surroundings. Blocks from an acre to an acre and a half (adjoining blocks can be secured if larger area is desired), and big value at from £70 an acre.

FAIRFIELD.

PRAIRIEWOOD PARK ESTATE is 3 miles from station, and 18 miles rail to Sydney—a short journey. Fruitgrowing is one of the mainstays of the district. The Estate will be included in the Warragamba Irrigation Scheme. Nice-sized Blocks, from 5 to 12 acres, at £11/15/ an acre.

WENTWORTHVILLE.

WENTWORTHVILLE FARMS, whereon is our POULTRY EXPERIMENTAL FARM. This fine Estate is beautifully grassed. On the Sydney to Penrith line, within a mile of two railway stations, and under 80 minutes' run of the city. GRAND BLOCKS—1 to 14 acres, or more —from £20 an acre.

BANKSTOWN.

GREENACRE PARK EXTENSION has the advantage of being between Bankstown and Punchbowl Stations, and only a short distance from either. It runs right back to Liverpool-road—every lot is about an acre in extent, fronts a well-made road, and the soil is great. Lots from about an acre upwards at £37/10/ acre each.

GREENACRE EXTENSION ESTATE, SECOND SUBDIVISION, centrally situated, high and healthy, at the crown of popular and progressive Bankstown. Every inch of it is worth the money, and you ought to secure some of it, either for Home Sites, Poultry, or Orchard, or an Investment. Within easy distance of Bankstown Stores, School, Churches, etc. Blocks from ½-acre upwards, at £40.

BLACKTOWN.

FLUSHCOMBE FARMLETS, magnificent country, rich soil, undulating, inviting sweep of well-grassed land, not half an hour's walk of Blacktown Railway Station. Post Office, Stores, Public School, and not an hour's run of the city. Blocks from 1 to 4 Acres or more, from £20 per acre. Local Agent, Mr. S. T. Booth, Blacktown.

BUNGARIBEE FARMS, under an hour from Sydney, and ten minutes from two stations. The Estate is close to the famous Minchinbury Vineyards, and consists of similar soil. Well-watered Blocks, from 11 to 18 acres each, from £17/10/ per acre. Local Agent, Mr. S. T. Booth, Blacktown.

WYEE.

WYEE FARMS ESTATE.—Excellent soil with permanent water supply. Two miles from Wyee Station, on the Sydney-Newcastle line, and three and a half hours' run of Sydney, and one and a quarter hour's run of Newcastle. Eight farms ranging from 35¼ acres to nearly 44 acres each. Grand value for Fruit Farms, from £3/17/6 an acre. EASY TERMS. TORRENS TITLE.

GLEN INNES.

FURRACABAD FARMS ESTATE, a magnificent property, famous for its rich soil and exceptional fertility. Ideal for General Agriculture, Mixed Farming, Dairying, and Grazing. The Estate is within a radius of 3½ to 7 miles of Glen Innes, a prosperous township of over 5000 population, with Superior Public School, and close to Railway. The Farms range in area from 58 acres to 606 acres—all improved, fenced, cleared, and cultivated. Farmers' Co-operative Butter and Bacon Factories and every facility of a large and growing township. Any amount of water—no droughts. This is undoubtedly the BIGGEST BARGAIN in Farm Lands—from £5/10/ an acre.

EASY TERMS—10 per cent. deposit, balance in instalments of 10 p.c., payable on the 31st March annually. The instalments include principal and interest.

LIVERPOOL (or via INGLEBURN).—

ROSSMORE FARMS ESTATE.
On the Bringelly-road, 10 miles from Liverpool Station, with which it is connected by a daily coach service. The property is well grassed, undulating land, having a gentle slope, which ensures good drainage; partly cleared. Public School, Church, and Stores on the Estate. One of the best mixed farming, fruit, poultry, and dairying properties. Blocks from nine acres upwards (adjoining blocks to form larger areas can be secured), and splendid value from £6/10/ per acre.

CECIL PARK FARMS ESTATE.

The Sydney Water Supply canal runs through a portion of this Estate, which will appeal to the farmer seeking substantial value. The few blocks remaining are not one whit inferior to those already sold, so that the price asked is particularly low. There are two blocks together, comprising over forty-nine acres (one over twenty-one and half acres, and another over twenty-seven acres, respectively), grand value at only £8 per acre. Two other blocks (one of thirteen and a half, and the other over fourteen acres), £7 per acre.

RABY ACRES ESTATE.

This fine Estate aggregates a total of over 1000 acres of choice undulating well-grassed land, having a decidedly attractive, park-like aspect, with some very valuable timber on most of the blocks. It is situated close to the City Water Supply Canal, and supplies by syphon can be arranged for. Bounded and subdivided by well-made roads (Bringelly, Cowpasture, Rickard, and Eastwood roads), the property is but eight miles from Liverpool, six miles from Narellan, and under four miles of Ingleburn Station, on the Sydney, Liverpool, and Campbelltown line, with a good train service. The areas of the several blocks range from ten acres to over thirty-three acres, large areas being easily obtainable by taking one or more adjoining blocks. POST OFFICE, PUBLIC SCHOOL, and STORES are only about a mile from the Estate. Wonderfully good value at from £5/10/ per acre.

EASTWOOD FARMS ESTATE.

Close by the Raby Acres Estate, and runs back from the Eastwood-road to South Creek, and within easy walking distance of Post Office, Public School, and Stores. It is similar in situation and character to Raby, and the blocks range from over seven and a half acres to over thirty acres—totalling altogether nearly 400 acres of splendid soil. (One Block of over seventeen acres has a W.B. Cottage erected on it, to be sold, as a Poultry Farm, and cheap at £275; only 10 per cent. deposit, and £1 a week, which includes interest.) This is also a grand opportunity, at from £7/10/ per acre.

INTENDING BUYERS ARE URGED TO CALL BEFORE PURCHASING ELSEWHERE. THE ABOVE ARE BUT A FEW OF OUR FARMING ESTATES—ANY OF WHICH CAN BE HAD ON OUR EASY TERMS.

ALL POULTRY FOODS ARE DEAR EXCEPT

The too liberal use of Corn, however, will cause over fatness. To counteract this tendency use 20 per cent of EGGLO in the morning mash. Egglo is a perfect meal, guaranteed to be Wholesome, Palatable, and Digestible. Used as directed it will give a properly balanced ration.
Egglo in the ration will cost an extra 1½d per 10 per day; but for that extra 1½d you get a balanced ration which means:—
Better Egg Production,
Less Food Consumed,
Less waste through the feeding of foods with an excess of any one element.
Buy only in original packages.
Sold in 6d and 1/ bags, 28 and 56 lb Bags and Sacks.

FIFTH PRIZE	CASH	£5 0 0

Conditions and Rules of this Competition :-

(1) This competition is for the benefit of the general public only, and no trader of any description is allowed to enter.

(2) Prizes will be awarded to those who send into Lipton, Ltd., 414 Kent-street, Sydney, on or before 31st July, 1915, the greatest value represented by Lipton wrappers. Those who buy Lipton's Tea in tins may send us their grocer's receipts showing purchases, and these will be accepted. If you buy the higher-priced teas, such as 1/9 and 2/, the value of your wrappers or tins will mount up quicker and increase your chances of winning one of the big cash prizes.

(3) If preferred, competitors may send, instead of the whole of each wrapper, the panel containing the elephant which is on the front of each packet.

(4) All wrappers or elephant panels, or grocers' receipts, must reach us on or before 31st July, 1915. Any sent in after that date will be disqualified. This is done in fairness to all competitors.

Thomas A. Miller, Esq., J.P., has kindly consented to be the judge of this competition, and his decision shall be final.

DRINK BRITISH TEA!

Even if you do not drink Lipton's Tea, then, for the sake of "doing a bit" for the Empire, insist on being supplied with British tea—Indian and Ceylon—one or both.

Don't buy a packet of tea that does not state the nature of the contents on its wrapper.

Lipton's Tea comes from India and Ceylon. We are owners of thousands of acres of the finest tea-growing land in the world, and supply our tea direct from the tea-garden to the tea cup.

In all the world there is no better tea than Lipton's. No other tea possesses the Lipton flavour. It is distinctive. It is superbly delicious. It reaches the highest pinnacle of perfection.

THERE IS NOT A GRAIN OF JAVA TEA IN THE LIPTON BLENDS.

Lipton's Red Label Tea	1/3 lb.
Lipton's Yellow Label Tea	1/6 lb.
Lipton's Green Label Tea	1/9 lb.

LIFE IN LONDON AND THEREABOUT.

(CHRONICLED BY SIR HENRY LUCY.)

The German Fleet.—Scrapped Ships.—Sir John Lubbock.—His Breakfasts.

WESTMINSTER, Dec. 19.

Failure of the German army to carry out the long-studied plan of conquest—smashing France with swift blow, turning about to invade Russia before she was mobolised, and at comparative leisure swallowing the sweetest plum of all—the destruction of England as a great Power—has for the Kaiser been a bitter awakening from a cherished dream. I fancy that even more bitter must be his reflections on the collapse of his navy. The establishment of Germany as nominally the greatest military Power on the Continent was the work of others. Its rise and progress as a naval power equipped to meet England in conflict for dominion of the sea was his own idea, its apparent accomplishment his chiefest pride. For it he has poured out like water the money of the taxpayer, involving England, and, in lesser degree, France, in the same waste of hard-earned money.

At the end of four months he finds the battleships from which so much was hoped ingloriously bottled up under shelter of land fortresses, a few stray ships fortuitously in distant seas when war broke out being remorselessly rounded up and sunk by British cruisers. The inevitable consequence of this impotence is that one by one German colonies, acquisition of which, by fair means or foul, was another of the Kaiser's pursuits, have been restored to their original holders. Worse still, as hampering home industries and social life, Germany's mercantile marine is rotting in foreign ports, afraid to put to sea on pain of capture, whilst British trade, shepherded by an invincible all-pervading fleet, is rapidly regaining its normal condition of bustling prosperity, momentarily interrupted by the declaration of war.

Marshal Von der Goltz, bearer of autograph letters from the Kaiser, designed to drag Bulgaria and another Balkan State into the vortex of ruin closing round him, has a delightful way of explaining the situation in the North Sea. "We are persuaded," he assured an interviewer at Sofia, "that the British Fleet has reason for avoiding an encounter with ours." There certainly is a reason which sufficiently explains the long delay in opening fire. The Germans won't come out to fight. The next best thing from the Allies' point of view is that they should be held in a condition which makes them as a factor in the war of as little avail as if they were so many herring-boats. But the situation must be more intensely humiliating to the Kaiser, than if in a moment of desperation his fleet came out into the open sea, and after a fight, that would certainly be gallant, yielded to the superiority of ships and guns.

Six years ago, steaming up the Kyles of Bute on a yachting trip, on the west coast of Scotland, we came upon a remarkable sight. In the sublit waterway, sentinelled by the everlasting hills, was a squadron of battleships, a dozen in all, anchored at short distances in a straight line. Not a sound came from the vessels. Not a single figure walked the decks. As the yacht passed at half-speed it was easy to read on the stern of the deserted ships names familiar in the Navy List, some of historic renown. These were a portion of the fleet "scrapped" by the iron hand of "Jack" Fisher, at that time performing his first term of service as First Sea Lord, a position to which he by unprecedented fortune has, amid national applause, just returned.

When ten years ago Admiral Fisher took the tiller at the Admiralty there was still in vogue the consecrated practice of retaining on the Navy List the names of old ships whose build and armament were hopelessly out of date. Everyone concerned knew that in actual warfare they would be absolutely of no use. But with their fine high-sounding names, the complement of their crews, and the number of their guns tabulated, they made a fine show, comforting the House of Commons and the taxpayer with the assurance that, as in Nelson's time, England still ruled the waves. The new Sea Lord, constitutionally hostile to make-believe in any form, would have none of this. He instituted a rigid inquiry into the condition and the capacity of all ships of a certain age. If they were found useless, creating a feeling of unfounded confidence in the strength of the navy, he just had them struck off the list. "Scrapping" it was called in the hot controversy that arose in Parliamentary and in naval circles. The effect upon the navy was analogous with that of a tree subjected to severe pruning at the hands of a skilful gardener. Reduced in bulk, tree and navy are by the process equally revived and strengthened. It would have been a poor look out for the country if in the present hour of peril some of the hulks Admiral Fisher sent to the scrap heap half a dozen years ago, still figuring on the active list, came across German warships, whether in the Atlantic or the Pacific.

Lord Avebury, better known as Sir John Lubbock, the story of whose blameless, useful life is told in two portly volumes just published by Macmillan, was one of two contemporaries who for a while doggedly preserved the custom established by Sam Rogers of entertaining their friends at breakfast. Mr. Gladstone's parties in Dowling-street characteristically partook of business engagements, their recurrence being utilised for the convenience of conversation with persons concerned in current politics. Lubbock kept closer to the pattern set by the poet-banker, his guests being chiefly literary or scientific men. It must be confessed that they were rather dismal entertainments, a result directly and entirely due to the uncanny hour of day at which they took place. Mr. Chamberlain, invited on one occasion, made answer that he would be delighted to meet and converse with Sir John and his guests, "but," he added, "the hour proposed for the festivity should, I think, be consecrated by civilised humanity to sleep."

Sir John honoured me by invitation through a succession of years. I finally excused myself on the score, accurately set forth, that the engagement trenched upon the custom imposed upon me at the time of doing a day's work before I went down to the House of Commons in the afternoon to begin another. I remember one wintry morning in March, having got up in the dead of the night to keep an engagement in Berkeley-square at 9.30, catching a glimpse of Andrew Lang at the further end of the Square. He seemed to be performing a new morning game. As he passed the houses on the way down he walked languidly up the steps, read the number on the door, and descended the steps with increasing dejection in face and figure. "I know what is the matter with you, my dear Lang," I said, coming up with him. "You are going to breakfast with Sir John Lubbock." "Yes, I am," he moaned, "and what's almost worse, I've forgotten the number of his house."

On this matter of detail I was able to be of service. But he did not during the visit recover from the shock. Rarely, if ever, disposed to beam with joy in general company, he sat through breakfast the picture of silent woe, more than usually bored to death with a world in which other people presumed to live. I remember this particular breakfast for another reason. I had the good fortune to find myself seated next to Dr. Schliemann revisiting London after fresh achievement in his life work of digging up ancient cities in Greece. His conversation was conducted in slightly broken English, but its interest was vivid.

SLOT METERS AS SAVINGS BANKS.

From Wigan (the "Gas World" states) it is reported that during the past municipal year 2,246,365 pennies were collected from the slot gas meter coin boxes, as against 2,519,630 during the preceding year. In addition, the following coins, checks, etc., were deposited in the boxes, which were thus made use of as savings banks: 19 sovereigns, 21 half-sovereigns, 20 half-crowns, 726 florins, 548 shillings, 534 sixpences, 849 threepenny pieces, 3411 halfpennies, and 836 base coins and checks. Where coins other than pennies were found which would work the meters, pennies were demanded and given in each case.

WAR TIME IN THEATRELAND.

LONDON'S STRUGGLING STAGE.

(BY ARTHUR MASON.)

LONDON, Dec. 13.

On the whole, London's stage is struggling gamely and not unsuccessfully through these parlous times. In Paris, the theatre, for a time wholly blotted out, is just beginning to raise its head again. But even that recent reopening of the State theatres, the Comedie Francaise and the Opera Comique, is as yet only a trembling experiment, which meets with very hesitant response from private managers. All over the once gay city, indeed, theatrical interests, chary of offering themselves as hostages to fortune, still keep their doors fast shut. They have reason. From Paris a very considerable proportion of the audiences, and quite a number of the actors, have vanished within the nebulous hazard of the fighting line. Paris will get back her theatres, but only slowly—not merely for that reason of the absence of her men, but also because in Paris, if anywhere, this time of strain and anxiety, and these thousands of houses of mourning, are no fit frame for the art of the stage.

All the same, I should be glad to have been a witness of that noble scene at the reopening of the Comedie Francaise last week. The drama chosen was the classic "Horace" of Corneille, and we are told that when the old Horatius, answering the question of the Roman matron—"Que voulez-vous qu'il fit contre trois?"—replied in the great words, "Qu'il mourut!" a flame of emotion swept across the vast audience, and the theatre thundered with applause. That was a fine moment, and there was another when Mme. Bartet recited a poem written for the occasion by the famous Belgian, Verhaeren, entitled "La Fiere Belgique." The emotion of the great actress was such that she could hardly speak the lines, while most of her hearers were in tears. But at the end, the words "All honour to our country and our King!" drew the audience to its feet, shouting "Bravo!" and the Marseillaise was sung with indescribable enthusiasm.

We cannot equal that in London. For one thing, we have no parallel with the Comedie Francaise. For another thing, we are not so closely at touch with the terror and the pride of war as are the French nation, and we are not living at their level of emotional strain. Our theatres have not at any time been closed entirely. They were down to very few in August, when the customary doldrums of the summer vacation found them exposed, in addition, to the upheaval of a country called suddenly to arms. Since then they have come to more stable balance. London's population is vast in number, and not all of it is directly involved even in a world war. Moreover, the stage gradually reshaped itself as a convenient escape from thought of all the ghastliness abroad in Europe. Thus there were always audiences for this, and sometimes for that. One by one our theatres opened Sometimes they closed again, hurriedly. Sometimes they survived the strain of half-houses and depleted box-offices. Sometimes they were crowded night after night, and despite the horror across the water. It is understood that the actors' salaries are now on a war-time basis. It is believed, also, that some 600 actors are under arms. But this week in London 20 theatres and all the great variety houses are open.

Apart from the more subtle influence of universal unrest, which was bound to bear disastrously upon the theatre world, two facts in particular have helped towards a situation that at one time threatened to annihilate London theatreland. In the first place, West End London, which provides every night thousands of wealthy theatre-goers, and fills thousands of high-priced seats, has been hard hit by the war. They say nothing about it, but the fearful casualty lists say much—the officers' casualty lists in particular. There is much sorrow in the West End of London, and far-spread diminution of the theatre-going mood. In the second place, the darkening of London by night and the early closing of so much of London's night life have had substantial effect upon the movement of the suburban populations. It is a long way to the West End from some of the suburbs, and it is not pleasant to go groping one's way home in almost black darkness. Suburbia, in consequence, postpones its weekly visit to the theatre and stays at its fireside.

Nevertheless things go on. They have gone on largely by means of revivals. A few new autumn plays were tried, but one by one they went toppling. Then, at theatre after theatre, revivals of old plays filled up the gaps. Never was seen such a resuscitation of long-buried amusement. Some of it proved unable to bear the strain of new life; some of it was discovered as still vigorous. "Drake," at His Majesty's, had, of course, a special appeal, and incidentally it enabled Tree to give quite a lot of money to the patriotic funds. "Miss Hook of Holland" and "His House in Order" are just ending after quite fair runs. "Our Boys," no less, is being enjoyed by audiences at the Vaudeville, who must almost be the grandchildren of those who first saw it there.

"The Little Minister" has done excellently well at the Duke of York's, and at the Apollo Mr. Hawtrey, after failing with the new "Seven Keys to Baldpate," and also with his once-successful "Never Say Die," played another well-thumbed card from his old pack—"A Message from Mars"—and is still in the running. "Henry IV.," which followed "Drake" at His Majesty's, did not go beyond a few weeks, though it was a beautiful production—and what a lord of words was this Shakespeare! Mr. Matheson Lang was well praised for his Hotspur, whom he presented with much fire—and a stutter. He was a fine figure in the shining armour of that day, but otherwise, and especially from the elocutionary point of view, seemed to me to lack the real Shakespearean distinction. However, it was a good company, and Tree, who had been an impossible Sir Francis Drake, was a wholly ideal Falstaff. But that is Tree's way. Still, "Henry IV." failed—but never mind, next week we are to have "Henry V." at the Shaftesbury, and "A Midsummer Night's Dream," with others to follow, at the Coronet.

"The Flag Lieutenant" is also with us again, and appropriately but one of the most successful of our revivals is undoubtedly the splendid production of "The Country Girl" at Daly's with sumptuous staging, and with the still-unrivalled musical-comedy star, Miss Gertie Millar, to sing and frolic as charmingly as ever in new and fascinating songs and dances. It is possible, too, that there never has been a funnier Barry than his almost namesake, the inimitable W. H. Berry, London's reigning low comedian; nor has the Indian Princess and "Under the Deodar" ever had a finer exponent than Miss Clara Butterworth, until now a well-known London concert singer, and one of the few singers who are also artists. "The Country Girl" is on all counts a delightful business.

Of the new plays, "Peg o' My Heart," a pretty American comedy, has succeeded by grace of Miss Laurette Taylor, whose charming Peg is a household word across the Atlantic. I have not seen "The Dynasts," Mr Granville Barker's brave attempt to reproduce scenes from Thomas Hardy's long, long poem, but "Outcast," the one survival of our autumn wreckage, has filled Wyndham's for many weeks. It is a beautifully written comedy-drama, by Hubert Henry Davies, who once wrote "The Mollusc," after seeing which I felt that anything Hubert Henry Davies might write would be worth going many miles to see. "Outcast," moreover, gives occasion for a superb performance by Gerald du Maurier, a polished and temperamental artist, and unquestionably one of the finest comedy actors of the day.

Next week Drury Lane re-opens with its now twice-revived "Sleeping Beauty," "Peter Pan" and "The Cockyolly Bird" come once more to delight the children, and some of their elders, and at other places other pantomimes and other Christmas theatrical activity. On the whole, therefore, London's theatreland, and London's night-time gaiety, though they may be shadowed, are certainly not eclipsed.

THE FOREIGN LEGION.

It is the boast of the Foreign Legion, which has distinguished itself in the fighting at Soissons (states a London journal), that it can provide men from its own ranks to meet any contingency. Its commander once said his men were capable not only of winning a war, but of writing its history On one occasion when a new barracks was being erected the Legion ranks supplied half a dozen qualified architects; and time and again on the battlefield when the call has been for doctors, Legionnaires have stepped forward and acknowledged their medical qualifications. Once, says tradition, when no padre was available to conduct a burial, the commandant appealed to the ranks. A man stepped out and saluted. He had been a bishop.

PLIGHT OF CAMBRIDGE.

AN OLD UNIVERSITY TOWN IN WAR TIME.

(BY AMY E. MACK.)

I.

There is no place in England which has felt the effect of the war more than the University town of Cambridge. The academic calm of ages has been shattered, and the habits and customs of centuries have been brushed aside as if they were the upstarts of yesterday. The university life has been shaken to its foundations, and such a readjustment has been going on as has probably never been known in this seat of learning before. In the first place, the university has suffered financially to a tremendous degree. The academic year began with less than half the usual number of men in college, and during this the first term hundreds more have gone to join the forces, while next term will without doubt see a yet further decrease. The natural result has been an enormous reduction in fees and a great monetary loss to the colleges. This has reacted upon all connected with the colleges; tutors who receive a percentage of the fees, have had their incomes reduced by half, or even more; coaches, who in normal times have hundreds of pupils, now have two or three, and in some instances have been obliged to give up altogether, and seek another means of livelihood; the numbers of bedders and gyps and other servants in the colleges have not only been largely reduced, but those who are there are deprived of the tips and perquisites which add so materially to their earnings in ordinary years. Then the colleges depend for a large part of their incomes upon the rents of the houses they own in the town, and many of these houses are now vacant, while many more will become so during next term; for large numbers are rented by lodging-house keepers, and the plight of the lodging-house keeper is one of the most difficult problems in Cambridge to-day.

In normal years, when all the men are up, there is not nearly enough room in college for them all, and a great number have to live in lodgings in the town. In order to meet this need there are hundreds of licensed lodging-houses, containing from two to six sets of rooms, and as a rule all these sets are taken, and the lodging-house keeper makes a very fair income. She is under the patronage and care of the authorities, each college having a certain number of houses to which it sends students. She has to obey the rules of the college, and a certain amount of responsibility is placed on her shoulders with regard to the coming in and going out of the students at night, and the eye of authority is on her to see that she does not cheat or neglect the men under her roof. In fact, she is a very necessary and important part of undergraduate life in normal years. But with the departure of the undergraduate her usefulness ceases; there is no need of her services, no place for her. There are now in the town 1400 sets of rooms unoccupied, and the most familiar sight in Cambridge to-day is the sign in the windows, "Lodgings for Next Term." It is in next term that the pinch will be felt. This term most of the rooms were taken before the war broke out, and in nearly every case the rent has been paid for the term, either by the men themselves or by the colleges. But next term there will be no rent coming in for the rooms, and hundreds of women will be deprived of their sole source of income. They cannot even sell their furniture and take up something else, for nobody is buying furniture in Cambridge just now. They are just patiently waiting and trusting with an implicit trust that is almost pathetic in the colleges to solve their problem. And the colleges are giving all their consideration to the solution of this problem, which is doubly hard because many of the houses belong to them, and while they cannot expect the women to pay the rent under the present conditions, by absolving them from it they are depriving themselves of a large part of their income, and of the means to help those dependent on them. And so the thing works in a pernicious circle, and it is a circle which will need all Cambridge's famous mathematical power to square.

Fortunately all the people in the town are not suffering as badly as the poor lodging-house keepers, and the town is not feeling the absence of the undergraduates as keenly as the university. For the undergraduate has been largely replaced by the soldier, the gown so evident as a rule has given way to the military uniform, and instead of the sombre black of the academicals about the narrow streets, there are the khaki of the Territorials, the navy blue of Kitchener's army, and the grey of the Officers' Training Corps. The men of the O.T.C. are all members of the university, men who are preparing themselves for commissions in the future, and so inevitably has the war penetrated into every circle of life that the grey uniform is allowed to stand as academicals. And at any gathering of university men it is quite usual to see dozens of the younger men in the familiar grey uniform; while many of the dons are in the khaki of the Army Medical Corps. Many of the professors, men learned in medicine and surgery, are giving their services to the wounded at the big hospital, which is so large a feature in Cambridge life at present that it has a chapter to itself, and so deeply has the war entered into the academic life that there is a "Dons' Corps," to which belong those men who are not able to train as officers but who wish to be ready to take their part in home defence should the need occur. And three or four days a week these older men, professors, lecturers, and fellows, go out to the drilling grounds to take their share in the training.

But, in addition to the University soldiers, there are thousands of other soldiers in the town, and it is to them that the townspeople owe the fact that they are not feeling the loss of the undergraduates as they feared they would. Some trades, of course, are hard hit by the absence of the rich and extravagant undergrad.; but the purveyor of necessities finds no falling-off in his business. At the beginning of the war a whole division was quartered here, and the tradespeople made a fine harvest. Now there are some thousands of Kitchener's new army quartered close by, and in the town itself there are two big detachments of Territorials. These men mean trade to the town; the tailors have put aside their gowns and riding breeches for military uniforms and knitted gloves and vests, an so can keep their workrooms busy. At Histon, a village just outside Cambridge, there is one of the largest jam factories in the kingdom, and the demand for jam and marmalade for the troops has not only kept the factory working full time, but has given employment to large numbers of extra hands. Poultry farmers have found a ready sale for their eggs and chickens to the hospital; bakers, butchers, and vegetable dealers are all busy, helping to feed the men in the barracks, and the errand boy is greatly in demand.

But perhaps the most striking feature in Cambridge to-day is the presence of the Belgians. Both Oxford and Cambridge offered hospitality to the Belgian Universities as soon as the need arose; here in Cambridge we have professors and students from Louvain, Liege, Ghent, and Brussels, carrying on their classes in rooms set aside for them; in nearly every don's house are to be found the Belgian University men and their families, enjoying the hospitality and sharing the home life of their hosts—and perhaps that sharing of the home life is by no means the least part of the kindness which has been showered on the refugees. But all the Belgians here are not University people, there are peasants and artisans and tradespeople amongst them, and it must be confessed that it is a little more difficult to extend the hospitality of one's own roof to these than to the others. Still, Cambridge realises her responsibility in the matter, and recognises that England is paying a debt to Belgium, not conferring charity on her, and so all refugees are treated with equal kindness and consideration.

It is not always easy to keep these bigger issues in view when one is irritated and tried by trifles, so it is advisable that any one in Australia who contemplates offering a home to a Belgian family should look at the matter from all sides first, and not be led away by sentiment or a generous impulse. Some people here realised at the beginning that the Belgians would be happier in their own houses, and rented places for them where they could live in their own way. This has proved in most cases the wisest plan, for it gives the women some occupation, the thing most to be desired at a time of stress like this. Indeed, the committee that has the management of Belgian affairs in hand has been making every effort to provide the strangers with work, especially remunerative work, which will enable them to contribute to their own support. Classes have been organised for the teaching of French by the Belgians; several people have engaged them as governesses; in some shops, such as hairdresser's, they have taken the place of the assistants who have gone to the war, and now a depot has been opened for selling lace, needlework, wood-carving, and paintings by Belgian craftsmen and women—the proceeds of all these activities go to the common fund, and so help all; and it is hoped that as time goes on the refugees will settle down as a self-supporting and active part of the community.

There are other refugees in Cambridge besides the Belgians, and they are birds. The noise of battle has disturbed the poor birds of the continent, and the meadows round Cambridge are thronged by thousands of lapwings which have sought a sanctuary in the friendly isle. It is a lovely sight on these grey winter days to see the flocks of black and white birds rising from the green grass and flying over the leafless elms and poplars, but their plaintive voices sound as if they, too, were not quite happy in their exile.

A FORCE IN RESERVE.

N.R.'S IN CAMP.

Lord Roberts shortly after the South African war founded, for purposes of home defence, a corps of ex-service men, under the name of the "National Reserve." Some ten years later—i.e., when reviewed two years ago by his Majesty the King, this force numbered 30,000 men in London alone. Some of their number, we hear, have recently been doing active home defence work.

In Great Britain it has long been realised what this body of hardy and experienced volunteers stands for in her midst. Their enthusiasm is great, and it spread over the Empire till in August, 1912, ex-service men in New South Wales, fired by their example, formed themselves into a body upon the same lines, under the command of Colonel Charles Cox, C.B., V.D., now commissioned in Egypt.

Originally the corps was formed of ex-service men exclusively, but now its ranks are open to all men of good character and passable physique who wish for strict military training and are willing to pay their own way, and sacrifice time and pleasures for their country's welfare. Their leaders are men who have seen active service, and among their ranks is many an enthusiast who cannot leave wife and family or home responsibilities to enlist, but, nevertheless, instead of laying down his arms, wishes to do his share (and perhaps his brother's, too) by keeping in training for "home defence," or in preparing others to take their places on the foreign field.

The National Reserve is, in brief, a body of men who want to serve their country, and, being in earnest, have found a way. They are not a part of our regular military, though they are officially recognised as a "rifle club," and are the only corps in which members are trained strictly to military regulations and in which instruction can be received in mounted drill and manoeuvres, infantry work, engineering, army service, army medical work, and army nursing.

They have already prepared over 250 men for the expeditionary forces that we have sent away, and, as a result of this training, more than 70 per cent. of those men obtained non-commissioned rank.

It is difficult to keep tally of their numbers, as the reservists are called upon as need arises, and those who are left are for the most part busy city men who must fit military duties into their free hours and holiday time; still, it is perhaps safe to say that there are among the National Reservists in Sydney at least 500 men who have gained experience in action, and are giving this experience, with their time and energy, loyally and freely to train others in readiness for their country's call.

A visit to the N.R.'s eight days' voluntary camp at Mona Vale gives one a very instructive glimpse into military life and methods on the field, and brings home to one with a new force the great necessity for perfect training, unflinching discipline, and heroic self-sacrifice on the part of our men, if those who are left, and those who return may still hope to hold with honour their heritage of British freedom and British right.

Captain Forsythe-Scheffin (acting O.C.) selected for his men an ideal camping ground on the much-guarded road to Barranjoey. It is the quiet little bay of Mona Vale (Manx named), one of the few spots between Narrabeen and Newport that have not yet been desecrated by Saturday and Sunday holiday-makers. There, in a dip between the road and the beach, part of Richards' Beach Estate, lent by the owner, some 20 tents were pitched one night, and instantly, it seemed, a military settlement of 200 men sprang into being—mounted infantry under Lieutenants P. Renton and P. V. Ryan; infantry under Captain Pertersen (Highlanders) and Lieutenant Westbrook (regulars); engineers under Lieutenants Fisher and Sullivan; Army Medical Corps under Lieutenant Corcoran, Intelligence under Lieutenant Arthur, and so on.

With the promptness of men of action, the British flag was hoisted, then the site surveyed by Government Surveyor Wilson; a spring was discovered (perhaps by the Intelligence Department) in a neighbouring stream, and the water tested by the medical officer, and divided, in descending sections, into drinking, horses', and washing "basins," each marked with its particular flag—white, blue, and red respectively. A bridge over the stream was constructed for easy transit from motor to camp; entrenchments were dug for rifle practice "under cover," a heliograph station established, electric light installed, and telephone connection with Victoria Barracks made. Not one of the 200 was idle, as regular instruction continued while various sections were at work upon invention and construction.

The site offered raw material, but the conveniences, or, rather, necessities, of camp-life had to be improvised at command by volunteers; and never was a bare stretch of land more quickly made habitable. An adjacent clump of trees was encircled by ropes for the horses; shallow trenches were dug to serve as fireplaces, iron bars laid across the trench to hold pots and pans, and a camp oven constructed with bricks, commandeered from their only neighbour, "Thorberg." A few large frying-pans were obtained locally, but the engineers had to be requisitioned again to rapidly construct other cooking vessels out of petrol tins—deep vessels for water, shallow ones for baking, etc.; and no jagged bits and no rough edges were seen—all was finished in neat military style.

At 6 p.m. work ceases, at 10 all lights are extinguished, and between these hours no one passes the boundaries of the reserve without the commanding officer's sanction. From 6 to 8, day and night, sentries pace the ground, and challenge whoever comes within their range. The clink of arms, the military halt, and the whizz of an occasional bullet may be heard with treble clearness in the dead of night by late-comers or unwary travellers on the high road above the camp: it is then, or when mingled with interrupted dreams and imaginings, that the deep significance of the military atmosphere is felt.

Soon after dawn the bugle sounds, and a squad is marched by the sergeant-major for an early dip in the surf or new council baths. Ten men in their folding "mat beds" (the officers have collapsible stretchers) sleep feet to feet in a bell tent, guns reared up against the central pole.

Cooks (chosen daily from volunteers) are busy early, preparing breakfast—tea and bread, chops and chip potatoes—and just before 8 some 18 or 20 orderlies draw up in line by the trench fire to receive rations for their respective tents. Each man provides himself with an enamelled cup and plate, a knife and fork and two spoons; but the orderly must carry an improvised bucket and dish for his tent's supply. The dole is given in strict military fashion, while an officer on duty stands by. A stated ration is allowed, but those whose appetites exceed the limit may buy, at Sydney prices, from the camp store. All served, the orderlies march in line to the centre of the square, when the band (drum and bugles and rare Scotch pipes) strikes up, and a halt is called.

Buckets and dishes are dropped while officers and men stand "at reverence" to hear the National Anthem. In this simple setting the anthem is heroic—more "heroic" than on grander occasions. Everything here bears the mark of simplicity that suggests active warfare. The men are in undress uniform; the breakfast already well earned seems forgotten by all, and the attitude of the whole camp is one of grave and earnest meaning. It is a fine touch, a "grand interruption," this early morning introduction of the anthem. There is something Imperial about it, And here is our little Australian corps following Britain's lead, and preparing itself for—whta? Look for a moment at the setting. There, as background, is a typical stretch of Australian coastline, with its beautiful waters dissolving into a blue haze of distance; as foreground a hastily pitched military settlement. And these are our men, typical, too, we venture to hope, who have volunteered to guard that coastline for love and life, if the need come, and who are ready now to face death on the other side to guard it still for their Empire.

The National Anthem is an epic in this setting. It is well for us to see these men, when we think of the great sacrifices that are being made all the world over to-day for our future and the world's peace. It is well to see the earnestness of this volunteer movement, the willingness of its men to learn and to instruct. It is good to see that discipline, so well established among them, of which Colonel Wallack spoke after his review on Tuesday, as the "only foundation on which the success of the army can be built."

It is good to know that Sydney has a body of men practising voluntarily on the lines of the Imperial National Reserve, and to know that it forms a complete unit of nine sections, known to the public under the modest name of a "rifle club."

The army nursing corps (one of its divisions), under W.O. Brain and Matron Thompson, was also present at the camp on Tuesday for Colonel Wallack's review, and observed the same excellent bearing and discipline as other sections. This division has only been attached for the past three or four months, but already numbers 23 nurses, who are taking an "army nursing course," which will extend over 3½ years. Last, but not least, the grand little band of native-born Scotch bagpipers, in gorgeous plaids and sporan, which lends a colour and sound interest to the encampment, gave a picturesque finish to the gravity of the review on Tuesday.

The N.R. Volunteers in Sydney work with the discipline of long-trained men and the enthusiasm of amateurs, and it is said that since the formation of the force there has never yet been a feeling of strained relationship between its officers and men.

HIGH SCHOOLS.

OPENING ON MONDAY.

The Public High Schools will open on Monday, and as a result of the qualifying certificate examination between 2900 and 3000 new secondary pupils will be enrolled.

In order that new pupils may begin work at the high schools on Monday morning, a list has been supplied to the principals of the various high schools showing pupils who may be enrolled at each school pending the issue of the bursary and scholarship list. Boys and girls who have gained the qualifying certificate should therefore apply on Monday morning at the particular school they wish to attend to ascertain if their names are upon the list of pupils allotted to such school. A similar list will be on view at the Education Department, and students can gain the necessary information by inquiring at the Education Department on Monday morning.

In accordance with the practice of the department, new pupils on the North Shore can only be enrolled at the North Sydney High Schools, and pupils beyond Parramatta must attend at Parramatta unless very exceptional circumstances can be shown.

THE A.W.U.

The address of the president of the Australian Workers' Union, Mr. W. G. Spence, M.P., was delivered within closed doors at the opening on Thursday at Macdonell House of the annual session of the conference. The following motion was unanimously carried:—

"This convention tenders its hearty congratulations to the president on his accession to the very important Cabinet rank of Postmaster-General, and we appreciate the wisdom and justice of the Labour members in the Federal Parliament on their recognition of the merit of the president of our union."

CURRENT LITERATURE.

SIR JOHN FRENCH.

It is premature to write the "life" of Sir John French. He is now engaged in living its most important chapter for the benefit of future biographers. But Mr. Cecil Chisholm has felt that we know too little of the man who has shown the world that the British army, though small, is by no means contemptible, and he considers that the occasion warrants an instalment, at least, of a biography. Sir John French is said to fear but one thing, and that is advertisement. The result is that until the South African war few had heard of him, and after the South African war he steadfastly refused to be lionised, and shunned publicity with the same determination which he displayed at Mons. It is not often that a nation is so ignorant about the antecedents of its idol as Britain is in the case of Sir John French. We know the manner of man he is, but we do not know how he came to be that man; Mr. Chisholm tells us.

John Denton Pinkstone French, with so many other great British leaders, belongs to an Irish family. His father was a commander in the Royal Navy; he himself was originally intended for a naval career, and spent four years in the old Britannia as a cadet. But, like another field-marshal to be, Sir Evelyn Wood, the boy was not apparently enamoured of the sea, and he resigned. To enter the sister service he had to stoop to "the back door," in other words, a commission in the militia. It seems rather odd that one of our most brilliant officers had this difficulty to face, and incidentally it is a curious commentary on the system of competitive examinations. However, in those days, Mr. Chisholm tells us, Sir John French did not take his profession very seriously. In 1874 he was gazetted as a subaltern in the 19th Hussars, then known as the "Dumpies" owing to their standard of height having been lowered. One can imagine that Sir John's short stocky figure was not out of keeping with the regimental character suggested by this nickname. He himself at once earned the sobriquet of "Captain Crosstrees," as a result of his being a "retired naval man." To this day among the few remaining brother officers of his youth he is still greeted as "Trees."

At this stage of his career French showed few signs of the brilliant capacity he was afterwards to display. The British army, and particularly its cavalry, still lingered in the traditions of Ouida and John Strange Winter. It was bad form to be too keen on one's work, so Sir John contented himself with performing his routine duties conscientiously, riding to hounds to keep down his weight and reading the campaigns of Napoleon and other books on strategy in an unostentatious and somewhat desultory fashion. He was interested in his profession, but not yet absorbed, and four uneventful years as adjutant to a provincial yeomanry regiment where the work was monotonous and the opportunities almost nil might easily have left another man in that rut of official routine from which it is so difficult to emerge with enthusiasm and powers of initiative unimpaired. French, however, was made of different metal, and when his chance came with the Egyptian campaign of 1884 he was ready to seize it.

"French's luck" is proverbial in the British army, and it is true that he was fortunate in being placed by destiny in positions where reputations were to be made or broken. But for all that he is a man who has had to wait for his opportunities. "He was 32 years of age," says Mr. Chisholm, "before he saw this his first piece of active service. Where Lord Kitchener found or made opportunities for military experience, French was content to wait the turn of events. So it has been all through his life. He has never forestalled destiny; he has simply accepted its call. But when an opportunity presented itself he always seized it, and the Nile expedition was no exception to the rule. Major French, without Staff College training, without the usual diplomas, was to prove himself once and for all a master tactician." In Egypt he gave a foretaste of his quality. He, with his scanty cavalry, spent a substantial part of his time in fighting a continuous rearguard action against overwhelming odds. The experience was arduous, but it stood him in good stead twenty years later.

Major French left the Sudan with the confidence of his seniors and a very definite idea of the function of cavalry in modern warfare. He utterly disassociated himself with its more theatrical aspect, hallowed by the traditions of poets and painters from time immemorial. "My conception of the duties of the mounted arm," he writes a few years later, "is not to cut and to hack and to thrust at your enemy wherever and however he may be found. The real business of cavalry is so to manoeuvre your enemy as to bring him within effective range of the corps artillery of your own side for which a position suitable for battle would previously have been selected." This is exactly what he did with the co-operation of two of his "nurslings," Sir Douglas Haig and Sir Horace Smith Dorrien, a few months ago. But he had to wait a long time before he could put his tactical theories into practice. On the score of his achievements in Egypt he was deputed to reorganise the cavalry in India, and, we are told, he astonished the authorities by the way in which "he conducted troops dispersed over a wide area of ground, allotting to each section its appointed work, and bringing the complete movement to a brilliant conclusion." French was, in fact, the apostle of extended order; in other words, his conception of an army demanded that the humblest Tommy should regard himself not as a mere automaton, but a thinking being in whom confidence is reposed. Sir John French counted upon a strenuous regime of discipline to ensure that the confidence would not be reposed in vain.

At this time in his career, French, according to his colonel, was "always reading books." Perhaps the War Office did not wish to interrupt his studies. At any rate, despite his acknowledged achievements, in 1893 he was retired on half-pay! The spectacle of French despatched into civil obscurity at the ripe age of 41 has its tragic, as well as its comic, side. He went on "reading books" and keeping his weight down by assiduous equitation, and in due course was sent to Aldershot to reorganise the British cavalry. But his light was still hidden beneath the departmental bushel, and when a certain French began to bring off extraordinary coups in the South African war, England wondered who on earth this dashing fellow could be. "Yet," says Mr. Chisholm, "he had already risen to a position analogous to that which General von Bernhardi then occupied in the German army. In any other European country his name would have been a household word."

It was a household word throughout the Empire before the war was over. South Africa, the grave of so many reputations, set the seal on that of French, and it carried him to administrative positions where he could put his theories into practice—with what results we all know. A few years ago the wiseacres in the service clubs used to deplore them. They are all very well in manoeuvres, said these, but when the blank cartridges are filled with shrapnel or bullets, these tactics will prove too expensive. The wiseacres now hide their diminished heads because the feature of French's campaigns in South Africa and on the Continent has been the disproportion of his own losses to those of his enemy.

Mr. Chisholm has a concluding chapter on the famous retreat from Mons, and the catapult-like return to the Yser, which made our allies declare that the mantle of Marlborough had fallen upon Sir John French. However, this is not the time for comparison or appraisement. Sir Evelyn Wood, the veteran Field Marshal, says in the preface: "When, in the earlier part of this war, things were not going well, I was asked to give my opinion of our chances of success. I said that I did not think that our prospects were then bright, but although many men had gone 'hands up' before John French, he would never put up his own, whatever happened." We can safely leave it at that. (Herbert Jenkins.)

NEW AMERICANS.

Mr. Stephen Graham—who now, by the way, is doing excellent work as a war correspondent on the eastern front—is one of the few Englishmen who have made a first-hand study of the Russian peasant. He has worked with him, lived with him, learned his joys, his sorrows, and his aspirations. He has accompanied him on his great annual pilgrimage to Jerusalem, to worship at the Holy Sepulchre, and last year he accompanied him on another, more secular, pilgrimage, whose events are recorded in "With Poor Immigrants to America." The author attached himself to a party which landed at London, hurried across to Liverpool, and then were merged in the thousands who crowd the steerage of the west-bound ships. On this particular vessel almost every nationality was represented. There were Scandinavians, Dutch, French, Germans, British, Spanish, Italians, a dozen varieties of Slavs, a Turk or two—in fact, all that homogeneous assembly which goes to make this generation of Americans.

However, the author's interest lay most with the Russians on board, for it was they who were making the most adventurous passage. In a fortnight or so they were to be translated not only to a new world but to a new era. Mr. Graham never lets us forget the magnitude of the contrast. "From Russia to America," he writes, "from the most backward to the most forward country in the world, from the place where machinery is merely imported to the place where it is invented; from the land of Tolstoi to the land of Edison; from the most mystical to the most material; from the religion of suffering to the religion of philanthropy. Russia and America are the eastern and western poles of thought. Russia is evolving as the greatest artistic philosophical and mystical nation in the world, and Moscow may be said already to be the literary capital in the world. America is showing itself as the site of the New Jerusalem, the place where a nation is really in earnest in its attempt to realise the great dream of human progress."

To the immigrant the first glimpse of America is at Ellis Island, and there the author formed his impression of America (unaltered by subsequent experiences) as a land whose people are subject to "a mechanical obsession." The way in which he and his fellow-travellers were classified and put into lines at the depot according to sex, nationality, and so forth, was characteristic of the American attitude towards humanity in the mass. "All this ranging and guiding and hurrying and sifting was like nothing so much as the screening of coal in a great breaker tower." The hall of judgment, as he calls it, was crowned with two immense American flags. It was "filled with immigrants in their stalls, a long series of classified third-class men and women. The walls of the hall were booking offices, bank counters, inspectors' tables, stools for statisticians. Up above was a visitor's gallery, where journalists and the curious might promenade and talk about 'the melting pot,' and 'America, the refuge of the oppressed.' Down below, among the clerks' offices, were exits; one gate led to freedom and New York, another to quarantine, a third to the railway ferry, a fourth to the place where undesirable immigrants are imprisoned until there is a ship to take them back to their native land. Somewhere also there was a place where marriages were solemnised. Engaged couples were there made man and wife before landing in New York." This last provision is intended to put a spoke in the wheel of the white-slave trafficker. A small act of courtesy to a helpless fellow-traveller almost involved the author in matrimony. However, he escaped to find fresh evidences of the "mechanical obsession" in other phases of American life. He says that the aim of the authorities is to make everyone a sort of intelligent automaton, while the average American considers that the more he resembles a bit of machinery the better citizen he is. This certainly is not the usual opinion about the Americans, but Mr. Graham finds confirmation of his belief in a thousand and one manifestations. Train passengers, for instance, put their tickets in their hatbands, and sit reading the papers while the conductors check them. Entrance to the trams is mechanical—it is a matter of putting 5 cents in the slot. The elevator man thinks himself a bit of machinery—"he seems to be trained to act mechanically and never to alter the staccato patter that comes from his mouth at each floor. He speaks like a human chronograph." Waiters, shop attendants, barbers, and the like try to behave like mannikins. Even the vocabulary reflects this mechanical attitude. When you meet a friend and bring him along with you, you "collect" him, you "hold down" a bed in the hospital or a job at the works, and you "slip" a six to nil defeat on a rival baseball team.

After shaking the dust of Ellis Island from his feet, Mr. Graham tramped from New York to Chicago, and found much food for thought on the way. He passed through villages, towns, even, where Russian, or Polish, or German, as the case might be, was the only language heard in the streets. These, however, were tenanted by the later arrivals. The Continental immigrant desires nothing better than to be merged in the population, and is never so flattered as when he is taken for a native American. He has the faculty of self assimilation to a wonderful degree. The Swede marries a Bulgarian girl, and their offspring make further ethnological adventures in matrimony. The result is that the American of the next generation is going to be rather an unknown quantity. Mr. Graham wisely refrains from guessing what he is going to be like, but his reflections on the process that he calls "the choir dance of the races" lead him to the conclusion that in consequence of all this admixture the American type will be radically modified, and that in the racial conglomerate evolved the Jewish strain will be an important factor. (Macmillan and Co.)

PRINCESS MARY'S GIFT BOOK.

From Dymock's, Ltd., we have received "Princess Mary's Gift Book," which has been published in aid of the Queen's "Work for women fund." Many well-known writers have contributed to the symposium; indeed, the variety of the contents is so great that the reader would be captious indeed who did not find something to his taste. The contributors include Sir James Barrie, Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, Mr. Rudyard Kipling, "George Birmingham," Hall Caine, to name only a few of them and a feature of the volumne is the admirably executed and reproduced illustrations in colour, for which a number of prominent artists are responsible. Indeed, authors, artists, and publishers alike are to be congratulated on their respective shares in the production, and those who buy it will not only assist a very deserving cause, but will also provide themselves with excellent entertainment. (Hodder and Stoughton—Dymock's.)

WAR BOOKS.

Week by week the presses continue to pour forth a flood of books inspired by the war. Many of these are merely of ephemeral interest, but others again possess permanent value, chief among which is "War and the Empire," by Colonel Hubert Foster, R.E. This is a statement of the strategic principles which should govern the naval and military operations of the Empire in the event of war, and the author has reason to congratulate himself that already circumstances have proved the soundness of his ideas. The book was written before the war broke out, and Colonel Foster has now the satisfaction of knowing that the principles he advocates are those adopted by the Governments of Great Britain and the Dominions, and are, moreover, in the process of justifying themselves when put to the test. Thus the advantages of the concentration of the fleet in the North Sea, the importance of undivided naval control by the Admiralty, the superiority of offensive over passive defence, the fact that "the power of rapidly sending an expedition from the nearest dominion against ports and colonies of foreign nations, is a strategic asset to the Empire, and will prove a more direct protection to the territory and trade of the Dominion undertaking the duty than the best local defence"—all these and other propositions to which Colonel Foster gives his support are no longer mere theories—they have now become proved truths. ((Williams and Norgate.)

Six months ago few Britons had even heard of Heinrich von Treitschke; fewer still boasted any acquaintance with his works. However, Germany has no longer any reason to complain of Britain's neglect of her most popular historian. Amidst the deluge of books inspired by the war hardly a week passes without the appearance of one devoted to his life and teaching, and the latest of these is by Mr. Joseph McCabe. Mr. McCabe describes the man, his ideas, and his influence, and shows how intelligent Germans have been deluded by his hatred of England and by his fanatical dreams of the world-extension of Germany. Mr. McCabe has perhaps little to say that is new; however his comments are shrewd and to the point. In particular he emphasises the vanity of Palmerston's celebrated gibe at Germany as "a nation of —— professors." It is just for this reason that she has become so dangerous, for she lent a willing ear to the academic zealots who inculcated the doctrine of world-dominion or downfall. "This inflated and popular professor," in fact, "did more than any other to inoculate the poison into the veins of the German middle class, and without some knowledge of him one cannot understand how the German civilians were so completely duped by the military caste." (T. Fisher Unwin.)

In "The Kaiser's War," Mr. Austin Harrison also discusses the various influences which have contributed to the intellectual "make up" of modern Germany, and warns us what to expect if she succeeds in impressing her will upon the rest of the world. Here, again, so much has been written about the national state of mind which has been revealed in the inception and conduct of the war that the most ingenious author finds it hard to break new ground. However, Mr. Harrison brings out the lessons of the past in a forcible fashion, and his intimate knowledge of Germany enables him to speak with an authority which is lacking in so many self-styled "publicists" just now. (G. Allen.)

"How Germany Crushed France" is another of the "war of the future" books by Major Adolph Sommerfeld, the destroyer of Termonde. When it appeared in Germany not long ago, it had an enormous vogue, naturally so when we remember that it flattered German ambition to the top of its bent. It has now been translated into English, with a preface by Mr. L. G. Redmond Howard. It differs little from the hundred and one books of a similar character, with the exception that its prophecies have been falsified in a peculiarly complete fashion. France is the aggressor, England remains neutral because she is afraid of risings throughout her colonial Empire; Russia also remains neutral, but is ready to pour troops into India at the first hint of action on the part of Britain. Italy takes up arms with Germany, and invades France from the south. In the end France ceases to exist as an independent nation; her territory is parcelled out between her two adversaries, while as a reward for non-interference, England is given a wedge of country near Calais! And this sort of stuff is provided for the eager consumption of a gullible public, not by an irresponsible Chauvinist or a catch-penny sensation monger, but by a well-known military officer high up in the service. (Everett and Co.).

"First Lessons in War," by Sir Spencer Wilkinson, Michele professor of military history at Oxford, explains the nature and use of modern weapons, the modes of operation of the various arms, their organisation, and their function in warfare. It also describes the conditions of the march and the battle. This book, in fact, gives the reader an idea of the why and wherefore of things, of the broad principles which govern modern strategy, and will be useful not only to officers and men in the service, but also to those who, without being soldiers, are following the course of the war. (Methuen and Co.).

"Under the Kaiser's Thumb" is an account of life in Germany by Miss Irma Caron. The author is an Australian girl who was studying music in Dresden, and though that cosmopolitan city is far less authority-ridden than are many other German towns, Miss Caron was forcibly impressed by the officialism which prevailed. Much of the book relates to the status of the German woman, and Miss Caron finds no difficulty in coming to the conclusion that there are many worse places for those of her sex than Australia. (Renwick, Pride, Nuttall, Pty.).

In "The Silent Baltic" Mr. Marcus Knox records the experiences of an English lady who was on a visit to Neustadt, near Kiel, when the war broke out, and had to remain there for six weeks before she was able to return to England by way of Holland. Fortunately for herself she had a good friend in the local pastor. Beyond having to report herself to the police, and to avoid walking by the sea, she was free to do what she liked, and she had little or nothing to complain of on the score of her treatment. However, naturally, her position was a very uncomfortable one, and the constant reports of German successes did not add to her peace of mind. The people rejoiced enthusiastically over these, but apparently there was always an undercurrent of doubt. Thus, when the annihilation of the French army was announced there was some talk of decorating the town, but the pastor observed that "Birds that sing too early are caught by the cat," and somewhat damped their ardour. (Robert Ashley.)

In "Britain's Record" Mr. E. Keble Chatterton takes certain figures in history each associated with some great national achievement or some great step in national progress, and shows how they have contributed to the present glories of the British Empire. His selection is a catholic one—literature, politics, exploration, invention, medicine, social reform—are all represented, and Mr. Chatterton has been by no means unsuccessful in his ambitious design—"to provide a clear, concise account of the indebtedness of the rest of the world to Britain." (Sedgwick and Jackson).

NEW NOVELS.

If three radiant beings with wings and golden crowns suddenly appeared by the wayfarer and asked his hospitality, he would naturally feel surprised. But Patsy McCann, the strolling tinker, and Mary, his daughter, are Irish, and consequently regard such things in a more matter-of-fact light. They share their humble meal with the three angels, and (thanks largely to Mary's urgency) invite them to join their vagabondage. Their adventures are told in "The Demi-gods," by Mr. James Stephens. The book provides Mr. Stephens with an opportunity in which he revels. It enables him to combine all his resources of Irish idiom, whimsical humour, and fantastical imagination with a criticism of life as it is at present socially organised. The tinker, his daughter, and his ass, accompanied by their celestial visitors, make their way from Kerry to Donegal and back again. They have many adventures on their way, and they meet some queer characters—"full of fun" is Patsy's description of one and all of them. When their purpose is accomplished two of the angels return to their empyrean vaults, but one, the golden-haired Art, elects to remain on earth, to share with the bright-eyed Mary all the sorrow and travail that earthly existence must bring. The book is a thoroughly enjoyable one, although sometimes the angels' homilies become a little tedious. However, without these it would not be easy to follow the allegory which underlies the story. (Macmillan.)

In reading "Blue Water," by Mr. Frederick William Wallace, it is impossible not to be reminded of Kipling's "Captains Courageous." Each book describes the experiences common to the lot of the deep-sea fishermen of America's Atlantic coast. In each we are introduced to the hard-bitten society of the "Bankers," who carry their lives in their hands as an ordinary incident of their trade. In each we are given a picture of work and play aboard these tiny craft, which venture anywhere where a good haul is to be made. However, the resemblance ends with the setting, for, in plot, Mr. Wallace's story owes nothing to Mr. Kipling. It is the record of the successful career of "Shorty" Westhaver, a Nova-Scotian lad, whom generations of seafaring ancestors have left wise beyond his years in sea lore. He starts as spare hand on a fishing smack, and rises to be its skipper, then its owner, and finally blossoms forth as the proprietor of a flourishing fish-drying establishment. But his progress is by no means without its checks. He has to overcome an inherited failing, which loses him his ship and almost his life. He has to learn what it is to be cruelly jilted by the girl he has adored from childhood's days. But he wins through in the end, replaces the faithless Trixie with one more worthy of his devotion, and when we finally take leave of him he would refuse to change places with the king. It is a breezy, wholesome story, full of strenuous adventure, and exciting incident, and though the love passages are not very convincing, the author is thoroughly at home with his fishermen. (Hodder and Stoughton; Angus and Robertson.)

MUSIC AND DRAMA.

It is gratifying to be able to note that a highly satisfactory report and balance-sheet for the year were presented by the committee of the Royal Philharmonic Society on Thursday evening at the annual meeting. There is no doubt, as the committee mentions with justifiable pride, that the operations of the society during the year have been very extensive, and of more than ordinary interest. In the season just closed the society attained its 30th year of active service. As to the musical prospectus for the present year, the programme is quite up to the high standard which the society has fixed for itself. There are to be four subscription concerts, namely, "The Music Makers," by Sir Edward Elgar; "Samson and Delilah" (Saint Saens), and the third and fourth concerts are to be chosen from "The Lay of the Last Minstrel" (Hamish MacCunn), "The Golden Legend" (Sir Arthur Sullivan), and "The Black Knight" (Sir Edward Elgar). The cantata, "The Music Makers," it may be noted, is a new composition, and will be performed for the first time in Australia. "Samson and Delilah" was produced by the society in 1910, and, as the prospectus points out, it has since been made popular by the Madame Melba and Quinlan Opera Companies.

"High Jinks," which is to be staged for the first time in Australia by the J. C. Williamson management on Saturday next, at Her Majesty's, is the light lyric order of entertainment. It was presented over a year ago in New York by Mr. Arthur Hammerstein, son of Mr. Oscar Hammerstein, of grand opera fame, and it had a run lasting right through the summer. As a rule most of the American theatres close during the summer, and it requires a very bright attraction to withstand the hot season; but Mr. Hugh J. Ward found "High Jinks" equal to the test when he was in New York last year. It was one of the few shows running, and as he remarked, "the only musical one at that." In fact, he considers it a very amusing entertainment, farcical, and with ingenious complications. While he was at the theatre he met three Sydney men in the foyer, who spoke of the musical play with enthusiasm. The J. C. Williamson management has secured a cast eminently suited to the piece, and one which, it is believed, will compare favourably with the one Mr. Ward saw at the Lyric Theatre, New York. The fun in "High Jinks" is admittedly evolved from an absurd idea, arising out of the discovery by a Dr. Wayne of a perfume, which, upon being inhaled, bring out a man's social instincts, which, however, have to be more or less restrained, owing to convention. The producer of "High Jinks" is Mr. Harry Burcher, from the London Gaiety Theatre, with Mr. Ward, who is actively interesting himself in the rehearsals.

The fact that quite a large number of the musical public attended the audition held by Miss Ella Caspers at Paling's on Saturday last of candidates for the two scholarships offered by Miss Caspers indicates the interest taken in the vocal competition. The aspiring young singers went, numerically, far beyond what was anticipated; and, as there are more vocalists yet to be heard this afternoon, the "weeding out" process will probably take some time, and involve much discrimination as well. It was apparent at last Saturday's test that some really promising voices had, for want of competent early tuition, been allowed to go astray.

Next Saturday will be "Actors' Day." Annually the members of the profession in Sydney give a day to the Actors' Association of Australasia, whose funds go to the benefit of the less fortunate of the craft, and the event is generally anticipated as a very pleasant reunion. The White City will again be the venue of an entertainment, which will last from 1 to 5 p.m. Mr. Fred. Niblo, Miss Josephine Cohan, Miss Ethel Dane, Miss Dorothy Brunton, and a host of others will have charge of the stalls and side-shows; and, as a number of society ladies are also giving their services in looking after the refreshment rooms, there will be no stint of free and loving service in a worthy cause. All the White City attractions will be open to enhance the success of "the day," and Mr. T. H. Eslick and his staff are throwing themselves with enthusiasm into the work of preparing for the entertainment.

In August last a young Sydney girl, Miss Ara Fitzgerald, made her debut in opera at Volterra, Italy, and scored a remarkable success, singing the part of Violetta in "Traviata" during the month. She was re-engaged to sing Gilda in "Rigoletto" during September, but the war began and practically closed every opera house in Italy. The interest of the event is revived by the presence in Sydney now of Signor Pasquinelli, the impressario of the Teatre Politeama, Volterra, where Miss Fitzgerald made her debut. Volterra is 80 miles from Milan, in the Etruscan country, and is an artistic centre, being the haunt of sculptors and others. The musical taste is so high and the public so critical there that young singers are somewhat frightened of the audiences. Signor Pasquinelli relates some amusing stories of Signorina Ara's debut. The baritone was a failure from the start, and was hissed, and the impressario was in considerable trepidation at the fate of others, the soprano among them, so, he confesses, he had a small army of stage hands ready to lead the applause where necessary, in order to save the situation imperilled by the baritone, and afterwards by the tenor. The services of the mercenaries were rendered unnecessary, however, by the rapid capture of the suffrages of the audience by the young Sydney soprano, who jumped into the hearts of the Italians from the first solo. The baritone and tenor were changed several times during the season, and, as Signor Pasquinelli warmly admits, the season was pulled through by the Sydney girl, whose career, he predicts, ought to be a very successful one.

"The Royal Strollers," a company well known in London, are, we learn, doing excellent business in Adelaide. The combination has been organised by Mr. Sydney James, and is said to consist of eight exceptionally clever artists in the comedy costume line, who give a very bright entertainment. Their stay in Adelaide will extend into March, making the season one of 21 weeks. Messrs. J. and N. Tait have arranged for an eight weeks' professional sojourn in Melbourne at the Auditorium, after which the company is to appear here, with New Zealand to follow. The performance of "The Strollers" is spoken of as unique and novel, as well as versatile.

"Seven Keys to Baldpate," which achieved such a success at the Criterion, will be the opening production of Fred Niblo and Josephine Cohan when they return to the Melbourne Theatre Royal. There is little doubt that George M. Cohan's cleverly-constructed mystery play will hit the public taste in the metropolis of Victoria. Miss Cohan confessed to an interviewer that it was a play for which she held a preference, "because it contains all the elements that go to make a successful farce, and yet contains plenty of dramatic interest and a series of thrilling surprises."

Certain London theatrical managers appear to have achieved a fair amount of success, at any rate up to the middle of December, by treating their patrons to productions bearing on, or incidential to, the war. A casual glance at the "Era" discloses the title of seven plays suggesting an up-to-dateness and enterprise quite refreshing. They are "The Slacker," "The Enemy," "My Friend Thomas Atkins," "Saved by the British," "The Coward," "The Contemptible Little Army," and "The Man Who Stayed at Home."

The controversy which raged somewhat fiercely in London a few years ago as to the authorship of Shakespeare's plays has been revived there in a manner which will strike opponents of spiritualism as amusing, if not amazing. A Mr. Ernest Meads, a well-known reciter and actor, has (says the "Era") irrevocably settled it by the aid of spiritism. In a lecture delivered at the Eustace Miles Restaurant recently Mr. Meads said that some 12 years ago Shakespeare, through a medium, had said that although he had a part in the plays, those parts which had made the name of Shakespeare honoured were written by Francis Bacon, Lord Verulam. This he desired should be generally known, as misplaced praise was distasteful to him and impeded his progress. This confession, made on the earth-plane, was immediately known in the spirit spheres, and came as a thunderclap to those who until that hour had regarded him as their chief, but its genuineness was vouched for by Wycherley, Hawthorne, and Edmund Kean.

A club, all the members of which consist of actors, who, for the last 22 years have been associated with the production of "Charley's Aunt," held its second annual social in London about the middle of last month. The compiler of "Theatrical Notes" for the London "Era," referring to the subject, says: —The bulk of the substantial amount of money already subscribed by members of the "Charley's Aunt" Club has been devoted to the special relief fund for the assistance of artistes suffering from the effects of the war, and the balance is being used in the purchase of materials which the ladies of the club are making into garments for our soldiers and sailors. And this good work the merry old lady from Brazil is still carrying on.

THE CHURCHES.

ANNIVERSARY SUNDAY.

Elaborate preparations are being made for Anniversary Sunday, which is to be celebrated on February 7. As explained by Mr. Sydney George Palmer, hon. secretary of the C.E.M.S., the procession will leave St. Andrew's Cathedral at a quarter to three, and march by way of George-street, Martin-place, Pitt-street, and Bridge-street, to Macquarie-place, where the annual service will, as usual be held. Included in the procession will be the Darlinghurst Band, the band of the 36th Battalion of Senior Cadets, a naval contingent, a troop of boy scouts, and, it is hoped, a company of National Reserves and of the Legion of Frontiersmen.

The heads of all the principal Protestant denominations, are to take part in the service, at which the music will be provided by the New South Wales State Military Band, and a combined choir of about 300 voices. The speakers at the service will be Dr. Wright, Archbishop of Sydney, and Rev. Wentworth Sheilds. The Minister for Public Health, Mr. Fred Flowers, has also been invited to speak.

WAIFS AND STRAYS.

The Bishop of London has signed an urgent and pressing letter of appeal on behalf of the Church of England Waifs and Strays Society, in the course of which he points out that the present disastrous war, and the many demands made upon the public for help in other directions, will undoubtedly affect the society's receipts, while an augumented expenditure gives cause for further anxiety. This society, of which the King and Queen are patrons, is one of the largest organisations of its kind in the United Kingdom, and has now under its care 4520 little ones, while during the course of its operations it has made provision for over 19,300 children.

About 500 of the society's old boys are serving their country in her hour of need. Nine at least have already given their lives, and one has been promoted on the battle-field for gallant service. Fifty old boys are with the First Canadian Contingent, and, as a further proof of the patriotic nature of the society's work, it may be mentioned that nearly 80 motherless and unprotected children, whose parents or guardians are on active service, are now under its care.

Dr. Gilbert White, Bishop of Carpentaria, who has been selected as Bishop of the new diocese of Willochra, in South Australia, is in his 56th year, is a bachelor, and was born in Cape Colony. The celebrated naturalist of Selborne was an ancestor. Bishop White was educated at Orill College, Oxford, where he graduated in 1881, and took his M.A. degree in 1885. Ordained in the Cornish diocese of Truro in 1883, he came to Queensland in 1885, and was vicar of St. Paul's, Charters Towers, for two years, and afterwards rector of St. Thomas' Church, Hughenden. In 1891 he was made Canon of St. James' Cathedral, Townsville, and since 1900 has been Bishop of Carpentaria, Thursday Island being his seat. Dr. Gilbert White is the author of a number of works, including "The Church and Modern Life," "Night and Other Poems," and "The Intellectual Development of the Ministerial Life."

The position of curate at Hurstville, Sydney, vacated by the Rev. J. W. Ferrier, who is going as a missionary to Ceylon, has been accepted by the Rev. Alfred M. Levick, M.A., who will enter upon his new duties on March 1. Mr. Levick has done excellent work for the past two years as curate of St. Mark's, Darling Point, and for the greater part of last year was indeed in sole charge of the parish.

The Rev. Walter Montague Corden, formerly curate of St. Matthew's, Prahran (Vic.), has been inducted as rector of St. Paul's, Narracoorte, South Australia.

The Rev. Carlos Stretch, eldest son of the Bishop of Newcastle, is expected to leave England early in February. He will return to work in the Newcastle diocese.

The Rev. A. W. Kinmount was a passenger for New Zealand by the Moeraki, which left yesterday.

Mr. E. G. Nicholls has been appointed catechist at Smithfield. He was previously catechist at St. Paul's, Burwood.

A recent appointment is that of Canon Goddard, rector of All Saints', Petersham, as Examining Chaplain to the Bishop of Grafton.

An accident which might easily have had the gravest consequences recently befel Archdeacon Luscombe, of Dungog, who was thrown out of a vehicle while driving. Fortunately the Archdeacon escaped without serious injury.

The Rev. H. Walker-Taylor, of Orange, who recently underwent an operation at the Prince Alfred Hospital, Sydney, is progressing favourably towards recovery. He expects to return home within a few days.

Tablets have recently been placed in St. Mark's Church, Darling Point, in memory of Mrs. Stafford and Mrs. Anslow, who had worshipped in that church for many years, and were much esteemed.

The Very Rev. M. J. O'Reilly, president of St Stanislaus' Roman Catholic College, Bathurst, will shortly leave Australia to take up the presidency of St. Vincent's College, Castlenock, Dublin.

Father Hogan left by the Riverina on Thursday on a visit to New Zealand.

Father O'Connell returned to Sydney by the Maheno yesterday from a visit to New Zealand.

Dr. Duhig was recently entertained at dinner at Federal Government House by their Excellencies the Governor-General and Lady Helen Munro-Ferguson.

The Rev. Father Tighe, of Sydney, is conducting a retreat for the Dominican nuns, Dunedin.

The Rev. Brother Xaverius, of the Marist Order, who has been on a visit to his mother, Mrs. R. Curran, of Yass, has returned to Bendigo.

Large congregations attended the anniversary of the Manly Methodist Sunday School on Sunday, January 17, in the Britannia Theatre. The preachers were the Rev. R. J. Williams and the Rev. H. C. Foreman. A total sum of £25 was collected.

The Rev. L. H. Kelynack, B.A., principal of the Methodist Ladies' College, Burwood, recently visited the Ballina circuit, and preached at Ballina, Alstonville, and Teven.

On Sunday and Tuesday last the anniversary of the Orchard Hills Church, Penrith circuit, was celebrated, the Rev. Dr. Carruthers being the preacher on Sunday. The attendances at each service were large.

An interesting ceremony is expected this afternoon, when the new Methodist church at Mosman will be opened by Mrs. W. H. M'Clelland. The Rev. F. Colwell, president of the N.S.W. Conference, assisted by the Rev. Dr. Carruthers and the Rev. Dr. Sellors, will perform the dedicatory service. In the service in the evening the Rev. C. J. Prescott, M.A., Rev. H. C. Foreman, M.A., and Mr. Alexander Terrey, senior circuit steward, will take part. The Revs. Dr. Brown, F. W. Hynes, and M. Reavley will conduct the services on the following day.

At the meeting of the Methodist Ministers' Association on Monday the Rev. William M'Callum has arranged to deliver an address.

The Rev. P. A. Westbrook is leaving Ballina circuit at the end of the connexional year. He has received and accepted a unanimous invitation to the Glen Innes circuit.

The Rev. G. Rowe arrived in Sydney from Adelaide on Thursday on his way back to Brisbane.

The president of the Methodist Conference, who has been on a round of visits to Inverell, Moree, and Narrabri, reports that he found large attendances and an increased interest in the work of the Church.

The sum of £30 has been jointly realised by a Christmas Tree Fete given by the Newrybar Methodist Church and by the Ballina Parsonage Fund.

Large congregations are attending a series of sermons on present day problems, which are being given by the Rev. E. W. Crawford, at the Tenterfield Presbyterian Church. Mr. Crawford, who was formerly a Methodist minister, has been invited to continue to supply the Tenterfield Church for the next 12 months.

The Rev. John Ferguson, of St. Stephen's, Church, Phillip-street, is expected back in Sydney, from England, at the end of next week.

The Rev. R. E. Davies, B.D., of New Zealand, who has been on a lengthy visit to England, arrived in Sydney during the week on his way home. Mr. Davies was formerly Presbyterian minister at Petersham.

The Presbytery of Sydney is shortly to consider a proposal to form a new charge, including Lakemba and Bankstown, the former place to be separated from Campsie.

The Rev. C. W. Willis and the Rev. John Calder, of the Presbyterian Churches at Kogarah and Forbes respectively are at present in Sydney undergoing slight operations.

The Albury Congregational Church has extended a call to the Rev. W. H. Burrage, of the Glen Huntly (Vic.) Congregational Church, to take up the work there. Mr. Burrage has not yet accepted the call.

The Rev. G. H. Gunson, of Yarrawonga, has accepted a unanimous call to the pastorate of the Brunswick (Vic.) Congregational Church, as the successor to the Rev. C. Benson Barnett, and hopes to commence his ministry early in March.

The Rev. Absalom Deans, B.A., has returned to Sydney, and resumes his ministry at Rockdale to-morrow. He has quite recovered his health.

Daylesford (Victoria) was chosen for the summer convention and conference of the Australasian Students' Christian Movement this year, and 251 students, representing every University in Australasia and other institutions of higher learning, assembled there. The Sydney University Christian Union sent 56 delegates. The president of the business convention and conference was Rev. J. Mackenzie, M.A., of New Zealand, recently appointed to the Presbyterian Church at Toorak, Melbourne. Miss Louisa Macdonald, M.A., principal of the Sydney University Women's College, was the hostess.

The Rev. Ivo E. Bertram, M.A., of Auckland, is at present in Sydney, and will give a special address to men at the Y.M.C.A.

In a letter received from Mr. A. K. Yapp, general secretary of the English National Council of Y.M.C.As., Mr. Yapp passed a tribute to the splendid work of the Y.M.C.A. in Australia for its work in the military camps.

In addition to the work the Australian Y.M.C.A. is doing in Egypt, the British Y.M.C.As. are also doing work amongst the Territorials near Cairo. The Canadian Y.M.C.As. have five secretaries rated as officers with the Canadian Expeditionary Force. The New Zealand associations are at present raising a fund to fully equip a tent for the Dominion soldiers in Egypt.

The Rev. W. Michael Smith has been delivering on Tuesday evenings a series of Bible talks on the Epistle of the Romans at the People's Hall in Commonwealth-street.

Beginning on February 8, a series of addresses on the second coming of Christ are to be given at the Y.W.C.A. Hall. Among the speakers will be the Revs. J. S. Austin, T. R. Coleman, C. J. Tinsley, Canon Bellingham, Dr. Porter, and Messrs. W. H. Wooster, H. Alexander, H. G. Hanvard, R. Hickson, and G. E. Ardill.

The Open-air Gospel Mission continues its activity at the seaside each public holiday. On Tuesday last bands of workers representing the mission were in evidence at Manly and Coogee, and their messages were listened to by large numbers during the afternoon.

The Evangelisation Society of New South Wales has erected its large mission tent in Piper-street, Lilyfield, where Evangelist J. T. Furnass is conducting a successful mission. Interested audiences gather nightly in the tent, and a series of open-air meetings have been held in the neighbourhood.

The Gospel Union connected with the Sydney Rescue Work Society is to be provided with a suitable hall for its aggressive mission work. The foundation is already being got ready on the site chosen at 145 Commonwealth-street, near the corner of Reservoir-street. It is proposed to erect a building to include a hall capable of seating about 400 persons, also a basement for free teas, lantern services, Sunday-school work, etc. The need for such work in the congested area surrounding the site of the proposed hall is deemed to be great. At present the workers are utilising the small hall, which is always overcrowded, and, in addition to the work in the hall, open-air meetings are held regularly right throughout the district.

After a week under canvas, 37 boys, representative of the leading Great Public Schools, have just returned home. About a mile beyond Narrabeen, organised and directed by University men, the annual camp was held, and was in every way a great success. This is perhaps the most tangible of the activities of the University Christian Union, and the combination of surfing, fresh air, and sport, with the guiding influence of Mr. C. R. Walsh, camp commandant, and earnest University men, who have given their time and energies to make the camp successful, should mean much to every boy present.

BUSH MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

The annual meeting of the New South Wales Bush Missionary Society was held at the Sydney City Mission Hall on Thursday. The Rev. F. V. Dowling, chairman of the Congregational Union, presided at the afternoon session, and Mr. William White, ex-president of the Baptist Union, occupied the chair in the evening.

The secretary (Mr. E. Ezzy) read the report, which showed that the year had been a very strenuous one for the missionaries in the field, and that in many cases travelling had been exceedingly difficult. Much valuable work had been accomplished in isolated districts.

The treasurer's statement showed that a balance of £817 had been carried forward.

Mr. Joseph Palmer was re-elected as president, and Mr. W. Ardill as hon. treasurer.

During the meeting the missionaries, Messrs. R. T. Mailer, F. C. Steevens, and A. Ritter, related their experiences in the country districts.

THE PSYCHOLOGY OF COURAGE.

Being under fire for the first time exists as a psychological problem, only in the most shadowy form until the idiosyncrasies of the individual man have been taken into account (says the medical correspondent of the "Times" in an interesting article on the psychology of courage). It has been my good fortune to enjoy many opportunities of talking with soldiers who have been wounded in action. These opportunities have convinced me that no two men feel quite the same sensations whilst under fire for the first time, and also that a man is capable of experiencing quite different emotions at different periods of the same day, though his circumstances have not changed. For example, from the statement of a man who experienced shellfire for the first time in his life in the neighbourhood of Arras, I gathered that his first feeling had been one of great interest and curiosity. A "Black Maria" fell some hundreds of yards away, and sent up a great column of smoke, and at the time shrapnel was bursting at no long distance. But suddenly there came home the realisation that these shells were intended to work havoc, and that, in fact, the position occupied was full of danger. "Then I felt exactly as anybody would feel the moment after he discovered that he was in a field with an angry bull. Every instinct of mind and body prompted flight." A second man told me that from the moment he came under fire—in a trench—he experienced the most lively terror. "But the feeling passed away after awhile, leaving me rather tired and only a little anxious." A third declared that he had been so nervous before going into action that the event put the anticipation of it to shame. He had regarded himself as a dead man, and woke up, under fire, to the realisation that his chances of coming through safely were really very good.

Each of these men acquitted himself bravely; two of them were wounded. Clearly, when physical instinct played the coward (I use the word in no censorious sense) moral restraint effected victory. There came a second courage, a courage open-eyed and of clear vision, which, whilst not despising danger, was able to discount it. Under fire these men found a self hitherto unsuspected, that elusive quality which, for want of a better title, is called manhood.

The achievement of "second courage" is, of course, a well-recognised stage in the seasoning process of war. While the man who has not been under fire cannot safely count upon experiencing this or that particular feeling when his hour comes—this depending so much upon temperament and circumstance, he can, I believe, count upon achieving the second courage, which is the priceless possession of the veteran. He can count upon "making good" in a moral and spiritual sense; upon reaching courage even through the deepest valleys of mistrust and fear. Under fire he may lose every preconceived notion he ever cherished or shunned, but it is at least in the highest degree probable that he will find himself. And it is also probable that that self will be worth the finding.

AIR DISPLAY.

Mr. Delfosse Badgery, the young Australian aviator, proposes to give an exhibition at Victoria Park racecourse this afternoon of volplaning, corkscrew dives, spiral dives, and aerial gymnastics at low altitudes. Bomb dropping into an imaginary battleship will also be a feature of the display. Mr. Badgery proposes to start the engine himself, and to get into the machine, and fly away unaided.

HAIR FELL OUT, TWO BALD SPOTS.
Marton, N.Z.—"My little brother's head came out in a sort of rash and had festered heads, and the hair began to fall out, in fact he had two bald spots, not a hair to be seen. He suffered from this trouble for about eighteen months, and I rubbed the Cuticura Ointment on the bald patches, and within ten days the hair was growing, and now I am pleased to say the hair on these spots is the same as the other. The poor little fellow used to lie in bed and cry with the pain, and the itching was dreadful, and he was unable to sleep. We had tried other remedies, ointments, and lotions, etc., but of no use, but since using Cuticura Ointment and Soap he has been clear of any sort of skin trouble. I used to rub the Cuticura Ointment on my brother's head and then wash it with the Cuticura Soap.
"When I know of anyone who is suffering from anything of the same or similar complaints, I always advise them to use Cuticura Remedies, as they are sure to cure." (Signed) Miss Mary Evans, July 12, 1912.
Although Cuticura Soap and Ointment are sold throughout the world, a sample of each with 32-page Skin Book will be mailed free on application to R. Towns and Co., Dept. T., Sydney, N.S.W.—Advt.

Lipton's Great Cash Competition Announcement is on Page 7. Be sure to see it.—Advt.

IN EXCHANGE FOR LOVE.

BY CHARLES GARVICE.

CHAPTER XIV.

Jack did not go down to Chertson the next day, and, though he tried to drive the subject from his mind, he could not help remembering that Nora was paying her visit to the Abbey; he mentally pictured her walking through that historic building with Ferndale beside her as guide; and the mental picture was not a pleasant one to Jack, notwithstanding the benefit which Nora undoubtedly would get from her visit to her new friends.

The following morning he received a brief from Mr. Horton. It was a small case, but it was Jack's first brief, and he was somewhat excited over it. Of course, he took it downstairs to Troddles, who received it with a groan, but cheerfully enough brought his stupendous mind to it. Jack worked at the brief all the morning, snatched some lunch at the railway station, and got down to Chertson a little before 4. He had forgotten completely his appointment with Maud, but the sight of the wood reminded him of it, and, with a little gesture of impatience, he went towards the rendezvous.

Maud was there before him. She was pacing up and down in front of the fallen tree, her book in her hand, her face upturned, her lips moving as she went over her part. At the sound of Jack's footsteps she turned swiftly; her face lit up, and she sprang to him.

"Oh, you have come! I was afraid—but, no, I wasn't. I was sure you would. I don't suppose you ever broke a promise, did you, Mr. Chalfonte?"

"Don't remember," said Jack, "though there are some promises that it would be as well to break. For instance, you know I'm no good at this sort of thing, Miss Delman."

"Oh, don't!" she said, pleadingly. "It sounds as if—as if you were angry with me, were sorry you were going to help me. Call me 'Maud!'"

"Well, 'Maud,' if you like," he said, laughing easily, for she seemed such a child, and so irresponsible. "I see you've got the book; know your part?"

"I think so," she replied, nodding. "You sit down on the tree, and let me walk up and down. I can do it better that way."

"Well, you've pitched upon a pretty difficult part," he said, as he glanced at the book and sat down. "That's one of Lena Ashwell's —. Well, all right, fire away!"

"Just give me one moment," she said softly.

She moved away a few yards and stood looking fixedly at the ground; then she returned to him and began.

For the first few minutes Jack followed her, indifferently enough, in the book; but presently he raised his head, forgot the book, and sat listening to her and watching her. She was well-nigh word perfect, and, not content with merely repeating the part, she was playing it as much as was possible in the place and circumstances. And, though Jack was no critic, he knew that she was playing it uncommonly well; in fact, he was filled with amazement that a girl so young and inexperienced could throw herself into a part under such unfavourable conditions.

In spite of himself, he grew not only interested but absorbed, and presently spellbound. The actor's art is a very wonderful thing; it has more immediate and direct effect even than that of the painter's or the musician's. Jack had seen the play, had seen the famous actress in the part Maud Delman was now assuming; and he knew that the young girl standing before him was going to be a successful, if not a great, actress.

He felt for his pipe mechanically, and as he smoked he thought of this wonderful thing that was taking place before him. And he thought also of the tremendous responsibility he had undertaken; he was going to be the means of removing this girl from her present quiet and secure sphere to quite a different one, one of excitement, of triumph perhaps, but of perils certainly. It was a deuce of a business. But while he pondered this, he still listened and watched; and when she had played her last scene, and played it, considering her inexperience, with wonderful effect, he sat and looked at her in dumbfounded silence.

She was pale, her girlishly moulded bosom was heaving, the pupils of the beautiful eyes were distended, and her lips were apart, as she breathed painfully, slowly.

"Well?" she demanded at last, her hands tightly clasped, her eyes fixed on him with the expression of a person awaiting the sentence of life or death.

"It's spiffing!" he said; "it's absolutely top-hole, ripping!. But, look here, I'm no judge, you know."

"Oh, yes, you are," she said softly, her face flushed by his praise, her eyes dazzlingly brilliant. "You know what it ought to be; you've seen all the best actresses. Oh, yes, you're a judge, Mr. Chalfonte; at any rate, I'm satisfied with your decision. Do you think that I—I shall do?"

"'Pon my word, I think you will!" replied Jack, wishing to goodness he could say that she wouldn't. "I think you do it very well; in fact, precious well. Yes; I think you've got the makings of an actress in you."

She glided towards him and sat, not on the tree, but at his feet, and her warm young hand stole to his and closed on it gratefully.

"Oh, that's enough for me!" she said. "I am satisfied. I don't mean with my playing the part; I know that a good deal of it's quite wrong. But I know that it's because of my inexperience. But I'm willing to learn, and can stand any amount of teaching. I'm sure that a stage manager would pull a great deal of it to pieces; but he'd tell me where I was wrong and set me straight." There was a pause, then she turned her face up to him, her big eyes were full of tears, her lips were quivering. It was so beautiful a face, and rendered so tragic by her intensity, that Jack was startled, and not a little moved.

"I shouldn't take it so seriously, if I were you, Miss—Maud," he said warningly.

"I can't help it," she responded, smiling and driving back the tears. "It's all my life to me, all my soul. And I want to thank you, and I can't; and that makes me unhappy. Oh, Mr. Chalfonte—"

With a gesture of her hand, as girlish as it was pathetic and eloquent, she bent her fresh young lips to his hand, kissed it, and laid her cheek against it.

Jack sprang up, alarmed and aghast.

"Here, look here; you mustn't give way like that. I've done precious little for you—"

"You've done everything," she broke in, in a low voice, but passionately. "You're the only friend I've ever had; you've helped me as no one else could have helped me. Oh, you are good, good! And I shall never forget it, never! And you will help me still, Mr. Chalfonte?" she pleaded. "You'll see that manager, and get him to hear me?"

"Yes, yes, that's all right," said Jack hurriedly. The scene was growing too tense, almost painful; he wanted to cut it short and get away. "I'll see Telby; I'll manage it for you. But, look here, don't you let yourself be carried away too much. You keep that little head of yours straight; it doesn't do to go soaring into the clouds, the way you're doing. Don't know much about it, but I believe an actor's life is a devil of a hard one; and—"

She had risen with him, and stood, panting a little, her eyes fixed on him.

"Oh, I don't care, I don't care," she said, throwing back her head. "I'm prepared for any amount of hardness. I know it's a struggle; but I can live through it, as others have done. You can't frighten me, Mr. Chalfonte, even if you wished to do so; but you don't, do you? I know I shall succeed, because—because you are going to help me."

"That's all right," said Jack, "as I said. I'll see Telby, and I daresay he'll give you a hearing before long. Now I must go. By George! I had no idea it was so late."

"You mean that you were interested, and carried away?" she said, with a smile, her head on one side, her eyes peering up at him under their long lashes.

"That's it," said Jack. "Absolute truth. Well, good-bye."

She held out both her hands, and he took them and gave them a friendly, fraternal shake, and left her.

As he passed through the wood he saw someone, a man, walking down one of the tracks. He could only see the man's back, and it looked to Jack as if it were Stephen Fleming; but he did not give the man a moment's thought, for he had spent nearly an hour with Maud, and he wanted to be [illegible] at the Hall.

Maud sank on to the fallen tree, her clasped hands between her knees, her eyes glowing softly as she listened to Jack's departing footsteps. Her attitude was that of one of the love-stricken maidens in Marcus Stone's charming pictures, and, in truth, Maud was in love, very much in love; to her Mr. Jack Chalfonte was just the king of men; she had fallen in love with him the first time he had spoken to her; and it was her love for him, as much as her talent, her desire to win his approval, admiration, that had inspired her acting. As she sat, dreaming of him, she knew that he had admired her. And, perhaps—Maud was not unconscious of her prettiness; she was clever, she was ambitious; she might become a famous actress—even dukes had married actresses. Perhaps—

THE BRIDGE.

A DARLING HARBOUR SKETCH.

(BY WILL LAWSON.)

It stands within a stone's throw, but not in sight of George-street and its throngs, the only big bridge in the city of Sydney. Yet how few of the citizens ever traverse it. How many visitors never see more of it than the glimpse they get from their steamer's deck if she berths in Darling Harbour. And it is a busy bridge, with all the fascination, all the human interest to offer that busy bridges have the wide world over.

The bridge links Sussex-street, the throbbing heart of Sydney's commerce, with the railway over the water; it joins the city to Balmain. And as the red corpuscles of blood are driven and drawn through the arteries and veins by the beating heart, so the streams of traffic are actuated by Sussex-street to and fro across the bridge.

The traffic is always in a hurry on Pyrmont Bridge. In other thoroughfares, even in the city's centres, the waggons may dream along as the wool teams sometimes do in Castlereagh-street. On the bridge all traffic hurries. And such a variety of merchandise as the traffic represents! Huge crates of new waggon wheels borne on creaking lorries, loads of sewing machines and pianos, piled up loads of hay, chaff, and grain, which sway as though they would topple, burdens of heavy stones—the horses drawing them step out smartly on the bridge. They are overtaken by a light, well-horsed sulky, in which sit two well-to-do Chinese, by a hansom whirling a business man to one of the wool stores across the water, by taxis and motor cars. All these and dozens of other vehicles, even to the little candle-box cart of a couple of Pyrmont boys, who have gathered a load of firewood from the broken cases on the wharfs—they all hurry on. And the curious thing is that there are no onlookers, excepting the policeman on duty and the bridge-master, who sits in a high, glassed-in signal-box, and seems to be watching the shipping. There are pedestrians but they hurry, too, like the other corpuscles in this main artery flowing to and from the heart. The reason for the hurry? The bridge-master is the reason. He opens and closes the bridge for steamer traffic, and the drivers never know when he may do so.

In the pool that the bridge cuts off from the other part of Darling Harbour a steamer is backing away from her wharf and blowing her whistle. She is whistling for the bridge. The bridge-master has been watching her, and he continues to watch her till she has straightened herself up, and is ready to pass downstream. Then he causes a loud electric bell to ring.

This is really a signal for the hurrying traffic to stop. But for a moment the streams speed up in the hope of getting on to the draw of the bridge—the part which swings—ere the gates close. If they are on the draw they must be given time to get off. The police hold up their hands, the great panting horses are reined back, while those who are on the draw hasten off triumphantly with a rough jest with the police or other drivers. Suddenly an alert taxi careers through, and is cautioned as it slips, a bad last, through the slowly closing gate at the far end.

In a few seconds the draw is clear. Right up to the gates on either side the crowding traffic presses. Steadily and silently the draw begins to move. What was solid road but a while since turns slowly on its axis. It is as though the bridge were cut through with an immense knife, leaving two clean edges and sheer drops into the tide. It reminds one of the fly-trap that a madman invented, and which consisted of a piece of wood cut in two, and the sections laid in line, but at a distance apart, over a tin of water. The flies were supposed to be unaware of the gap, and to fall into the water. On Pyrmont Bridge the police and the bridge gates prevent such accidents.

The draw has swung swiftly, and is now at right angles to the bridge, the bridgemaster in his wheelhouse looking like the commander of a new type of hydroplane. The steamer is sweeping down towards the right-hand opening, her masts towering high above the bridge, and her smoking funnels run level with the roadway. And as she passes the people on the bridge can look down upon her decks and note her squat, wide shape, and the passengers and seamen on her decks, as an airman looks down upon a beleaguered city's streets.

The vessel is hardly clear, and her quickening propellers kicking up white water, ere the draw is swinging back into place. The edges cut by the big knife meet with a tight clang, and the join becomes again invisible. The gates reopen, and the streams of traffic hurry onward once more.

There is always a breeze on the bridge, and always something to see which cannot be seen in the streets. There are vessels with all kinds of merchandise at the wharfs beside the bridge, while in the distance, downstream, the liners from all the ports of the world lie lazily, like giants smoking and chatting of deep-sea doings. Little tugs buzz noisily about, snorting beneath the bridge, and dragging heavy barges as ants struggle with burdens; the ferries flit to and fro, and the little waves the wind raises lap and gurgle about the bridge piers. And ever and anon one of the sea leviathans, with hoarse whistle booming, backs out of her berth. Two tugs take hold of her roughly by the ear and by the belt and bully and push and splutter till she is heading down stream. Patiently she submits to these long-shore incivilities. Then the rude tugs cast off with a final push, and the big ship moves away out of sight of the bridge. The onlooker turns to join the stream of traffic that hurries towards Sussex-street, the heart through which the stream flows, to be sent out again into the slower-running veins that do not lead across the bridge.

At sunset the traffic has almost ceased, the bridge lamps burn, pale-coloured and bright, against the golden sky; night comes to make the water black and deck the skies in stars. The bridge is quiet. But the bridgemaster is still there, and the police. Odd customers, and sometimes strange ones, traverse the bridge, and there are steamers coming in and going out all night. At midnight, with paddles churning the water till it blazes beneath her lights, the Newcastle boat goes seaward. There are long, quiet hours on the bridge after that. Then the market carts from Ryde and other far-off places begin to cross. In endless sequence they come; they do not hurry like the day traffic, which they are the forerunners of, unless the drivers see a steamer heading for the draw.

The dawn has passed, and the day is full-sized when an inbound island steamer blows huskily for the right-of-way. And the bridge begins another busy day.

FUTURE OF THE WORLD.

The present struggle, said Mr. Balfour during an address at Bristol, on December 13, was more than national. The whole international future of the world, in his judgement, was hanging in the balance. If victory should go to those the law of whose being seemed to be to grasp domination irrespective of scruples, then, indeed, we might look forward with gloomy prognostications to the international future of civilisation—with the very doubtful comfort of having German "Kultur" rammed down our throats by German bayonets, whether we liked it or not. He appealed to the young—in whom he had always believed—not to undervalue the greatness of their destiny. It depended upon every man in this great national emergency sinking all minor and petty considerations. Unhappily for herself, unhappily for mankind, Germany had apparently felt that it was not enough to be great, honoured, wealthy, and secure, but that no nation worthy of the name, having domination within its grasp, should fail by all means, fair or foul, to pursue domination until it was secured. He thought that was one of the greatest, if not the greatest, tragedy in history.

It almost looked as if the war of 1870 and the unexampled outburst of prosperity which succeeded it had turned the heads of a great nation and had polluted the consciences of a mighty people. They spoke of their "Kultur," of their greatness, in terms which he thought would never be used by anybody with a sense of humour. Germany was not content to be on the continent of Europe "first among equals," but rather that she should be "everything." She never would be "everything" while there was one British cartridge left. There was a fantastic conception made in Germany of what was called the superman, a monster of aggressive egotism. If he ever materialised he might well be left to the police. (Laughter) But while the conception of the superman was merely absurd, it was the German idea of their super-state which had brought civilisation into the peril in which it now stood. It was the super-state with which we had to deal. It was absolutely inconsistent with the true notion of a great community of nations. The Lord Mayor of Bristol pointed out that the city had supplied over 11,000 recruits for the army and navy, and these in addition to reservists.

THE RESURRECTION OF POLAND.

(By Geo. Collingridge, M.C.R.G.S.A.)

Amongst the many injustices perpetrated throughout Europe one of the greatest has been the dismemberment of Poland. Now, however, the noble Polish nation has found its defender in the person of Nicholas II., the Czar of all the Russias.

Moved by an impulse of supreme generosity and a true grasp of the situation, the Czar has promised to the Poles of Russia, Austria, and Prussia, the civil and religious autonomy of a regenerated Poland one and united.

In doing so, Russia fortifies her frontier and weakens those of her enemies. The Poles of Austria, the only favoured ones of recent years, are already fighting with less energy against the Russian armies, seeing that they can look forward to freedom and the reconstruction of their country. The Poles of Prussia, already lukewarm towards a prince that oppresses them, will look upon Warsaw and Petrograd as a land of promise. As to the Poles of Russia, their zeal will be tenfold in a cause which is their own.

A great promise, therefore, shines on the horizon of battles, and a promise that will be kept and realised when the day of victory comes, as it undoubtedly will, in the near future, and as no one would doubt the word of honour of his Imperial Majesty Nicholas II., the world may look forward to a Polish nation 20 millions strong, springing into life again when the war is over.

It is too early yet to draw a map giving the positive outlines of what Poland reconstructed will be. When Frederic II. took the initiative of the first dismemberment of Poland in the year 1772, that country extended nearly from the Baltic to the Black Sea, trespassing on its true borders. The two subsequent spoliations which occurred in the years 1775 and 1795, and in which Prussia, Austria, and Russia took part, resulted in the disappearance of Poland from the maps of Europe.

The minimum of territory that will constitute reconstructed Poland will consist of what is shown on some modern maps, with Warsaw as capital, that is, the portion which now belongs to Russia; then the Great Dukedom of Posen in Germany, and the nine-tenths, at least, of Galicia in Austria. Russia may, perhaps, accept from reconstructed Poland the Galician territories occupied by people of her own race.

Then, again, will come the question of the annexation of Silesia and parts of Germany, which once belonged to Poland. For example, will Danzig become a great Polish port? It is to be hoped that it shall.

The whole civilised world will have its eyes on the great event that will take place when the Czar's proclamation will be put into force and Poland is resurrected. The following is the historical document that calls to life the noble Polish nation:—

"Poles, the hour has rung in which the sacred dream of your fathers and grandfathers may be realised. A century and a half has elapsed since the living body of Poland was torn to pieces, but its soul did not die! It lived with the hope that for the Polish nation the hour of resurrection and fraternal reconciliation with Great Russia would come.

"The Russian soldiers convey to you the news of this reconciliation.

"Let the Polish people unite under the sceptre of the Czar. Under that sceptre Poland will revive, free in its religion, language, and autonomy. Russia only expects from you the respect of the rights of those nationalities with which you are allied. With open heart, with hand fraternally extended, Great Russia comes to meet you. The sword that smote the enemies near Gruenwald is not yet rusted. From the shores of the Pacific to the northern seas the armies of Russia advance.

"The dawn of a new day commences for you. May the sign of the Cross, the emblem of sufferance and of the resurrection of nations, shine with splendour in that dawn!"

The map shows with precision the portions of Poland which Russia, Prussia, and Austria took possession of in the three dismemberments of 1772, 1793, and 1795, when the unfortunate Poland disappeared from the maps of Europe.

QUARTER SESSIONS.

(Before Judge Docker and juries.)

Mr. Albert Harris, Crown Prosecutor.

FALSE PRETENCES.

Raymond Dunleavy, 23, pleaded guilty and was remanded for sentence, on two charges of false pretences. On December 11, Dunleavy secured £10 from May Marshall by a pretence that a cheque for that amount, drawn on the Queensland National Bank, Ltd., at Sydney, signed "F. Hughes, junior," was a genuine warrant to pay. On January 30, he secured five pairs of boots from Thomas Stapleton, of the firm of Bedgood and Co. Propy., Ltd., by pretending that he was an employee of Utz and Co., of Glen Innes.

TRAM GUARD ASSAULTED.

George Davidson, 19, was charged with maliciously inflicting grievous bodily harm on Joseph Cyril Sykes, a tram conductor, at Darlinghurst, on December 20. The Crown alleged an unprovoked assault, during which Sykes was punched and kicked into insensibility. Mr. E. R. Abigail defended Davidson, who did not deny being present at the time of the trouble, but declared that he was the assaulted party.

The jury returned a verdict of guilty of inflicting grievous bodily harm, adding that they thought it was the result of a drunken squabble. Davidson was remanded for sentence.

A CHARGE FAILS.

Walter Johnston, 20, and William Hart, 19, were charged together with maliciously injuring ornaments, photographs, glassware, and a clock, the property of William Drawbridge, of 31 Phelps-street, Surry Hills, on the evening of December 24. The Crown alleged that the accused and two other men took part in a brawl at Drawbridge's house, resulting in the smashing of a good deal of the furniture. Mr. M'Mahon appeared for Johnston, and Hart defended himself. The defence, which was that the accused were not in the house at the time, was supported by next-door neighbours.

The jury returned a verdict of not guilty, and both of the accused were discharged.

"A MAD ESCAPADE."

William John Rhoades, 19, pleaded guilty to charges of forging and uttering and larceny. The case was characterised by his Honor as "a mad escapade." It appears that accused forged an order for the purchase of a motor boat by the Commonwealth military authorities. He also learned to drive and manage the boat, under the pretence that his tuition would be paid for by the defence authorities, and then forged other orders for the supply of provisions, which he stowed away on the boat. He was arrested, while taking the boat out of Sydney harbour, by the Water Police. The father of accused told his Honor that for some time the lad had been reading tales of adventure, and was fired in his imagination by the story of the Germans getting away with the Ayesha, when the Emden was attacked by the Sydney, at Cocos Island. Throughout the whole of his life, the accused had borne an irreproachable reputation.

His Honor released the young man on his own and his father's recognisances, of £50 each, to be of good behaviour for twelve months.

THE UNIVERSITY.

NEW MEDICAL FELLOWSHIP.

The Walter and Eliza Hall Travelling Medical Fellowship, which is proposed to be instituted by the Sydney University Senate, has for object the promotion of the interests of medical science and practice in Australia, by enabling highly qualified graduates to obtain special experience abroad. The amount of the fellowship is to be payable as follows:—£150 upon leaving Australia; £100 after six months; £100 after 12, 18, and 24 months respectively; £150 after 30 months; and £200 after 36 months. The tenure of the fellowship is to be three years, and the third year's tenure must be spent at the University of Sydney, engaged upon work recommended by the Faculty.

A FATAL FIGHT.

MAN COMMITTED FOR TRIAL.

About 4.45 p.m. on the 12th inst a disturbance took place at Avoca-street, Randwick, with the result that Thomas Alexander Pringle, 49, received injuries from which he died six days later.

The City Coroner (Mr. H. S. Hawkins) yesterday held an inquiry into the case. Mrs. Gertrude Pollard stated that Robert Young Charles Garood came into her yard and complained that witness's little boy had assaulted his little boy. Pringle then came into the yard, and the two men began to fight. She could not say who started it. Pringle called Garood "a big German cow." The latter went behind Pringle and hit him, apparently between the shoulders. Pringle turned round as though to strike Garood, who appeared to kick the other man in the stomach. Pringle fell on to the kerb, and seemed to strike his head. When Pringle was kicked he was in a fighting attitude. Both men were sober.

John Stapleton said he saw the row. Pringle struck the first blow. When the latter walked away Garood quickly followed him and hit him so that he reeled and fell and did not move again. Pringle was a very quiet man.

Garood said he and Pringle had a dispute about the children. Pringle called him offensive names, and said he would finish him. He thought Pringle was going to kick him, and he side-stepped. Pringle had full opportunity to defend himself. He had kicked at witness seven or eight times while in the yard. There was a stack of bottles near by, and he thought Pringle would throw some of them at him.

Mrs. Pollard, recalled, said each man was doing his best to beat the other.

The City Coroner found that Pringle died from injuries to the head feloniously inflicted upon him by Garood. He further found that Garood did feloniously slay Pringle. He committed Garood for trial, and fixed bail at £100.

Mr. Robison (Crown Solicitor's Office) appeared for the Police Department, and Mr. P. K. White for Garood.

BANK OF COMMERCE.

HALF-YEARLY MEETING.

The half-yearly meeting of the Australian Bank of Commerce was held yesterday. The chairman, Sir W. P. Manning, in moving the adoption of the report and balance-sheet, particulars of which have already been published, said:—

"Our deposits, and other liabilities, which include customers' current accounts, show a slight contraction to the extent of £32,000. This contraction is caused by delay in realisation of produce. The steady flow in number of new accounts continues, and is fully maintained; while the proportion of the figures comprising fixed deposits shows an increase of some £140,000. The steady growth of the reserve fund, now £55,000, is satisfactory. Our coin holding is the largest yet recorded by the bank; and, after reckoning Government notes, money in London, Government and municipal securities, and other items, our assets of a specially liquid character amount to £1,545,000. This figure, indeed, represents with remarkable closeness 50 per cent.—or 10s in the £—of our liabilities to the public, which total £3,088,000.

"Our bills discounted, and other advances, at £4,073,000, have increased by £159,000, and the total assets at £5,994,000, form a basis of strength in relation to our liabilities to the public (amounting, as stated, to £3,088,000). Assets, in fact, are held to the extent of 194 per cent. of current liabilities, so that for each £ of such liability the bank holds nearly £1 19s in assets.

"Our profits during the past half-year were £60,774—after making provision for the payment of graduated land and income tax—£32,680 of this goes in payment of interest on inscribed deposits, leaving £28,093—out of which we have placed to the reserve fund £10,000, carrying forward, after allowing for the dividend, the sum of £3246. The total amount of taxation for graduated land and income tax for 1914 amounts to £14,616—a very serious and increased handicap on our operations. It has been the policy of the board, in the peculiar conditions through which the country is passing, to preserve the interests of its customers, by giving assistance to those who need it; and it is their intention, and we have the means, to continue to extend similar assistance on sound business lines. The bank is able to do so entirely out of its own resources. The position of the bank as disclosed by its balance-sheet, is a true index of its strength, as its assets embrace only such as are entirely of the bank—without any extraneous aid whatsoever, and displays fully, and only, its own resources—of which the board can avail themselves for the protection and extension of its customers' interests, whenever it is found advisable to do so.

"It is a matter for satisfaction that, owing to its strong position, both here and in London, and notwithstanding the recent disturbed condition of the Empire's finances, the bank did not need to avail of the assistance provided in London under the Moratorium; or elsewhere; but met all its obligations as they fell due. The bank took its due part in relation to the issue of the recent British Government War Loan. Moreover, in conjunction with the other banks, we have loyally aided the Commonwealth Government by agreeing to their proposals for the deposit of £10,000,000 in gold against Australian notes."

The motion was seconded by Mr. F. N. Yarwood, and carried unanimously.

ARTISTIC POSTERS.

AN EXHIBITION OPENED.

Mr. G. V. F. Mann, the director of the National Art Gallery, who recently returned from a trip to Europe, has brought back with him a number of poster designs, that will prove a revelation to Australians generally. There has been considerable talk of late, from the Government downwards, of helping Australian artists. Mr. Mann thinks that now an opportunity has arisen for art patrons generally, and merchants and manufacturers in particular, to give to artists here work, that will at the same time be a commercial asset to the purchaser.

When one finds in this collection such names as Frank Brangwyn, Thomas Maybank, Gilbert Holiday, Chas. Pears, and Tony Sarg, some idea of the scope of the work may be obtained. Most of these pictures, which are to be shown to the public at the Royal Art Society's rooms on Monday and during next week, comprise an advertising campaign conducted by several rival London underground railways. Many of the designs reveal remarkable fantastic treatment, and the whole exhibits reveal lithographic work of a high order. Tony Sarg's series of humorous illustrations are among the best in the collection.

A CADET'S CONDUCT.

Daniel McLaughlin, a cadet in training under the Defence Act, pleaded guilty at the Water Police Court, before Mr. Clarke, S.M., yesterday, to a breach of discipline on parade.

Defendant was ordered to the detention camp on Tuesday, and when on the boat proceeding there was smoking, after having been warned not to do so. When told to stop, he refused, and when the sergeant took the cigarette from him, the boy used obscene language. He was placed in the guardroom for the night, during which he continued using bad language. Mr. Clarke imposed a fine of 40s and costs, in default to be committed to Defaulters' Camp, Middle Head, for a period of 30 days.

WUNDERLICH CEILINGS

WUNDERLICH CEILINGS in the hall

THE greatest value in Wunderlich Ceilings lies in their æsthetic qualities. They appeal to those finer senses which—though subtle—make appreciation of the better joys of life possible. Such ceilings—conforming, as they do—to every canon of good taste, never pall. They never cease to please. They provide an atmosphere of quiet refinement that is distinctly their own and lend an air of completeness to a room that is not possible with a less artistic material. The unit method of erection—whilst rendering fixing an easy matter—also permits of a range of combinations in designing which gives unlimited choice in the expression of individual tastes.

The illustration at the head of this advertisement is the first of a series which we intend to publish. It shows how beautiful an entrance hall to any home may become when treated in Wunderlich. A hall of this kind instantly exhibits the taste of the home-owner—making a first impression which is very lasting. In the series to follow we shall take you right through a home finished throughout in this material, just to show how artistic and home-like the same treatment would make your own house. The next to appear will be the Drawing Room. Watch for it next month.

Although so highly commendable from the artistic standpoint, Wunderlich Ceilings are also the most durable of all. They are made of steel—the finest British Steel—which we import direct. They cannot fall, rot, warp, wear-out or become so soiled but what a damp cloth will restore all the original freshness. The unit method of erection prevents all waste and minimises the mess and bother to vanishing point. First of all the sheets are stamped with mathematical accuracy. Each one has a bead-lap which locks to the one next to it. It is almost impossible to go wrong, and any competent tradesman can do the erecting. For further facts see our catalogue, a copy of which we will send if you use the coupon.

SOCIAL.

All contributions and accounts of weddings or other social entertainments intended for the "Social" Column in Saturday's issue should reach this office not later than Friday morning, and be fully endorsed.

A very quiet wedding was solemnised at St. Phillip's Church, Sydney, on January 19, at 3 o'clock, between Augustus Cave Clark, of Melbourne, and Louise Whitley, younger daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Cheaney, of Rosalie Plains, Darling Downs. The church was decorated with white flowers and palms, the bride and bridegroom standing under an arch of flowers with a huge white wedding bell in the centre. Canon Bellingham conducted the service. The bride was given away by her uncle, Sir Samuel M'Caughey. She wore a white embroidered crepe dress, inlet with Filet lace, and a white Moire hat, with black osprey, and carried a bouquet of lilies-of-the-valley, which, with diamond and pearl earrings, a string of seed pearls, and a diamond brooch, was the gift of the bridegroom. Her sister, Miss Eta Cheaney, was her only bridesmaid, simply dressed in white; she wore a diamond and pearl pendant, the bridegroom's gift. Mr. A. Warren Clark acted as best man. A small gathering of relatives and friends was afterwards entertained at Petty's Hotel by the bride's mother, who was becomingly dressed in black moire with smart hat to match. The bridegroom being a member of the Expeditionary Force, leaves shortly for the front.

The Bong Bong Picnic Race Club held their annual races on the Bong Bong racecourse on Thursday, January 21. Splendid weather prevailed, and a large attendance. Among those present were his Excellency the Governor and Lady Edeline Strickland, the Misses Strickland, Hon. H. E. Kater and Mrs. Kater, Mrs. Faithful and the Misses Faithful, Mrs. Herbert Allen, Mrs. Arthur Allen, Mr. and Mrs. Dudley Gibson, Mrs. Sydney Clarence, Miss MacHardy, Mrs. Middleton and the Misses Middleton, Mrs. Olive Osborne, Mrs. Jack Osborne, Misses MacArthur, Mrs. Wilkinson, Mrs. Manning, Mrs. E. Blomfield, Miss Blomfield, Miss Judith Jenkins, and many others.

An invitation garden fete was held on Saturday afternoon in the grounds of Takam, Mosman, kindly lent by Mr. and Mrs. C. Barnett. The fete was organised by Mrs. C. D. Whitty, assisted by Miss Elrington, in aid of their Great Britain stall at the Great Allies' Fair on February 11. The Rev. Clive Yarrington introduced Mrs. F. Brownlow, who opened the fete, and was presented by Miss Thelma Barnett with a bouquet. The Rev. Clive Yarrington and Rev. Horace Croft assisted in entertaining during the afternoon. Tennis sets were arranged by Colonel Wells and Miss Rankin. The Mosman Band played on the upper lawn. Misses Muriel Brownlow, Mavis Wells, Glyn Smith, Dorothy Harris, Thelma Barnett, and Mr. C. D. Whitty and Mr. S. Wigram sold sweets, etc.

At St. John's Church, Darlinghurst, January 2, a quiet wedding took place between Arthur Butler Collins, of Wanganui, N.Z., eldest son of Mrs. Cassels, Cronulla, and Marjorie, only daughter of Mrs. E. O'Connor, Darlinghurst. The marriage ceremony was performed by the Rev. Canon Beck. The bride wore an effective robe of white Crepe-de-Chene and Brussels lace, the tulle veil being arranged with orange blossom. Miss V. Collins, who acted as bridesmaid, was attired in rose-pink crepe-de-Chene and a lace cap. Mr. H. Collins was best man. The reception was held in the red room at Baumann's. Later on the happy couple journey to the Mountains and Jenolan Caves, where the honeymoon was spent, prior to their departure for their home in New Zealand.

At St. Stephen's Church, Phillip-street, on December 30, Hannah Probert, daughter of Mr. John Auld, of the Caledonian Hotel, Pyrmont, was married to Mr. George Todd, of Paisley, Scotland. The Rev. F. L. A. Schoeffel was the officiating clergyman. The bride, who was given away by her father, wore a pretty gown of ivory crepe de Chine, with silk shadow lace, and pearl trimmings. Her court train was trimmed with true lovers' knots and orange blossoms. Her veil of Brussels net was held in place by a wreath of orange blossoms. Her bouquet was the gift of the bridegroom. Miss Topsy Burrage acted as bridesmaid, and wore a dress of white silk muslin, with Valenciennes lace and Juliet cap, and carried a shell pink bouquet and gold bangle, gifts of the bridegroom. The two little train-bearers, Twinkie Myles (niece of the bride), and Peggy Glass, wore pretty frocks of white voile and shell pink ribbons. Their bouquets of white heather, tied with Victoria Stewart tartan, and gold bangles, were gifts of the bridegroom. Mr Ernest F. Edwards acted as best man. After the ceremony about 50 guests were received at the residence of the bride's parents. Mrs. Auld (bride's mother) wore black paillette silk; Mrs. A. Myles (sister of the bride), wore silk crepe, black and white trimming.

A quiet wedding was celebrated at St. Oswald's Church of England, Haberfield, recently, when Maynard Alfred, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Banfield, of Kiama, was married to Eleanor June, eldest daughter of the late Samuel and Mrs. Goodwin, Fonstown, Kildare, Ireland, the Rev. Newmarch officiating. An organ recital was given before the ceremony by Mr. C. A. Jarman, Cathedral organist, Bathurst, assisted by Miss Dumbrell, of Sydney. The bride, who was given away by her uncle, was attired in a trained gown of ivory crepe de Chine, with tunic of point lace. Her veil was arranged over a wreath of orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of white roses and lilies, the gift of the bridegroom. Miss Dorothy Goodwin, cousin of the bride, attended as bridesmaid, and wore a pink crepe frock, with overdress of cream lace, with hat of white goffered lace and pale pink wreath; her bouquet of pale pink roses and ferns, with a gold bracelet, were gifts of the bridegroom. Mr. Sam Banfield acted as best man. Mrs. W. A. Hunter, aunt of the bride, wore grey satin, with tunic of grey silk brocade, and a black Tagel hat with lancer plume and pink posey, and carried a bouquet of pink and white sweet pea. Mrs. Banfield, mother of the bridegroom, wore a costume of black satin and jet bonnet, with mount, and pink posey. The reception and breakfast were held at Belvidere, Fitzroy-street, Abbotsford. Mr. and Mrs. Banfield left by motor for the railway station, en route for the Mountains, where the honeymoon was spent, the bride wearing a grey silk poplin, with ninon sleeves, over shadow lace, grey silk dust coat, hat to match, relieved with purple velvet pansies.

An exhibition of garments for the Allies' babies was made on Thursday afternoon at the Equitable-building, under the direction of Dr. Mary Booth. The clothes, which were on the eve of being packed up, were greatly admired by the visitors. Some exquisite crochet work was seen in the bootees and jackets, while the little frocks and petticoats had been a labour of love to those who made them, judging by the dainty finish and elaborate smocking of some of the dresses. Piles of the clothes had been sent from the country districts.

The marriage of Leah Rita, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. K. Lea, of Paddington, with Melville Cecil, only son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Bailey, of Paddington, was solemnised on December 5, at St. John's Church, Paddington, by the Rev. George Chalmers. The bride who wore a frock of white crepe de Chine, relieved with pearls and blonde lace and French knots, and a train trimmed with pearls and French knots, and a tulle veil mounted with a wreath of orange blossoms, was given away by her father. She carried a bouquet, and wore a gold bangle, gifts of the bridegroom. Miss Elsie Bailey (sister of the bridegroom) acted as bridesmaid, wearing a white crepe de Chine frock, trimmed with lace and French knots, and with a swathed white sash of satin ribbon, and a white crepe hat relieved with pink posies, and carrying a bouquet of white and pink flowers. Miss Edna Marks (cousin of the bride) acted as train-bearer, wearing a smart little frock of white silk, trimmed with Malines lace and Juliet cap of pearls, also carrying a shower bouquet; each wore a gold bangle, the gift of the bridegroom. Mr. Nat. Abrahams acted as best man. The bride's mother wore a frock of golden-brown Paillette silk, trimmed with Oriental lace and French knots, surmounted with a white hat trimmed with pansies and lancer feathers. The bridegroom's mother was dressed in mole-grey crepe de Chine, trimmed with cherry silk, and wearing a black hat with red roses and lancer plumes. The reception was held at the bride's home. The bride and bridegroom left next morning for Jenolan Caves, via Katoomba.

The Methodist Church, Willoughby, was the scene of a wedding on December 29 last between Mr. A. R. Chellew, of Young, and Miss L. A. Maddern, youngest daughter of the Rev. M. Maddern, of Flowerdale, Forsythe-street, Willoughby. The ceremony was performed by the bride's father, assisted by the Rev. F. Walkden Brown. The church was decorated with white roses and asparagus ferns. Miss Dora Hill presided at the organ. The bride was attired in a dress of ivory charmeuse, with chantilly lace over dress, tulle veil, with chaplet of orange blossom. A diamond ring and a bouquet of white roses and bouvardias were the gifts of the bridegroom. The bride was attended by Miss Mary Halliday, as bridesmaid, who wore a dress of pale blue crepe de Chine, with cerise belt, and bouquet to match, and wore a black tulle hat, with white ostrich feather trimming and cerise posy, her pearl brooch and bouquet being gifts of the bridegroom. Mr. L. Chellew (brother) acted as best man. After the ceremony the guests adjourned to the school hall, where a reception was held, the Rev. S. Bembrick occupying the chair. In the evening Mr. and Mrs. Chellew left on a honeymoon tour of the mountains, the bride's going-away dress being old rose silk crepe, with black crepe de Chine hat, trimmed with black silk, wheat, and pink roses. Mr. and Mrs. Chellew's home will be at Young.

Under the patronage of Lady Poley and the Consuls for the Allies a fete at Clifton, Kirribilli, in aid of the Belgian and Red Cross Funds, will be held to-night.

Mrs. George Black, who was injured about ten months ago in George-street by a man who was thrusting along the wrong side of the footpath, has gone into Jenner Hospital, Macleay-street, Sydney, to be operated on for the removal of a growth in the breast.

ENGAGEMENTS.

The engagement is announced of Mr. John Byron Fraser, of New York City, son of Dr Byron Fraser, of Edinburgh, Scotland, to Miss Clare Gray, daughter of the late Mr. George Gray and Mrs. Gray, of Goethe, Charlecott-street, Dulwich Hill.

The engagement is announced of Molly, younger daughter of Mr. T. H. Ross, Euraba, Quirindi, to Mr. Rowland Fraser, third son of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Fraser, Invermay, Perthshire, Scotland.

WAR EFFECTS.

FOOD AND UNEMPLOYMENT.

From data contained in statistical reports received by the Commonwealth Statistician (Mr. G. H. Knibbs) comparisons can be made between the increase in food prices and in unemployment in England and Germany since the outbreak of war up to the end of October last. The figures given for Germany are contained in the Reichsarbeitsblatt, the official journal of the German Department of Labour Statistics. In England the increase in price of foodstuffs at the end of October, compared with July, was 12 per cent., as against 16½ per cent. in Germany. In Australia, on the other hand, the results for thirty of the most important towns show that up to the middle of October prices of food and groceries had decreased about ¾ per cent., while at the middle of November they were still slightly lower (about ½ per cent.) than in July. As regards unemployment, the following are the percentages of members of trade unions unemployed (excluding those serving with the naval or military forces) from July-November:—England: July, 2.8; August, 7.1; September, 5.9; October 4.4; November 2.9. Germany: July, 2.9; August, 22.4; September, 15.7; October, 10.9; November, not available. Australia: July, 5.7; August, 10.7; September, 13.7; October, 11.2; November, 10.9. It is pointed out that the above percentages for various reasons are not strictly comparable as between the three countries. For example, the British results are based on returns only from unions which pay unemployment benefit, while in Australia there are only about six unions which regularly pay unemployment benefit, and the results are, therefore, based on returns from other unions also.

ELECTRICAL ASSOCIATION.

AN AMALGAMATION.

Mr. O. W. Brain, M.I.E.E., Chief Electrical Engineer for Railways and Tramways, has accepted the position of president of the Electrical Association of Australia, this body having recently been formed as the outcome of a conference between the Electrical Associations of Victoria and New South Wales. The newly-formed association will continue to carry on the work which has been performed for many years by the Electrical Association of New South Wales and the Victorian Institute of Electrical Engineers, both of which are representative of practically the whole of the electrical engineering profession in their respective States. Arrangements have been made to include the other States in the agreement between the two present bodies as soon as opportunity offers.

The first council will consist of:—President, O. W. Brain, M.I.E.E., Chief Electrical Engineer Railways and Tramways, New South Wales Government; vice-presidents—W. H. Alabaster, Chief Assistant Electrical Engineer, Melbourne City Council (president of the Victorian section); W. H. Myers, Assistant Engineer, Electrical Branch New South Wales Government Railways and Tramways (president of the New South Wales section); members of council—Professor Henry Payne (Melbourne University, Engineering Department), Mr. W. J. Newbigin (director, Wm. Adams and Co., Melbourne), Mr. H. R. Forbes-Mackay (City Electrical Engineer, Sydney), Mr. A. C. F. Webb, M.I.E.E. (Consulting Electrical Engineer, Sydney).

LIFE TABLES.

The Commonwealth Statistician (Mr. G. H. Knibbs) has just received a copy of the English Life Table, No. 7, based on the Census results of England and Wales for 1901 and 1911, and the deaths registered for the ten years 1901 to 1910.

These tables enable a comparison to be made between the experiences for 1901-10 of the five countries for which such tables are now available—viz., Australia, Sweden, Italy, America, and England.

The figures indicate that at date of birth the expectation of life, based on the 1901-10 experience, was approximately 6½ years greater in Australia than in England and Wales both for males and females, the excess being slightly greater for males than for females.

RAILWAY REDUCTIONS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—The reported decision of the Railway Commissioners to decrease the mileage running of the trains throughout the State, and, therefore, their effective efficiency, the late increases in passenger fares and freights having apparently failed to relieve the situation, is another step towards the depopularising of the railways, and is on a par with the firmly-rooted idea in the official mind that to make an undertaking pay prices must be increased to the public. This is instanced by the proposed increase in telephone rates and the determined official resistance for years to the introduction of universal penny postage.

As a humble shareholder (without participation in the profits) in the above public undertakings, I am wondering if the heaping up of the cost to the public is likely to increase revenue. Of course it may be pointed out the raising of tram fares has succeeded, but the tram service has for years been notoriously overcrowded (in fact, inadequate for the work it had to carry out), and the fares were admittedly calculated upon a very low basis, so that any action which might have a tendency to lessen the strain upon the one hand and increase the revenue derivable from them on the other was to be welcomed. The railway service is entirely different, and should be able, with its present running stock and staff, to cater for an immense increase in the numbers of its passengers. Throughout the country comparatively few people use it. If, therefore, revenue is required, why should not some attempt be made by the Commissioners to induce more people to travel? Raising prices is hardly likely to do so; perhaps lowering them would have some of the desired effect, by increasing the numbers of travellers, filling up half-empty carriages, and giving full employment at no further cost to railway employees, whose wages have to be paid in full in any case.

The large railway companies in England create business by offering long trips at absurdly low rates from what would be the point of view of our officials, and yet it pays them. I never heard it suggested that they did it out of benevolence, and there seems no reason why a similar policy should not succeed with the New South Wales railways.

In to-day's issue of the "Herald" is reported a speech of the Chief Railway Commissioner, in which he appeared to have adopted the role of the Prophet Jeremiah, and foretells gloomy happenings in the near future. We, as a patriotic people interested in keeping the wheels going round, hardly expect this sort of thing from a gentleman placed in the position of Mr Harper occupies. It may be "a long, long way to Tipperary," but we know we shall get there, although it may suit the alien enemy to say we shall not.

HOUSE RENTS IN THE PRESENT CRISIS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—I trust some person with a more able pen than mine will try to draw attention to the high rents, in spite of the war, and to the cost of living, which the working people with families feel very much. Some ask "Why not reduce the taxes before lowering the rents?" If we had an unexpected invasion here, or a bomb fell into our midst, it would affect the landlords most. Plenty of well-meaning men would marry, but why ask a girl to share the fate of many struggling women? Lower the rents, then. It would be an inducement for young people to take the step which, at the present time, seems so risky. I fancy myself sensible, but, being a mother of four, I know exactly what it all spells. It takes a brave woman to be truly optimistic now a days, and not to notice how hard times are. I am afraid, instead of showing a cheerful mien, I shall soon be a Weary Willie, because I cannot pay the rent.

REAL ESTATE.

NOTES OF THE WEEK.

The real estate market was inclined to be on the quiet side this week. The indoor sales were all fairly well attended, but the actual business transacted was not of large proportions. On Wednesday Messrs. Hardie and Gorman had a rather small list to offer, but they managed to sell the Lansdowne farm of 22½ acres, situated near Canley Vale, with frontages to Prospect Creek, and the main Southern-road, for £1025. Privately the firm disposed of a cottage in Strathfield for £640, and a block of 2½ acres at Ourimbah (Armstrong estate) for £25 per acre.

Messrs. Raine and Horne had a full house at their indoor sale on Thursday. The chief item in the catalogue was some vacant allotments at Coogee in one of the best positions available at this attractive seaside suburb. One allotment in Brook-street, near the tram terminus, was, after keen competition, knocked down at £16/10/ per foot. For an allotment in Dolphin-street £13 per foot was refused. For an allotment in Bream-street £11 per foot was declined. Blocks in Arden and Hill streets were passed in at £7 per foot. As these prices were close to the reserves private sales will probably follow. At the same sale a cottage in Forest Lodge changed hands at £460.

Messrs. Richardson and Wrench conducted their usual weekly indoor sale yesterday, but it was inclined to be rather flat. Mr. A. Gregg, who occupied the rostrum, had a fairly large audience, and he had an attractive catalogue of properties to offer, but he failed to tempt the buyers to bid up to any extent. There was certainly bidding for a number of Vaucluse and other properties submitted, but it was below the margin, so these properties were passed in for private treaty. The firm, however, sold by private contract during the week a residence in Etham-avenue, Darling Point, for £1800; also a leasehold in Elizabeth-street, Redfern, for £150, and a cottage at Rozelle for £390.

The sale of land at Coogee this week at £16/10/ per foot was considered a good price for a residential block, but there was a sale effected by Messrs. Stanton and Son this week of a block of land at Rosemount-avenue, Woollahra, which realised £25 per foot, or a total of £2200 for a building allotment. The same firm also sold a cottage at Haberfield, known as "Lovelly," for £1025, and another cottage in the same suburb, known as "Inverugie," for £1250. A cottage at Rosebery model suburb brought £685, a block of land in the same suburb realised £3/15/ per foot, while a brick cottage in Henson-street, Summer Hill, changed hands at £955.

Mr. C. Monro this week disposed of a shop and brick dwelling in Cronulla-street, Cronulla, for £1700, also a cottage fronting Ocean Esplanade for £725. Several lots in the Harnleigh Estate for £192, and the balance of the Kitchener Estate, Cronulla, for £1402. The lastnamed lots realised from £2 to £4 per foot.

Tooloon and Emby stations, Coonamble district, were offered at auction in Coonamble last Monday by Winchcombe, Carson Ltd. The properties were offered in one lot as a going concern. The sale attracted a representative gathering of landholders, and after some smart bidding the properties were passed in at £51,000. Subsequently the holdings were disposed of privately to Messrs. Fisher Bros. at an advanced figure. The two stations have an area of 36,990 acres, all secured land, and the stock consists of about 21,150 sheep, 20 cattle, and 42 horses.

Two large sales were made by Mr. H. Lamb this week. One was a shop investment in George-street, near Bathurst-street, at £500 per foot, and the other was a large area of vacant land near Gloucester, on the North Coast, which sold at 30/ per acre. These two sales totalled £26,950.

A feature of this week's business, according to the report furnished by Messrs. Arthur Rickard and Co., Ltd., was the increased interest manifested by home-seekers in the home site estates, which, in point of volume, easily eclipses the inquiries for week-end or camp sites; whereas residential sites at seaside resorts, such as Bondi, Coogee, Manly, and Mosman, have been unusually brisk. The industrial districts of Auburn, Clyde, and Guildford have also been much better since the beginning of the year, and, from the inquiries now in hand for home-sites in similar districts, the prospects are excellent. The northern suburban districts have been much sought after, Lindfield, Killara, Turramurra, and Hornsby properties being the most favoured. Another suburb which proved prominent in the sales list is Hurstville, where the firm have some particularly good home-site estates for investment.

There is to be a sale at Brisbane on Monday, February 8, of a number of unparalleled Brisbane city freeholds. Messrs. Cameron Bros are the auctioneers, and a full description of the properties appears in our business columns.

A number of dairy farms and grazing areas will be offered at auction at the Royal Hotel, Moss Vale, on Saturday, February 20. Messrs. Wynne and Holt, in conjunction with Chambers, Walker, and Darvall, will conduct the sale.

SUBDIVISION WORK.

Subdivision work continues to form a feature in the real estate business of 1915. It is rather early in the year, and, with the war still in progress, rather difficult to predict just what is going to happen in the way of subdivision sales being a continued success. So far, however, the auctioneers have no reason to be otherwise than satisfied, and the public this week had two good opportunities of judging of the wisdom of investing in a block of land upon which to build a future home. First of all, there were several subdivision sales held last Saturday. One, the Key of Torquay Estate, at Middle Harbour, was offered to a large gathering by Mr. R. T. Forsyth. Out of 13 lots submitted seven were sold at prices ranging from £2 5s to £2 12s 6d per foot. The total reached £912.

Messrs. Arthur Rickard and Co., Ltd., offered the Highlands Extension Estate, in the industrial centre of Auburn. Mr. Rickard had a very good attendance, and bidding was fairly brisk, with a result that he sold 27 allotments at prices which ranged from 8s to 14s per foot. This gave a total for the afternoon of £804.

Messrs. Hardie and Gorman last Saturday submitted the Lansdoune Estate, at Concord. Four lots were sold at prices ranging from £3 15s to £5 per foot. Total sales, £835.

Tuesday being Anniversary Day, the opportunity was seized to offer a number of seaside and mountain estates. These holiday auctions were fairly successful. Messrs. Arthur Rickard and Co., Ltd., held a very successful auction of the beautiful Peninsular Estate, Pittwater. Eleven lots and a cottage were sold, totalling over £1350. The intense heat kept a large number away, many having since called at the offices of the company with a view of inspecting the estate this week-end. Arrangements have been made to convey intending buyers holding plans from Church Point. Motor takes you to this spot from Narrabeen (electric tram terminus) for 1s 6d, and a motor launch from Church Point will take you to the estate free of charge.

Towrodgi Park sale, at Corrimal, on Anniversary Day by Mr. H. F. Cotterell, took place amid ideal surroundings, and on the shore of the lake. There was a good attendance, and some 23 lots were disposed of for £618, at prices ranging from 18s 6d per foot to 7s 6d.

Bondi provided a sale on Anniversary Day. Messrs. O'Donnell Bros. sold by public auction and private contract 10 allotments in O'Donnell's Estate, Bondi Beach, at prices ranging from 28s per foot to £2 per foot.

Messrs. H. W. Horning and Co. conducted a sale at Cronulla, and disposed of several lots of the Hub of Cronulla Estate, at prices ranging from £4 10s to £4 15s per foot, which gave a total for the afternoon of £1258.

Messrs. Hugh Duff and Co. offered the balance of the Kitchener Estate at Cronulla on Tuesday by auction, and sold the lot at prices ranging from £2 to £4 per foot. The attendance was good, and the bidding was spirited. The total sales reached £1402.

Messrs. Richardson and Wrench offered an estate at Dee Why, and sold 15 lots at prices ranging from 15s to 22s per foot. This yielded a total of £630.

On the Mountains Mr. Paterson submitted the Wentworth Lake Estate at Wentworth Falls, and succeeded in disposing of several blocks at prices up to 25s per foot.

TO-DAY'S SALES.

There are one or two sales fixed for this afternoon. Messrs. Hardie and Gorman will offer a number of cottages in the Sargent's Estate at Beecroft. There are nine beautiful cottages to select a home ready for occupation from, in a suburb which is regarded by the doctors as a health-giving district, with pleasant surroundings.

Messrs. Raine and Horne have a sale arranged for this afternoon, which should prove attractive. It is at Pymble, and known as the Carson Estate. The land is in a commanding position, and ought to sell readily. There are 18 large residential blocks to select from.

Mr. C. H. Crammond will conduct a sale at Cabramatta, eight minutes from the railway station. He will offer the Kaloola Estate, comprising 80 good building blocks, near the post-office. These are ideal home sites, which can be purchased on very easy terms. City water and all conveniences are available; special concession tickets will be issued by the auctioneer to those wishing to attend the sale.

APPROACHING SALES.

Next Saturday one or two good subdivision sales have been arranged for. For instance, Messrs. Raine and Horne will offer the Plateau Estate on the heights of Mosman. This comprises some of the best available building land in this popular suburb. It is within two minutes from the tram, and 10 minutes from the Spit Junction. There are 29 choice residential sites to select from. These command extensive views of the Harbour.

Epping, one of the most progressive of our northern suburbs, will provide a sale next Saturday, when Messrs. Hardie and Gorman will submit Pratley's Orchard Estate, which is about eight minutes from the railway station. There are 51 allotments with panoramic views to select from. The estate is in a select position. It is wonderful how attractive Epping has become of late years. It is on the Strathfield to Hornsby line, which is so strongly recommended to delicate persons requiring the dry, invigorating air.

Messrs. Slade and Brown will next Saturday offer the Avenue Estate, in the Kuring-gai Chase-road and Eastern-road. This is an elevated position, opposite some fine residential properties. An ideal home site.

On Saturday, February 13, Arthur Rickard and Co., Ltd., will auction their new subdivision of the Dawn Estate, Killara, at 3 p.m., on the ground.

The Meteor Estate, Hornsby, will also be auctioned by Arthur Rickard and Co., Ltd., on Saturday, February 20, at 3 p.m., on the ground.

And at Pittwater on Anniversary Day, 11 lots and cottage of Flood's Peninsula Estate were sold, £1355/16/4. In conjunction with the Haymarket Permanent Land, Building, and Investment Co., farm 9 and block 42 of farm 11 (area 271 ac. 0 rds. 26 perches) of the Purraccabad Farms, were sold, and realised £2216/1/.

Hardie and Gorman Proprietary, Ltd., report having sold by public aution and private treaty the following:—Lilyfield: Under instructions from the Intercolonial Investment Company, Ltd., the whole of the subdivision, comprising 37 allotments, being portions of the Tram Terminus Estate, at prices ranging from £3/10/ per foot to £10 per foot, totalling £3822/10/. Canley Vale: Lansdowne Farm, comprising an area of about 22½ acres, having frontages to main Liverpool-road and Prospect Creek, with residence and other improvements thereon, for £1025. Burwood-Concord: Four allotments of land, being portions of Neich's Lansdowne Estate, at prices ranging from £3/15/ per foot to £5 per foot, totalling £882/12/3. Strathfield: Cottage known as Wora-Nora, fronting Alviston-street, for £640. Blackheath (in conjunction with T. R. Rodriques): Three allotments, being portions of the Shillington Estate, for £200. Ourimbah: Block of land, being portion of Armstrong's Estate, at £25 per acre.

Stanton and Son, Ltd., report having sold the following properties during the week:—Woollahra, Vacant land, being lot 3 and part of lot 2, Rosemont Estate, fronting Rosemont-avenue, at £25 per foot, £2200. Haberfield Garden Suburb: 52ft to O'Connor-street, with brick cottage residence, Lovelly, for £1025; 45ft to Ramsay-road, with brick cottage, Inverugie, for £1250. Rosebery Model and Industrial Suburb: Lot 199, 40ft to Harcourt-parade, with brick cottage thereon, for £685; lot 151, 50ft 10in to Tweedmouth-avenue, vacant land, at £3/15/ per foot. Summer Hill: Brick cottage, in Henson-street, for £955.

Messrs. Hugh Duff and Co. report having sold the following properties during the week:—Whole of the Kitchener Estate, and one allotment Cronulla Heights Estate, in conjunction with C. Monro, £1400; cottage, Cronulla, £725; cottage, Holland-street, Chatswood, £800.

Mr. C. Monro reports having sold the following properties at Cronulla this week:—One shop and dwelling, brick, with 16ft of land, Cronulla-street, £1700; w.b. cottage, fronting Ocean Esplanade, £725; 40ft, Lewis-street, £140; lots 41, 42, 18, 20, Harnleigh Estate, £192; and in conjunction with Hugh Duff and Co., lots 1 to 17 of Kitchener Estate (being the whole estate), at prices from £2 to £4 per foot. Total sales, £1402.

Property sales for this month made by Mr. H. Lamb:—Shop investment in George-street, near Bathurst-street, at £500 per foot; large area of vacant land near Gloucester, North Coast, at 30s per acre. Total sales, £26,950.

Messrs. Walter Hardie and Co., report the following sales:—Key of Torquay Estate (in conjunction with R. T. Forsythe), 7 lots, £353/10/; Watson's Bay, land, having 47ft frontage, to New South Head-road, £200; Paddington, pair houses off Oxford-street, £1300; Burwood, freehold building block, Park-road, £181; French's Forest, 3 acres freehold land, £300.

BANKRUPTCY BILL.

A DEPUTATION'S REQUESTS.

The members of the Federal Ministry at present carrying out their administrative duties in Sydney, spent a busy day yesterday. This was particularly so in the case of the Acting Prime Minister (Mr. Hughes).

Messrs. Ellison Rich (president of the Council of the Law Institute) and John Stinson (a member of the council) formed a deputation that waited on Mr. Hughes in his capacity as Attorney-General, in connection with the details of the Bankruptcy Bill. The secretary to the Attorney-General's Department (Mr. R. R. Garran) was also present.

Mr. Rich asked if the "official receiver" named in the bill was to be an officer of the Commonwealth; and whether the provision in regard to rules might be so framed that the rules should be made by Judges of the Court, instead of—as was apparently proposed—by the Governor-in-Council, and then submitted to Parliament for approval, in the ordinary way. In regard to the matter of the "official receiver," it was provided that the debtor should file with that person. They offered the suggestion that he should file with the Registrar, unless the "official receiver" was going to occupy the position of what they knew as the Registrar of the Court. At the present, under the State Act, the official assignee could appoint his solicitor, who was usually the solicitor for the petitioning creditor. There appeared to be no provision for that in the new Commonwealth Bill. Provision was required for searches being made. They would like to see a clause to protect bills of sale, stock mortgages, and liens on wool.

Mr. Hughes asked the deputation to reduce the whole of the requests to writing, and said that every consideration would be given to them.

Senator Gardiner, Vice-President of the Executive Council, who has charge of the bill, was present, and heard the requests of the deputation.

CANADIAN MAIL SERVICE.

NEW STEAMERS FOR THE UNION COMPANY.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

Another passenger vessel of the type of the Niagara and two new cargo vessels are being constructed for the Union Steamship Company. The passenger vessel will be for the Canadian mail service, and her tonnage of 15,000 is slightly larger than that of the Niagara. She is considered to be specially adapted for the run between Sydney, Auckland, and Vancouver. Delivery was expected in April, but owing to the great activity in naval construction in England, the completion is improbable before June. Following the modern idea to gain speed, the new vessel will have a cruiser stern, and a sea speed of 16½ knots. This is slightly faster than the speed attained by the Niagara. Accommodation is provided for 460 first and second class, and 250 third-class passengers. Special attention has been paid to the storage of refrigerated cargo. The construction will be such as to permit the use of either oil fuel or coal. There will be two sets of gear turbines propelling three screws. The new vessel will follow the modern marine idea of using superheated steam to drive the engines.

A cargo vessel of 12,000 tons gross register is being constructed by Messrs. Swan, Wigham, and Richardson, at Wallsend-on-Tyne. The speed of the vessel will be nearly 15 knots, and she has been specially designed to carry frozen meat, etc. Accommodation can also be provided for passengers.

At the yards of Sir Aylton Dixon and Co., Middlesborough, a 10,000-tons cargo vessel is being built. Both vessels will be constructed with cruiser sterns, and fitted with gear turbines and triple screws driven by superheated steam. Delivery will probably be made towards the end of the year.

For the trans-Pacific service the company recently purchased the Canada Cape and the Wyandotte.

BOILER EXPLOSION.

TWO MEN KILLED.

HOBART, Friday.

A boiler explosion resulting in the death of two men occurred at the Tasmanian Fertilising Company's works, Shag Bay, Risdon, near Hobart, yesterday afternoon. The men killed were George B. Russell, aged 70, works manager, and his son, William T. Russell, 35 years of age. They were working in the bone mill when suddenly the boiler, which was situated at the end of the mill, exploded, killing William Russell instantly, and badly injuring the old man, who afterwards died. The engineer, Frederick W. Jordan, was also injured, but not seriously. The police, on proceeding to the scene of the accident, found the whole of the mill and wharf on fire. George B. Russell leaves a wife and six other grown-up children. The younger man left a wife and one child. The mill, a large wood and iron structure, and about [illegible] bags of manure, were burned.

IRRITABILITY

Irritability, like Headache, is indisputable evidence of some disorder of the body—generally of the nervous system. In the majority of cases this condition of the nervous system arises from either Indigestion or Constipation.

Tonics and other treatment will be of little value unless the cause is removed. Relieve the indigestion, stimulate the bowels to a regular natural habit and all symptoms of irritability will disappear.

To accomplish this take a course of Chamberlain's Tablets—they have a marvellous effect on the stomach, liver and bowels and relieve all disorders of those organs.

Try them next time you feel irritable.

To stimulate the digestive organs, cleanse and invigorate the stomach, and induce a natural, regular habit of the bowels, nothing equals

FARM AND STATION.

A CATTLE YARN.

(By H.K.B.)

We were camped out at the Gilgai, an out-station on "Mybah," away out in the north-west of New South Wales. Mybah was now a "mixed" station, but formerly had been a cattle station only. I was out there, gaining colonial experience. Joe Anderson was in charge, and there were half a dozen men and a couple of black boys in the camp, as we were about to start lamb-marking.

The camp was fixed near the old stockyards, the outstation hut being too limited in capacity to accommodate more than two or three. The weather was warm, and mosquitoes were plentiful and musical. There was a large tank near by, on the edge of a cane-grass swamp. It had been originally of twenty thousand cubic yards capacity, but was now silted up to half that content. The camp had been fixed—that is, the cook's fire made, and "supper" served, and we lay, smoking, on our rugs, surrounded by a ring of cow-dung fires as a palliative against the attacks of the voracious mosquitoes. The bells of our horses, feeding round the edge of the swamp, the croaking of frogs, shrilling of crickets, and buzzing of mosquitoes, filled the night air with sounds, not very noticeable because so continuous. If there had been a sudden cessation of these, the effect would have been much the same as when constant noisy machinery is suddenly stopped.

"Some years ago," said Joe Anderson, "there was a big smash amongst the cattle in this paddock. All the water was dried up, except this tank, but as there was apparently 8ft or 10ft of water here we thought the cattle were all right for a month or so, at anyrate. We were busy elsewhere, and this being an outlying paddock, it so happened that no one had been out here for a couple of weeks. I came over one night from the next paddock where we were camped, 10 miles away, to have a look, as I did not like leaving the tank so long without seeing that all was right, no cattle bogged, or anything else wrong. To my surprise I found all the cattle which were running in the paddock in and around the tank. A hundred or so were smothered in the soft mud which was all there was in the tank, to the depth of 8ft or 10ft, and another hundred were lying around, dead or dying from thirst. The rest of the poor brutes were walking about, every now and then coming back to the sloppy mud-smeared batters of the tank, in the vain hope that there might be some water which they could drink, and adding all the time to the numbers which were bogged and smothered in the oozy mud. What had appeared to be a tank half full of water a fortnight before was only a trap, a few inches of water, with a lot of mud under it. As you can see that white-coloured water off the cane-grass flat prevents one from even guessing how deep it is. What little water there was had been so churned up by the cattle as to become undrinkable, and the unfortunate beasts must have been nearly a week without a drink, and it was very hot weather, too. Out of about eight hundred we lost about three hundred before we got them to the dam in the creek, 10 miles away."

"How did you get the poor beasts along at all, when they were so bad?"

"You may depend we had a job. You see, I hurried back to the camp, for I could do nothing by myself; we had a water-cart with us, as it was a dry time. I had this filled while the horses were being run in, and sent a man in to the head station for assistance. Then I started with the water-cart for this tank, and rode ahead with three of the stockmen, and got the cattle together as well as we could, and tried to drive them away from the tank in the direction of the dam. But we might as well have tried to drive a mulga forest, and so had to await the arrival of the water-cart."

"Oh—I say, now—what use would a couple of hundred gallons of water be to five or six hundred thirsty cattle?"

"It saved their lives—or most of them. You see, when the cart came within half a mile of the cattle, according to instructions the man driving it threw a couple of buckets of water out, scattering it over the low bushes and dust. The little wind there was was favourable, and in a few minutes there was an uneasy movement amongst the cattle; they started sniffing and bellowing, and all at once one took the lead, and all, moving as quickly as they could run, made in the direction of the water-cart, guided by their sense of smell. As soon as the driver of the cart saw them coming he turned the tap of the tank half on, whipped up his horses, and put them at their best pace. He had almost to race for his life, so eager became the thirst-maddened animals behind him; but I had told him not to spare the horses, and eventually he reached the dam in the midst of a surging, bellowing mass of animals, many of which, knowing the dam, or smelling the water in it, had rushed past him. We horsemen kept hard at work on the tail of the mob, dropping beasts every hundred yards, but always urging on the main mob. We had cut the fence to allow them to get into the next paddock, and it was lucky that we had done so, for they would have carried a lot of fencing away otherwise, and crippled a lot of themselves in doing so. In a couple of hours all but 'the tail'" had reached the dam. There was no chance of checking them, of course, and we lost another forty or fifty there. By the time we arrived, tired and dusty, some five hundred or so were standing about, looking very much like poisoned pups. By hard work we got about fifty or sixty in after that. Ever since that time I never let one of these tanks go for more than a week without having a look at it, on any account whatever. That little turnout cost the boss about a thousand pounds, straight off."

"Well—if I had been told that a couple of hundred gallons of water in a tank could have saved the lives of six hundred cattle, I should not have believed it. Jacky-Jacky!—put some more mosquito fuel on those fires, will you? Good night, Joe—it's nine o'clock, and time to turn in."

ITEMS.

Fallowing is being largely followed in the Coolamon district, and rain is wanted for further areas to be ploughed in anticipation of sowing for next season's harvest. Additional areas, up to 15,000 acres, are being put under crop in the vicinity of Marrar.

There are indications that a much larger area is going under wheat next season in the Goulburn-Crookwell country than has been the case for many years. The Government guarante of 4s a bushel is said to be encouraging extension of the wheat area.

The fact that in such a district as Coolamon, where wheat land is often estimated to be worth £10 per acre, a large area alongside a railway line is given over to sheep, draws emphatic attention to the need of all land being brought under cultivation where practicable. There are share farmers willing to take up the areas in question.

"We may look forward," said an English authority recently, "to a greater revival of prosperity in manufacturing and commercial industry after the conclusion of peace, which will react upon agriculture. I cannot, therefore, but think that we have come to the end of that long period in which grass has been found more profitable than tillage."

A settler at Renmark irrigation area is trying an experiment by running lambs on portions of the banks of the main irrigation channel through his property, which had become overgrown with lucerne, couch grass, fat hen, and other growth. So far the trial promises to be successful, as the lambs are developing well, besides saving labour in keeping the channel clear of vegetation.

An American writer says:—Good horses are in price too high, in numbers too few. Needed types are disappearing. Legislation adverse to racing stopped the breeding and raising of trotters and pacers through all the States not specially blessed with green pastures and ripe statesmen. The great exodus of youth from farm to city began with the first fool act against fast horses. It is a mistake to suppress or discourage horseracing. The blood of the racing type is required.

BEE CULTURE.

(BY E. E. ABRAM.)

Assuming the beginner has obtained a hive of bees, and already knows something about the individuals composing the colony, the first question will be how and when should he place the hive. This is an important point, and there are some lessons connected with it that must be learnt. First, bees when first flying after removal of their hive to a new place hover about a long time and notice all the surroundings, so as to mark the locality. When once they have done this they always come back to exactly the same spot, but if the hive be moved after it is once in position for a day the bees go back to the old position, and hover about until they get exhausted and die, unless the new position is not more than four or five feet from the first position. Again, if the hive of bees come from any place within one and a half or two miles, most of the bees on their first flight go back to their old home, and either beg themselves into another hive or die about the place. So, if a beginner purchases a hive or hives of bees, let him get them from some place at least two miles distant; and before he fixes them up at home let him decide where to place them once for all, and place them there before he allows them freedom.

Select a part of the grounds or garden where the bees can be well overlooked. It must not be too shaded, as plenty of sunlight is desirable, but some shade from the hot summer sun is necessary; it should not be too near the house, and should be sheltered as much as possible from the cold south and south-west winds. The hives should be placed on stands or benches, standing at least six inches from the ground, and away from ditches, damp places, pools, etc. It is also very necessary that there be an open space in front of the hive to give room for the bees to start their flight, and when returning swoop down on their alighting board without coming against any obstacles. No weeds or tall grass should be allowed to grow close around the hive. It does not much matter which way the entrance of the hive faces, but east or north-east is perhaps the best. It is as well to avoid placing the hives so that the entrance faces south, as most of our rough, cold weather comes from that direction; therefore, it will be blown into the entrance of the hive, which would be harmful to the bees during the winter months.

It is assumed that, as a rule, beginners purchase their first bees in a frame hive, as the ordinary common box would be of little use commercially or for a hobby or scientific experiments. When placing the hive on the new stand it is advisable to put some kind of a cover over it to keep the rain out; a good board or a piece of galvanised iron with some weight on the top will do. See also that the floor or bottom board is slightly lifted at the back, say, about a quarter of an inch, so that the entrance of the hive is a little lower than the back. This prevents the rain entering the hive, as whatever rain should beat on the entrance board will run off.

When bees in hives are moved from one place to another they are usually imprisoned by tacking wire gauze over the top of the hive and over the entrance, and the cover is then left off so the bees will get sufficient air through the wire over the top. This must be removed before the bees can get out. The correct way of proceeding will be as follows: Place the hive upon the stand or bench already prepared with the entrance, directing the way intended, then apply a little smoke in the entrance and over the top of the hive. After waiting a few seconds the wire over the entrance can be removed, using more smoke if required. The wire over the top can then be taken off, and the cover placed on. In a very short time, if the day is fine, the bees will be all out, playing about the hive, taking short flights and bearings of their new home. The hive should not be opened and examined for at least two or three days, until the bees get properly used to the new locality.

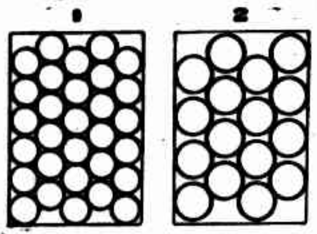
FRUIT PACKING.

(BY ELBERTA.)

One of the most important factors in the successful marketing of fruit is proper packing. Packing should be a matter of first consideration, for no matter how fine a quality or grade the fruit may be, owing to rough handling and travelling probably long distances, if it is not well packed it will not be in first-class condition when it is opened at the market.

With the extension of the fruit trade in the neighbouring States, the man who does not keep himself abreast of the times will soon find his fruit in the background. Growers should by all means educate themselves to the best methods of packing the fruit they grow. It has been truly said, "The better the pack the better the fruit." And so the better the fruit the better the price.

With the introduction of the new standard half-bushel case growers have found it extremely hard to pack successfully owing to the fruit packing either too high or too low. The difficulty can largely be done away with by adopting the numerical or diagonal pack. If the grower could be prevailed upon to adopt this method the buyer would quickly appreciate the benefit. The latter would discover that the fruit picked in this fashion arrives in better condition, and the cases are more evenly filled.



The above diagrams represent the bottom of the case, and show the method of the diagonal pack. If they are followed carefully it will be found quite simple. They are the packs most used for apples and pears. No. 1 is known as the 3 and 2 pack, and is used for fruit from 2in to 2¼in in diameter. To pack place the box on the bench, and slightly raise the end farthest away from the packer with a small block. Then select your fruit as nearly as possible the size required for the pack. Place the first fruit in the left-hand corner of the case, and the second exactly in the middle, and the third in the opposite corner, as shown above. In the two hollows thus made place Nos. 4 and 5, and so on, in threes and twos, till the layer is completed. The second layer is started by placing two fruits in the spaces between the bottom three, and so on, always placing the fruit in the space between the fruits in the layer below till the case is filled.

Diagram 2 is used for fruits from 2¼in to 3in, and is known as the 2 and 2 pack. The start is made by placing one fruit in the left-hand corner of the case and the second midway between the first fruit and the opposite corner. This will leave a space on either side of the last placed fruit. Into this space firmly place the third and fourth fruits, and so on until the layer is completed. This should fit quite tightly from end to end and from side to side. The next layer is placed in precisely the same way, only starting from the opposite corner. In placing the second layer in any of these packs it will be found convenient to run the rows diagonally across the case.

As the packing season is well advanced these notes will serve the growers in late districts, as they may benefit by the experience gained in early districts. These packs have been most successful this season.

THE CATTLE TICK.

WHAT AMERICA IS DOING.

The authorities and stockowners in the United States are giving the cattle tick no quarter. Lauderdale Co. and Tensas parish were released from quarantine for Texas fever tick on September 1, as part of nearly 7000 square miles of southern territory which had been freed from this pest. Both of these counties made unusual progress in getting rid of the tick and so putting themselves in a position where their cattle could be shipped to market without quarantine restrictions, and also where they can safely import northern cattle for breeding or dairy purposes. Lauderdale county succeeded in ridding its territory of the tick in five months. In Tensas parish active dipping of cattle was inaugurated early in April, and that parish joined the white area on September 1. Yet we are dawdling along for years with a large area of country under quarantine, with consequent penalising of stock-owners. And the Department of Agriculture has not, apparently, the enterprise or good sense to sufficiently appreciate the one man in the department with a knowledge of American methods, and is thus losing his services.

THE WOOL TRADE.

AN EXCITING PERIOD.

A booming market has been experienced during the week in the disposal of good, free merinos and crossbreds. A number of noted New England, Gwydir, and Monaro wools have been catalogued, and high prices have been realised. Not only, however, in the actual dealing with the catalogues has the trade been moved to concert pitch; but also in its endeavour to safeguard against any trading with the enemy in any shape or form. Naturally the war has been a creator of precedents, and the season has embraced a series of exciting incidents. It was on the eve of the war that the first series of sales for the current statistical year were held. Not only was war on a gigantic scale imminent, but a European conflagration, involving the British Empire, was threatening. This, naturally, paralysed the market. The declaration of war followed after the sales. All became a blank, and everything in connection with wool depended upon the British navy. Europe, so far as wool-using was concerned, was completely shut off. Our Allies could not proceed with the manufacture of wool in Europe, and to trade with the enemy automatically became a treasonable offence. In a little while, it was possible to sell small quantities of wool, and to ship wool to the United Kingdom, Japan, and the local mills, with the aid of Yorkshire, developed a market, more particularly for crossbred wool, to be used in military equipment. Meanwhile the Imperial Government prohibited the export of wool from the United Kingdom and the Commonwealth Government to neutral countries. All these necessary measures were taken as a precaution against wool reaching the enemy by indirect routes. So zealous were the Commonwealth authorities, that even export to Japan was disallowed for a little while, for fear any wool might be re-exported from Japanese ports to neutral countries, and thence to enemy country. These precautions naturally restricted the demand for wool, and disturbed the market; but being at war, and engaged in such a war as will go down the centuries as a stand for human ideals, growers, buyers, brokers, having no enemy predilections or sympathies, took it all as a necessary sequence of events that were the best that could be devised under the circumstances. More recently, the embargo against the export of wool to the United States was lifted, subject to certain easy guarantee conditions. It is this latest phase of the export regulations and the entry into the market of certain firms supposed to have German or Austrian connections in America that has stirred the trade to its depths.

At the instance of the buyers a certain stand was taken in the Sydney saleroom on Monday last, and bids were refused from one or two buyers. It was also the subject of an influential deputation to the Acting Prime Minister yesterday, and doubtless stringent measures will be taken against any possible trading with the enemy. There is no objection to America securing wool supplies for genuine American consumption, but there is an overpowering feeling against wool being shipped for ultimate German or Austrian destination, however circuitous the route may be. The stand is taken by all sections of the industry that it is just as necessary that wool should not be shipped to German principals in America, or firms in America with German connections, as to Germany or Austria. This is also desired by the Government. Mr. Hughes expressed the sentiment of everyone when he said that to allow German firms to trade with Germany now was an intolerable, impossible, and unfair handicap on buyers for the Allies. The request that the Federal Government should lend its aid was nothing but fair, and the request that the Government should do everything possible to prevent Germans, of whose bona fides there was any suspicion, would be acceded to. That, indeed, is satisfactory. Let every firm prove its bona fides; for it rankles in the breast of buyers from Belgium and France, whose country has been devastated, wool mills wrecked, wool commandeered, and fellow-countrymen, women, and children slaughtered, that there should be any possibility of such enemy associates being permitted to trade alongside them and compete against them in the Sydney or any other Australian wool market. With regard to the issuing of licenses, he could not commit himself. He incidentally mentioned that the wool-users in the United Kingdom were able to practically take the whole of the clip. So, if the matter of supposed alien enemy buying can be satisfactorily cleared, and the United Kingdom step in and take larger quantities of wool, the position is indeed a good one.

Through the public holiday on Tuesday last there were only three selling days in the Sydney market this week, and the limit was fixed at 20,000 bales. This aggregate was slightly exceeded, the 13 firms of selling brokers offering 20,051 bales, of which 18,737 bales were realised at auction. How buoyant the demand has been is shown not only in the excellent clearances from the rostrum, but also in the sales during the week of 3844 bales ex catalogues, and 1015 of uncatalogued wools, a grand total of 23,643 bales, at very firm values. The bulk of the wools were merino, with a moderate proportion of crossbred. There was strong buying on American account, also the United Kingdom, with good support from operators on French, Japanese, and Belgian account. Values tended in sellers' favour. Rates current for the principal descriptions of the staple may be given as follow:—

BRADFORD TOPS HIGHER.

Exceedingly firm, with fair business, was yesterday's report of the Bradford tops market, with quotations 1d higher since last week on sixty-fours, super sixties (merino), and forty-sixes (medium crossbred); other descriptions, except fifty-sixes (fine crossbred), were ½d higher, the only count to show no change in prices being fifty-sixes. To-day's prices show how inaccurately topmakers forecasted on December 19 the demand for February delivery. They dropped for forward delivery sixty-fours tops 1½d below the then spot prices, anticipating that quality at 24½d; whereas the price now stands at 27d, a difference of 2½d in six weeks. Our comparative table showing the course of spot prices from December 19 last to date, with February delivery quotations on December 19, is as follows:—

INTERSTATE MARKETS.

On Monday last the fifth series of sales were held in Adelaide, when some 9000 bales were catalogued. The selection was a fairly good one, eliciting competition from the Yorkshire section, which secured the bulk of the offerings, with some support on American and French account. In sympathy with other markets, values showed a marked improvement on the rates current in Adelaide at the fourth series.

Attractive selections have been submitted in Melbourne and Geelong this week. Large clearances have been effected, and as some choice merino wools from the western district have been catalogued, record prices have been paid for both merino and comeback. At Geelong on Thursday merino sold to 18½d, and comeback to 16½d. The offerings and sales in the principal markets to latest dates compare as follow:—

SYDNEY WOOL RECEIPTS.

Now that public sales are proceeding, and a fair volume of wool passing into consumption, consignments that were held in the country in the early stages of the war are now coming forward freely; consequently, there has been a material increase in the receipts of wool by rail and boat during the week as compared to the corresponding week last year; the decrease for the season, however, is still a large one, as may be seen in the following comparative table of arrivals:—

NEXT WEEK'S SYDNEY ROSTER.

All the selling brokers will submit catalogues next week, and the limit is fixed at 25,000 bales. The large lot roster is as follows:—

Monday, February 1.—(1) Winchcombe, Carson, Ltd.; (2) New Zealand Loan and Mercantile Agency Company, Ltd.; (3) Australian Mercantile, Land, and Finance Company, Ltd.

Tuesday, February 2.—(1) Dalgety and Co., Ltd.; (2) Hill, Clark, and Co., Ltd.; (3) John Bridge and Co., Ltd.

Wednesday, February 3.—(1) Co-operative Wool and Produce Company, Ltd.; (2) Country Producers' Selling Company, Ltd.; (3) Pitt, Son, and Badgery, Ltd.; (4) Schute, Bell, and Co., Ltd.

Thursday, February 4.—(1) Pastoral Finance Association, Ltd.; (2) Harrison, Jones, and Devlin, Ltd.; (3) Goldsbrough, Mort, and Co., Ltd.

WOOL SHIPMENTS.

Shipments have been made on a very fair scale during the week, eight vessels clearing the Sydney Customs for the United Kingdom and other ports, with wool aggregating 14,150 bales. During the corresponding week last year 13 vessels cleared with 32,724 bales. How the quantities for the season compare with the corresponding period last year are shown as follow:—

MUNICIPAL FRANCHISE.

THE SPECIAL BILL.

DEFENDED BY MR. GRIFFITH.

Reference was made yesterday by Mr. Griffith, Minister for Works, to remarks in the annual report of the P.L.L. on the subject of the removal of the franchise from the Local Government Amendment Bill.

"I don't think," said Mr. Griffith, "the members of the Executive can have known the whole of the facts. The position is this: The new bill repeals not only the Local Government Act, but half a dozen others, and embodies them all in a condensed and improved measure. Of this great amount of machinery, the bulk is non-contentious, being the result of experience in the working of the Act; it is merely to make the instrument more efficient, and is generally the outcome of recommendations of local government conferences. In addition to the above, there are a number of other matters, such as the extension of the functions of the local governing bodies and the widening of their powers, which, though contentious, do not raise any party issue, and which I expect to be debated and decided on their merits in committee, irrespective of party lines. The only matter which raises a definite party issue is that of the franchise, and I felt from the tone of the debate on the introduction of the bill that while that remained in it every one of the 230 clauses of the bill would be fought by the Opposition through all their stages. By the course adopted this difficulty is removed, and the main bill, as I stated before, will now be debated and decided on the merits of its provisions and the efficiency of its machinery. This will leave the bill without any franchise whatever, but this is provided for in a second measure, which will be taken concurrently, and which will be decided on a direct party test.

"When intimating to the House," added Mr. Griffith, "the lines I proposed to take, I stated definitely that both bills would be carried simultaneously through both Houses, and that unless the Franchise Bill were passed, the other would not be proceeded with. Obviously, this is the only course to take; the new bill repeals the existing Act, and without the franchise would, of course, be inoperative. It is merely a matter of convenience—there is no question of any abandonment of principle. The debate on the franchise question took place last night, and after producing many speeches of a distinctly high order, was decided on a clear-cut party vote in favour of the adult franchise."

GOVERNMENT HOUSE.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—Anent your article in this morning's issue, I sincerely trust that the Government will adopt your suggestion re assigning the buildings, with sufficient land, for the official residence of the Governor-General or State Governor. It having been so long occupied for that purpose the residence has become traditional. I quite approve of Mr. Flowers' wish that sufficient land be taken for the widening of Macquarie-street; in fact, in the City Council I have always supported that proposition, as the records will show. I hope no time will be lost in completing the widening of what should be one of Sydney's most important thoroughfares.

While the Government have gained a legal victory, no one can take exception to enthusiastic citizens testing the validity of their action. I claim that there is a moral question as well as a legal one, and the people of the State, as evidenced by their loyalty, have still to be considered. As chairman of the citizens' committee, I again appeal to the Government to retain the little hereditary history we possess, and continue the residence of the King's representative in the principal city of the Commonwealth of Australia.

Apart from any other and more cogent reasons, might I point out that the Governor-General's residence, as well as the residence of the State Governor, is a source of great revenue to the people, especially the trading portion, and the employees in many branches of industry. Society is to be gratified, what harm results to their pomp and vanities so long as their wealth is distributed in the right quarters, which undoubtedly it is, especially in cases of hospitality.

In conclusion, I trust that now the battle between the people and the Government is over, the latter will review their previous action, and do something for the former, who have put up a fight for which they are not ashamed; on the contrary, the citizens committees have had evidence from all sides that their action was just.

I am, etc.,

G. T. CLARKE.

SHORTAGE IN TRAM RECEIPTS

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—Mr. Harper in an interview the other day complained of the shrinkage in tram and train passengers during December, and further remarked that it was a good thing the fares had been increased to make up for the discrepancy.

Now, with all due respect to Mr. Harper and the controlling element of our tramway policy, I think a mistake has been made in increasing the tram fares—particularly on the Sundays. The people in a quiet way have felt the extortion and have simply reduced their travelling. Last Sunday half a dozen young fellows I know proposed to go out to Narrabeen, when someone said, "The fare had gone up on Sundays now," and the tramway department lost a few shillings there. This is going on all over Sydney. Imagine charging twopence to the station from the Quay when other days it is a penny. It is absolute robbery, and if a private company did it indignation meetings would be held everywhere. Governments, as monopolists, are certainly privileged.

I remember in Glasgow before the trams were taken over by the Corporation the weekly receipts were something like £4500. The Corporation, on taking them over, inaugurated a halfpenny section, and right away the receipts went up to £6000, and with every extension of the penny section they further increased. There is magic in the penny, and this our Tramway Commissioners have apparently to learn. I would suggest that a commission be sent to Glasgow, Birmingham, and the other big towns in the old country, to find out how these towns can reduce fares and increase distance, and still make the lines pay. Our system is an excellent service, but it looks as if it had still a bit to learn.

I am, etc.,

G. H. LONGMUIR.

A slight sensation was caused recently among the Lovat Scouts by a rumour that the well-known revivalist, Gipsy Smith, had joined their ranks. It turned out, however, that the unexpected recruit was not Gipsy Smith, but a younger, though not unknown, revivalist, Gipsy Pat Smith.

BEAUTY'S FAVOURITE.

The article which excels all others in improving the beauty of the skin is naturally and deservedly "beauty's favourite." This has been the acknowledged and honoured position held by PEARS' SOAP for nearly 120 years. It won, and has maintained that position by virtue of its complete purity, and by the possession of those special emollient properties which soften, refine, and impart natural colour to the skin. No other Soap possesses these qualities in such a pre-eminent degree as

PEARS.

CROSSLEY GAS AND OIL ENGINES AND SUCTION GAS PLANTS.

No other Firm has had the experience which Crossley's possess.

No other Engine can compare with the new "Crossley" Engine, either for Quality, Economy, Reliability, or Design.

The "Crossley" is an Engine with a great reputation, and the prices are little, if any, higher than those of less-known makes; therefore, it is always the safest policy and truest economy to buy a "CROSSLEY" ENGINE.

CAMEL HAIR BELTING. CAMEL HAIR BELTING. British Manufacture, Manchester, England. Unequalled in Durability, Transmitting Capacity, and Gripping Power. Its Uniformity of Construction shows it to be the Best Belt for awkward drives. Read what a leading firm of Timber Merchants say re Angle Drives in comparison with Leather:—

"Your two 16in 'Camel Hair' Belts have now been running for the past eighteen months, and have given every satisfaction.

"Your 9in Belt on ANGLE DRIVE has been most successful, having lasted twice as long as the leather. It still runs sweetly and true on the pulleys.

"Yours faithfully, Wallis Bros., Ltd.

"(Sgd.) A. N. Wallis, Managing Director."

If you have an angle drive, or one that gives your belt a quarter or half twist, instal a "Camel Hair" Belt, and get over your difficulties.

KEEP IN TOUCH WITH THINGS, MR. BUSY BUSINESSMAN.

A Watson Inter-communication 'Phone Service is the most remarkable Time Saver of the Age. It serves every need of the Busy Business Executive. Keeps him in touch with things, and multiplies his time and opportunity for administrative work.

SEE WHAT A WATSON 'PHONE WILL DO FOR YOU. The pressure of a button gives you direct connection with every office and Department.

You cannot be cut off in the midst of talking, and no one else CAN "break in" or listen while you talk—every business secret is safe-guarded.

You can dictate a letter to your stenographer in another room.

In short, you can with the aid of a Watson 'Phone System save your own time, and cut out a lot of useless "message running."

IN YOUR PRIVATE HOUSE, TOO. "Watson" 'phones are a great service and convenience. They do away with nine-tenths of the back breaking stair climbing—you press the button and speak from the room you occupy to your wife, your servants, etc.

"Watson" 'Phones are high grade Instruments made by the Kellogg Switchboard and Supply Co., in Chicago. May we send our Representative to give you full particulars?

We may well adopt that slogan for "PIONEER" LEATHER BELTING. As witness this letter from a Power plant owner, who has the same Power transmission problems as YOU.

THE NORTHERN ROLLER MILLING CO., Auckland, N.Z., Dec. 4, '14.

"Referring to the 120 feet of 30in 5-ply 'Pioneer' Leather Belting we had from you in August, 1903. We have pleasure in stating that it has been running continuously night and day since (equal to about 23 ordinary working years), and is still doing good work."

Signed F. VIRTUE, Manager.

Why not get the same satisfaction as the writer? "Pioneer" will give it under any condition—you can make the test at OUR expense—let us send you a length TO-DAY.

STATE SESSION.

SUPERANNUATION BILL.

GRAFTON'S COMPLAINTS.

The State Parliament sat last night. The main business was the first reading of the Superannuation Bill.

FERRY STEAMER AT GRAFTON.

Mr. M'Farlane asked the Minister for Works for what reason was the ferry steamer Helen taken off the ferry service at Grafton. Was it a fact that owing to the congested condition of the traffic at the Grafton punt the Grafton Council, to meet traffic requirements, established a punt at Dobie-street; that for several years past complaints had been made respecting the inadequacy of the steam punt service; that the District Works Office recommended an improved punt service; that for the past two years the ferry traffic at Grafton had largely increased; that since the discontinuance of the steamer service approval had been given to provide increased passenger space on the punt and to widen the approach at South Grafton; how long would it take to complete the works and what arrangements had been made to carry the passenger traffic pending the provision of sufficient accommodation on the punt?

Mr. Griffith replied: It is not the policy of the Government to run free passenger ferries at the public expense in addition to steam punts at river crossings. As regards complaints, these have been constant and continual with respect to practically every service which the Government undertakes, and probably this always will be so. It has been decided to provide additional accommodation for passengers on the steam punt referred to, and this should be completed in about six weeks. The Grafton Council having declined my offer to run the Helen themselves as a passenger ferry, collecting adequate fares to reimburse expenses, the vessel has been removed and is being utilised for another purpose. A proposal has been made to me by a private company, offering to run a passenger service, and, if terms satisfactory to the Grafton and South Grafton councils can be arranged, I am willing to hand over to them, free of charge, the wharfs, waiting-rooms, etc., which were used in connection with the Helen passenger service.

UNDER-SECRETARY FOR MINES.

Mr. Burgess asked whether it was a fact that overtures had been made to the Public Service Board to extend the service of the present Under-Secretary for Mines.

Mr. Cann said he believed the extension of the service of the Under-Secretary for Mines was under the consideration of the Public Service Board. He was not aware that overtures had been made to the board to extend the service.

TREASURY BILLS.

Mr. Henley said he noted that the Government had paid Allen Taylor and Co. for a contract to supply 200,000 sleeper blocks in Treasury bills bearing interest. The Constitution Act provided that the State should pay for its debts in gold and silver. He wanted to know whether this was not a contravention of the Act, and whether it was evading the promise made the Commonwealth Government that no State Government would go on the market to borrow.

Mr. Cann, in reply to the last part of the question, said the payment was made before the compact was entered into with the Commonwealth Government. They were advised it was quite legal. It had been the practice for many years to issue inscribed stock in payment of debts.

INFLUX OF UNDESIRABLES.

In reply to Mr. Fitzpatrick, Mr. Cann said he would inquire whether it was a fact there had been a considerable influx of undesirables into this State within the past few days from other parts of the Commonwealth.

SUPERANNUATION.

In committee, Mr. Carmichael moved that it was expedient to bring in a bill to provide a State provident fund for persons employed by the State or by certain other bodies, and for the families of such persons; to provide a system of voluntary saving by such persons; to amend and repeal various Acts; and for purposes consequent thereon or incidental thereto.

Mr. Carmichael said the measure was almost similar to the bill introduced in the House in 1913. He claimed that it was a non-contentious measure, and was desired by both sides of the House. One of the new provisions of the bill provided that those members of the civil service over the age of 60 years who were likely to be retired could come under the provisions of the bill as soon as the Act was passed. It would be necessary for payments to be made from the consolidated revenue to the pensioner until such times as the fund was established. The bill would come into operation at once, so far as those members were concerned, but as to the other members it would not come into force until the Government had proclaimed it.

Mr. Fitzpatrick: What proportion of the service will come under these operations? I mean those over 60 years.

Mr. Carmichael said it was not a large proportion. The option to retire had been taken from the members, and those members over 60 years of age could be retired by the Government. The next important alteration was in regard to the definition of the word "Employer." The Government of New South Wales would now be the employer, and other bodies could be placed in the schedule of the Act at any time the House so resolved. With regard to the section dealing with deserted wives, if the husband was in an insane asylum, the whole of his pension would be available to his wife and children. Another matter was in relation to insurances. The Government could take over all the insurances, the same as was provided under the Railway Superannuation Act, relieve those insured of the payment of premiums, continue to pay the premiums, and when the policy fell due, hand over the amount, less the premiums paid, and a small amount for interest. So far as the proclamation was concerned of placing the powers of the House in the hands of the Minister, he would be prepared to give full consideration to the matter of the retention of such a provision.

OPPOSITION CRITICISM.

Mr. Wade said that the Opposition were in favour of a pension scheme to all public servants of a reasonable and fair character to the taxpayer and the service, but the complaint he had to make against the Government was that there was an apparent want of candour and sincerity on its part and an attempt to side-track the matter for an indefinite period, and get all the limelight and kudos of appearing to do a thing they would not carry out. He objected to the provision that the Bill would not come into operation till the Government proclaimed it.

In the interval between the passage of the Bill and the day when it suited the Government to proclaim it, many of the rank and file might retire, and they or their families would receive no benefit from the Act. No scheme would be a real scheme of protection unless, from the moment Parliament endorsed it, the Bill became operative.

During Mr. Wade's speech the Chairman (Mr. Thrower) directed the Sergeant-at-Arms to remove Mr. Jabez Wright for continuous and irrelevant interruption.

Mr. Wade indicated that he would give Ministerialists a chance to vote whether the Act should become immediately operative or not. Let the Government say openly and candidly they could not finance the measure at once, in which case it should not be introduced. If the Government suggested that they could finance the scheme, why did they want to rob over 90 per cent. of the service of their rights by a mere sham and pretence. There was no half-way house here.

Mr. Cohen said the Bill was the most palpable bribe ever offered to any section of the community. He objected to the differential treatment proposed by the bill so far as its operation was concerned. He desired to know what was the actuarial basis of the proposed scheme.

Mr. Fitzpatrick said the bill would be a Dead Sea fruit in the mouth of the Public Service, who would have to wait till the Government had funds available to put the scheme into operation.

The motion was agreed to, and the bill introduced and read a first time. The second reading was made an order for Monday.

ADJOURNMENT.

The House adjourned at 5.35 p.m. till Monday next.

NEW MUSIC.

We have received from the publishers, Messrs. W. J. Deane and Son, a song, entitled "Always Take a Girl named Daisy," the words of which are by Alfred Bryan and Sam M. Lewis, and the music by George W. Meyer; also "In the Heart of the City that has no Heart," the words of which are by Thomas S. Allen, and the music by Joseph M. Daly. Miss Daisy Jerome has made both popular at the Adelphi pantomime, and the music is catchy and appealing. We have also received from the same source a nautical song, "Follow Me, Boys," a stirring song, which has been sung to the theatre-going public by Miss Dorothy Harris with appreciation. The words and music are by Mr. A. J. Lawrence.

SUPERANNUATION.

BILL AMENDED.

IMPORTANT PROVISIONS.

In the Legislative Assembly last night, Mr. Carmichael moved the first reading of the Superannuation Bill.

One of the important alterations is in the preliminary paragraph of part I., which states that the Superannuation Bill, 1915, "shall commence and come into operation on a date to be notified by the Governor in the Gazette."

Another important amendment lies in the definition of "employer." In the original bill the term employer included the various public corporations, the Savings Bank, the municipal councils, the Fire Commissioners, the Trustees of the Art Gallery, Australian Museum, Sydney Grammar School, and the councils of shires. In the present bill, employer means, "the Government of New South Wales, and such other bodies as are mentioned in schedule 3 to this bill, or as may be added to such, in pursuance of this Act." Schedule 3 is as follows:—The Commissioners of the Government Savings Bank of New South Wales, the Pastures' Protection Boards, the Municipal Council of Sydney, the Board of Fire Commissioners of New South Wales.

The same basis of contributions and pensions dependent upon the salary received and the amount of pension contributed for is maintained in the present bill as was provided for in the bill of 1913.

In connection with the older members of the service, the original bill provided for special concessions in regard to the contributions of officers over the age of 30. Similar provisions are maintained in the present bill, but the right to contribute for additional units over those for which the concession is made is prescribed to officers under the age of 55 years. The special "Government" pensions to Government officers over the age of 60 will apply in full to those who have no rights under the Civil Service Superannuation Act of 1884 to pensions or gratuities. To those who have existing rights under previous Superannuation Acts the special concessions apply to the extent of the difference between such rights and the amount of £104 to which they are permitted to subscribe. In other words, any officer who has the right to a pension of less than £104 under the old Superannuation Bill of 1884 may surrender such right, and by paying the difference in premium as at the age of 30, may secure a pension of £104, with widows and orphans' collateral pensions. An ex-contributor has his contributions to the old fund secured to him intact, but he may surrender his right to gratuity, if he so desires, in order to take advantage of the 30 years' concession. That is, an officer who has a gratuity of the actuarial value of, say, £1000 may surrender such gratuity for a pension of £104, paying an annual premium upon the difference between such gratuity and the capital value of such pension.

An important amendment of the original bill is the proposal for pensions for persons over 60 who will be retired after the passing of the bill. Such pensions are made available from the consolidated revenue direct until such time as the Superannuation Fund shall be established. Under the previous bill the charge was made upon the fund, to be recouped from the consolidated revenue—the amount of payment will not be altered so much as the method of distributing the charge. It is proposed under the present bill to withdraw the option of the annuitant to retire from the service and confine the pension at present to those who are retired by the Government.

Another important amendment lies in the provisions in regard to insurances. At the present time public officers are required to insure their lives for amounts proportional to the salary received. It has been pointed out repeatedly that considerable hardship will follow if public officers are required to contribute to the Superannuation Fund and at the same time, in their own interests, are required to maintain their existing insurance policies. The new bill provides that the board, after the lapse of a certain period, may take over the payments of all insurances at present in force at the request of the officer concerned.

At the present time the annual payment of insurance to private companies by the members of the Public Service amounts to £28,947 13s 11d. A number of tables show the operations of the proposals for officers of various ages. Thus, an officer of from 16 to 23 years, with salaries ranging from £57 to £130, for an annual contribution of £3 could insure for a pension of £52 to himself, £26 to his prospective widow, and £13 to prospective children up to the age of 16 years. Officers of 27 to 35 with salaries ranging from £158 to £206 for an annual payment of £5 10s could secure a personal pension of £78, a widow's pension of £39, and a pension of £13 for each child up to the age of 16. From 50 to 60 officers on salaries of from £262 to £283, on payment of an annual contribution of £22 10s, may secure a personal pension of £130, a widow's pension of £65, and the ordinary pension for children.

NATURALISATION.

PROPOSED NEW CONDITIONS.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

One of the first measures to be introduced by the Federal Ministry when Parliament resumes in April will be a new naturalisation bill.

An Imperial Act came into operation on January 1, establishing for the first time the status of citizenship of the British Empire. Before, however, the Commonwealth can enjoy all the privileges conferred by such status, new legislation is necessary, and the bill to be submitted to the Federal Parliament will bring Australian legislation into line with the Imperial Act.

The New Citizenship Act, which the Imperial Government at Berlin enacted early last year in evident anticipation of the war, Germans who swore allegiance to other countries might, before doing so, secretly obtain the sanction of their own Government to remain German citizens.

The bill will be found to commence with a definition of British subjects, which includes any person born within his Majesty's dominion, any person born out of his Majesty's dominion, whose father was a British subject at the time of the person's birth, and any person born aboard a British ship, whether in foreign territorial waters or not. This provision, however, will not apply to aboriginal natives of Asia and Africa, or the islands of the Pacific, with the exception of New Zealand. The Governor-General may grant a certificate of naturalisation to any alien who satisfies him that he is either residing in his Majesty's dominion for a period of not less than five years (the present Commonwealth term is two years), or has been in the service of the Crown for not less than five years within the last eight years before application. Provided, further, that he is of good character, and has an adequate knowledge of the English language, and that he intends, if his application is granted, either to reside in his Majesty's dominions or to enter or continue in the service of the Crown. The residence required by the preceding provision is residence in Australia for not less than one year immediately preceding the application, and previous residence either in Australia or in some other part of his Majesty's dominion for a period of four years within the last eight years before the application. The requirements of the above provision will not apply in the case of a woman who is a British subject previous to her marriage to an alien, and whose husband has died, or whose marriage has been dissolved.

In any other special case, if he thinks fit, the Governor-General may grant a certificate of naturalisation, although the four years' residence or five years' service have not been within the last eight years. Where an alien obtains a certificate of naturalisation the Governor-General may, if he thinks fit, on the application of the alien, include in the certificate the name of any child born before the date of the certificate, and, being a minor, and the child is, therefore, to become a British subject; but any such child may within a year of attaining his majority make a declaration of alienage, and will, therefore, cease to be a British subject.

The next provision is of great importance. It will enact that an alien naturalised before the passing of the Act may apply to the Governor-General for a certificate under the Act, which may be granted by the Governor-General on such terms and conditions as he may deem fit.

BOAT CAPSIZED.

PERTH, Friday.

The fishing boat Mildred was caught in a gale off the coast about 70 miles north of Fremantle on Tuesday night and capsized. Captain Gustave Hill and two mates, Jack Troyle and Chris. Hansen, clung to an ice chest after the boat foundered, but Hill was unable to swim and was washed away from the chest, and drowned. The other two reached shore and arrived at Gingin, 20 miles inland, to-day.

COUNTRY NEWS.

SOUTH COAST.

SOUTH COAST COAL TRADE.

BULLI, Friday.

The South Coast collieries have worked fairly well for the past two weeks. For the fortnightly pay to be drawn (Friday), South Bulli worked 6 days, Old Bulli full time, 11 days, Excelsior 8 days, and Coledale 9 days. The coke trade is also being well maintained.

WOLLONGONG, Friday.

At the local court yesterday, No. 4 Miners' Wages Board sat for the purpose of dealing with applications from two of the South Coast mines. The matter from Coalcliff Colliery was deferred till February 11, and with regard to the interpretation of the award as to what places are deferred in main dip double shifted headings as are now being worked at Corrimal-Balgownie Colliery, and to define the method of cavilling for such main dip double shifted special headings, the finding of the board was:—That main dip special headings in Corrimal Colliery (as per award of October 14) means five dip headings, three of which are known as West Extendeds and Southern. Two of the main dip headings are shown on the colliery plan dated September 5, 1914. These main dip double shifts shall be drawn first. These five headings are headings for which 13s per day has to be paid.

THE HOSPITALS.

BEGA, Friday.

At the annual meeting of the Bega District Hospital the report showed that during last year 114 patients had been treated, and the average daily cost of treatment amounted to 7s 3d. The cost of upkeep averaged over £86 per month. Collections, donations, and the proceeds of entertainments for the year amounted to £717. Mr. James Cochrane was re-elected president unopposed.

CONDOBOLIN, Friday.

At the annual general meeting of subscribers to the Condobolin District Hospital the balance-sheet showed that funds were urgently needed. The total number of indoor patients treated during the year was 216. The following officers were elected unopposed:—President, Mr. T. J. Brady; vice-presidents, Messrs. T. F. Mooney, T. J. Tout, F. H. Edols, J. Pattullo, E. M. V. Curr, and G. P. Hatch.

DUBBO, Friday.

Miss Marsden, who has been matron of the Dubbo District Hospital for the last 12 years, has resigned.

GOONDIWINDI, Friday.

At the annual meeting of subscribers of the Goondiwindi Border Hospital, Mr. James McGiffin occupied the chair. The report and balance-sheet showed the credit balance on December 31 was £404 2s 7d. The election of officers resulted:—President, Mr. E. A. Darby (re-elected); committee, Messrs. Marsh, Atkins, Hall, Browne, Baker, and McGowan. Treasurer, Mr. Birkett; auditors, Messrs. Millar and Hill.

HILLSTON, Friday.

At the annual meeting of subscribers to the Hillston District Hospital, it was stated that the total receipts, including the balance from last year, were £1097, and the total expenditure £674, leaving a credit balance of £423. Subscriptions showed a great falling off, being only £116 for 1914, as against £208 for 1913.

SINGLETON, Friday.

At the annual meeting of subscribers to the Dangar Cottage Hospital, the report stated that the number of patients treated during the year was 300. Financially the year was very good, the total revenue being £2066, and the expenditure £1608. The average cost per annum of each patient was £96. The invested funds are: Bank of New South Wales, hospital endowment, £3000; Commercial Bank, Ltd., endowment, £2000; Savings Bank of New South Wales, Singleton and District Benevolent Fund, £2318.

SOFALA, Friday.

At the annual meeting of the Sofala District Hospital on Wednesday the report and balance-sheet showed a sound financial position. Mr. James Crossley was elected president.

THE CHURCHES.

WEE WAA, Friday.

The parish of Wee Waa (Church of England) has been divided, Pilliga district being made a separate parish. The Rev. G. A. Sanders has been appointed there.

THE SCHOOLS.

BEGA, Friday.

At a representative meeting of parents and citizens, held at the Bega School of Arts, the Mayor presiding, Mr. J. H. Hopman, late headmaster of Bega District School, who has been promoted to Glen Innes, was presented with a travelling-bag, suitably inscribed, and travelling rug.

MUNICIPAL.

WINDSOR, Friday.

On December 31 the Windsor Municipal Council's credit balance on all accounts totalled £1402. Some of the money reserved for renewals of bridges, etc., is earning 3½ per cent. interest. During the year £1508 was received in rates, and £1616 was spent on roads, maintenance, and other services, exclusive of administrative expenses.

SCHOOLS OF ARTS.

MANILLA, Friday.

The annual report of the Mechanics Institute showed that the members' roll numbered 213. The net liabilities of the institute are £1247. Against this the assets of the institute amount in value to £4060.

BURGLARY.

WEE WAA, Friday.

The residence of Mr. Charles O'Rourke was entered on Sunday night, and a cheque and cash to the amount of £30 were abstracted from a pocket of Mr. O'Rourke's trousers, which were hanging at the foot of the bed.

BROKEN HILL, Friday.

Seven out of eight painters employed on the State Government Court-house renovations stopped work at midday yesterday.

BLACKHEATH, Friday.

Owing mainly to the Government cutting down the subsidy to the School of Arts by two-thirds the committee has had to appeal to the public for help. A concert was held in the Public Hall on Monday evening, which was very successful.

BERRIGAN, Friday.

A special meeting of the Berrigan Shire Council was held to discuss the Local Government Amendment Bill. With regard to compensation for materials taken from land, it was decided to suggest that the owner be paid the value of surface damage only for loam to a depth of six inches, and full value for stone.

CASINO, Friday.

At the first annual meeting of the Casino Eisteddfod Society, held last night, the balance-sheet showed a credit of £19 5s 6d. The receipts were £347 5s 4d, and expenditure £327 19s 10d.

CULCAIRN, Friday.

Nothing definite has yet been received with regard to the action of the Department of Public Instruction regarding the closing of the Culcairn Cookery School, against which action strong protests have been made by the shire council and Progress Association through Mr. J. J. Cusack, M.L.A. It now transpires that the reason of closing is not through the attendance failing in Culcairn, but of a rearrangement between Albury and Corowa. Much dissatisfaction has been caused. The Minister recently stated, too, that the department was considering the extension of this branch of education.

GOONDIWINDI, Friday.

The Rev. Father Healy, who died at Sandgate on Tuesday, whilst on a brief holiday, had been parish priest here for the past 14 years.

The annual district conference of the Darling Downs M.U.I.O.O.F. Lodge was held in the School of Arts Hall to-day. Bro. J. N. Bones presided. The chairman, in his opening address, stated that three new lodges had been opened during the year, the membership showing an increase of 158. The sick and funeral funds had increased by £1615, and the interest from investments was £777. The election of officers resulted:—P.G.M., Bro. Barnet; D.P.G.M., Bro. Carson; treasurer, Bro. Campbell; auditor, Bro. Arnold; directors, Bros. Wallis, Wright, and Kelly; deputies to A.M.C., Bros. Bones, Wallis, Parker, Blake, Challiner, and Barnet.

LITHGOW, Friday.

A report from Hartley states that the residence of T. Brooks was burnt to the ground, very little being saved.

MUDGEE, Friday.

The town water supply is becoming seriously low, and the council has been obliged to cut off all garden taps in town, and to limit the supply to purely domestic purposes.

ORANGE, Friday.

Excavation for the dam for the additional water supply will commence almost immediately.

QUEANBEYAN, Friday.

Mr. William Pike, an old resident of the district, died on Monday night, aged 64 years.

RICHMOND, Friday.

During the building of a new bridge over Redbank Creek, on the main road from Richmond to Kurrajong Heights, it was decided by the Colo Shire Council to close temporarily the road against traffic, which would be diverted round by South Kurrajong, increasing the distance by several miles. At a public meeting it was decided to petition the council to provide a temporary bridge, and a deputation was appointed to wait upon the council on the 8th prox.

CASUALTIES.

DROWNED IN PARRAMATTA RIVER.

Norman Fisher Nabsley, residing with his parents in Argyle-street, Parramatta, was drowned in the freshwater portion of the river. He was bathing with other lads, and it is supposed that he was attacked by cramp.

SURFING FATALITY.

Francis James Long, 46, while surfing at Narrabeen on the 10th ult., was carried out very quickly by the waves. The local surf club was there with a reel. A man named Exton went to Long's assistance, and held him up as long as he could, but he became exhausted. The line broke, as there were too many people pulling on it. After a second attempt, Long was brought in exhausted. Futile efforts were made to restore animation.

The City Coroner on Friday held an inquiry, and found that the cause of death was accidental drowning.

INFANT FATALLY BURNED.

About 6.45 a.m. on the 17th inst., Albert Ernest Townsend, 1 year and 11 months, was found with his clothes on fire on the floor of a bedroom at Morden-street, North Sydney. By his side was a box of safety matches. The child died at 10 p.m. the same day. The City Coroner (Mr. H. S. Hawkins) found that death was accidental.

SHOOTING ACCIDENT.

WEST MAITLAND, Friday.

Francis J. Beatty, son of Mr. J. C. Beatty, of Homeville, met with a painful accident yesterday. He was out shooting at Aberglasslyn, and put his gun down under a tree. Picking it up afterwards by the breech, both barrels exploded, the breech catch being driven into his hand between the thumb and forefinger, inflicting a deep and painful wound. He was admitted to the Maitland Hospital for treatment.

FALL FROM WHARF.

TAREE, Friday.

William Griffis, a well-known Taree resident, was seen to fall into the Manning River from Fotheringham's Wharf yesterday afternoon. A farmer and his son, who were in the vicinity in a launch, pulled him out and took him ashore. He died in the M.R.D. Hospital.

FATALITY IN A MINE.

CONDOBOLIN, Friday.

A fatal accident happened at Potter's mine, now being worked by tributers. George Atkins, who was in charge of the tributers, went down to about the 200ft level to ascertain the cause of the tank used for bailing becoming jammed in the shaft. Deceased in some way was crushed between the wall of the shaft and the tank. Deceased was a married man, 33 years of age, and leaves a widow and three young children.

"LOYALTY'S" SUGGESTION.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—In reply to the letter signed "Loyalty" in your issue of the 26th inst., I may say that the sentiments expressed therein lead a truly loyal Britisher to the conclusion that he is merely trying to get himself into the limelight. No fearless Briton, such as are wanted in the fighting line at this juncture, would dream of voicing such sentiments as "Loyalty" has voiced in his letter. Perhaps if "Loyalty" mustered the required number of his fellow bank and insurance clerks, old public school boys, squatters' sons, well-educated young men, and gentlemen to form a company, and made application to the military authorities, they might grant his request. It is also possible that the Federal Government would, if properly approached, by cable, request the Imperial Government to send out some gentlemen drill instructors, to drill his refined company, to avoid hurting their susceptibilities by having them drilled by the common instructor. Again he should also request our military authorities to enlist a special unit of the A.M.C., composed of his own class, to attend him if wounded, so that he would not receive contamination by being attended by the common A.M.C. man.

I can tell "Loyalty" and his friends (if he has any) that Earl Kitchener wants no lukewarm, half-hearted, drawing-room soldiers in his army, but men of grit, who are prepared to cheerfully accept any conditions that arise during the conduct of the war; not those who decline to fight for the liberty and honour of the Empire, beside men who have been less fortunate than themselves, in the matter of education and environment. Should "Loyalty" by any chance reach the fighting line, he will have his eyes opened, and his worldly knowledge improved, by seeing sons of the nobility of England fighting side by side and shoulder to shoulder, with the honest labourer and farmers' sons of old England, and are proud to do so. All distinctions are forgotten in the battle-field, so long as discipline is maintained. Had "Loyalty" read British military history he would have found numbers of instances of British officers personally assisting wounded privates to places of safety and vice versa.

A man who does his duty on the battlefield cheerfully and fearlessly, is looked up to, and honoured by all ranks, and "Loyalty" will find as good men as himself in the ranks, if not better.

I am, etc.,
OLD SOLDIER.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—A letter appears in to-day's "Herald" under the heading "A Suggestion," and signed "Loyalty," which is a shocking evidence of a spurious gentility. At a time when the mother country requires all the men she can get with British pluck and good fighting powers, "Loyalty" wishes to substitute a make-believe gentility for manly manhood. At a time when the best blood of Great Britain is fighting in the ranks this gentleman apparently declines to associate with more common clay, however capable. Such sentiments in no way represent the feelings of the genuine article of the men who only ask to be allowed to fight for their country. I know Australia well. I have resided here for over 68 years. I feel certain the bulk of its people would join with me in utterly repudiating the sentiments expressed in the letter. I am, etc.,

Manly, Jan. 26. J. R. McWILLIAM.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—I would like to express my opinion as regards your correspondent "Loyalty's" remarks. I am sure I fail to see where his nom de plume applies to him. Where would we be in the near future if we had to wait for "Loyalty's" sort to enlist to defend our country? If he is anxious to do his duty he would not wait for the gentlemen brigade to be formed. It is plain rough Tommy and Jack Tar that do the fighting and face the danger. They do not care whether their tent mates or trench mates have education or good breeding. If, as he says, there are hundreds who are willing to go, well, all I can say, they ought to be ashamed to sit back and watch poor mothers parting with their breadwinners, sons and husbands the sole support of their families, while they are waiting for a gentlemen brigade to be formed. There is nothing wrong with our brave men, who are willing to sacrifice all for their country. The greatest gentleman in the land need not fear to share the same tent with the noble and brave. So let "Loyalty" and the rest shoulder their rifles and get busy, before some of the refined and educated Germans come and take this country. This is not a war of good manners, but is far more serious. I am, etc.,

A WOMAN.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—In answer to "Loyalty," I should like to ask him why he wishes bank clerks and insurance clerks, etc. placed in a camp of their own. Does he think for one moment that there is no one outside his own particular domain fit to associate with? Does he place himself above the bone and muscle of the country, viz., the common working men? Is not the navvy as well-behaved as others? Is he a thing to be despised? In my humble opinion, they that are educated in the lower grade schools are not inferior to others in matters of principle. In conclusion, I would like to remind "Loyalty" that this is no time to rake up class distinction, for it matters not one jot if we have been brought up with a silver spoon in our mouths or a shovel in our hands. It should not alter our loyalty.

I am, etc, A WORKMAN.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—I beg that you will allow me to make a few remarks upon "Loyalty's" letter, under the above heading, appearing in your issue of 26th instant. Surely if a man offers his services to his King, he should leave the rest to his Sovereign; and not attempt to impose conditions. Where would the loyalty be? And, if death is a great leveller, should not men go, prepared to meet death (if necessary), shoulder to shoulder, and, as brothers? Do we want to try to bring in invidious distinctions, and the thin end of the wedge of snobbery? Have we not read, lately, of the British officers mixing with the men? And, the noble King Albert joins his men in the trenches. Are we not fighting against the "devil of militarism"? And, is not snobbery (the separation of man from his brother) one of his children? Manners make the man—not position!

I am, etc.,
ALFRED W. TUCKER.

JOHNS.—In loving memory of our dear mother, who departed this life January 31, 1914.

Though your death was hard, dear mother,
And you bore your pain so brave,
We have been so sad and lonely
Since we laid you in the grave.
Empty is your corner, mother,
Vacant is your chair,
It's when we go into your room
That's the time we miss you there.
How we miss your loving footsteps,
How we long to hear you call,
Yet in life we still can see you
By your photo. on the wall.

Inserted by your loving daughter and son-in-law, Sarah and James McAleer.

JOHNS.—In loving memory of my dear mother, Mary Ann Johns, who died January 31, 1914.

Some day the clouds will break,
Some day the shadows flee,
And I shall see my dear mother's face,
And she will speak to me.
She will soothe my aching heart,
She will clasp my weary hand,
And lead me through the golden gate
Into the heavenly land.
I'll ever to her memory cling—
It's all that I can do;
And when my earthly days are spent
Our love we will renew.

THEY ALSO SERVE.

Events have moved so rapidly during the past six months that the German Chancellor seemed to be reviving a forgotten controversy when he challenged Sir Edward Grey to a new discussion of the violation of Belgium. To most students outside Germany the evidence which convicts that country of responsibility for the war is overwhelming. Whatever records leap to light, the conclusion is the same. The Servian blue book, published after the return of King Peter to his capital, corroborates the documents already issued by the allied Powers. If any disinterested evidence were wanting, it is furnished by the statement of Signor Giolitti that in 1913, while the Archduke was alive and well, Italy was called upon by Austria and Germany to defy Russia, and join them in an attack on Servian independence. On another point the evidence is equally one-sided and equally conclusive. The fact that Germany has violated the laws of war, not only the laws drawn up by international conventions, but those which are imposed by the instincts of humanity, has been proved with equal clearness. The evidence of refugees may be disregarded, the reports of the Belgian Commission may be discounted enormously. There is still sufficient proof in the admissions of Germans themselves, in the orders of their generals, and in the doings of their ships of war to disable them for ever from speaking in the name of civilisation. But when these two questions are settled to the satisfaction of all disinterested persons, as well as of the Allies, there remains a third, more puzzling than either. How comes it that a highly-educated people defends the conduct of its Government, not merely on the ground of necessity, but on the grounds of justice, of humanity, and of good faith? We need not wonder that there is neither rebellion nor protest against any of these acts, because a nation at war is organised to such a point that neither protest nor rebellion is possible, except as a forlorn hope. But we may wonder at the evidently sincere sympathy expressed by men of science and of letters with the conduct of their Government, at their refusal to recognise proved facts or to admit that whatever facts are proved are capable of any construction, except one which justifies the conduct of their leaders by the standards set by the rest of the civilised world. Two answers to this third question have been given by Germans themselves. Ninety-three of their most famous scholars have called mankind to witness that the countrymen of Goethe, of Kant, and of Beethoven could not have been guilty of the crimes with which they are charged, of Goethe who took no part in national wars, of Kant who devoted himself to a scheme of universal peace, and of Beethoven, who boasted that he was of Belgian descent. Others have made the protest in another form, asserting that whatever Germany did must be right, because her system of education is the best in Europe. French and English critics have put the same result down to defective information, and have been justified by the German description of their naval raid as an attack on fortified towns. The fact only helps to prove the impossibility of any one nation understanding another, either by the study of literature commended by Lord Haldane, or by the visits of selected tourists, of which so much was made in the now prehistoric months of the beginning of 1914.

The exact proportion in which the conviction of the German people and of their leaders is due to education and to history will inevitably be discussed by writers who after the war deal with the rise and development of the German Empire. At present, however, the war has taught us how decisive is the influence of education in the history of any nation. The Jesuit belief that a character is formed in the years of infancy is corroborated by every account we get of national movements and national demeanour. Possibly no other people could be so amenable to authority as the Germans have shown themselves to be in their schools, in their universities, and in the field of battle. No other nation could so readily assimilate a uniform code of thought as distinguished from the code of behaviour which is accepted by the English public schools. But both the Western allies have shown that educational ideals can help them enormously at a time of crisis. The English Universities have made good their claim to inculcate an ideal of public service in a manner which their most sincere admirers could not have anticipated. A contributor writes in our columns to-day of the absence of more than half the undergraduates of Cambridge University, and of the hospitality afforded to Belgian teachers whereby some return is made to the University of Louvain for the services of her son, Ludovicus Vives, in bringing Greek to Oxford. The University of Oxford has some 1870 of her resident members at the front, and is throwing open her colleges to the sick and wounded. One college with a total population of 78 has sent 52 of its members, other colleges have sent more than one hundred each, and each man in residence feels that some explanation is due from him. The University of France, true to its tradition, is carrying on its classes, though many of its teachers have been mobilised, its students are under arms, and many places have been made vacant by the fire of the enemy. M. Rene Doumic tells us that in 1870 he was taught, and taught well, by teachers who wore the cap of the National Guard, and kept their classes at work in the intervals of service. In 1870 it was the boast of the University that its classes were never suspended. To-day it is a point of honour in all French schools and in the University that the duty of educating the new generation shall not be neglected for a day. The University of France has not neglected to impress on the world the reason for this fidelity as any of the English Universities might have done. It has recognised that whatever the immediate origin of the war, it has now come to be regarded as a war of ideas, a war in which two different types of civilisation have come into collision. On the one hand there is the ideal which crushes individuality, which cares nothing for individual rights and souls, and which can flourish only by absorbing every conflicting ideal. On the other there is the Latin temperament, passionate and disinterested and free, which regards a nation as composed of so many individual souls, which rules only by consent, and which flourishes most in a society of equal neighbours. The home of these ideas and the source of their strength is in the Universities. The University of France sets an example to all the other Universities and to the schools by continuing its work for French civilisation while the armies are fighting for it in the field. France has great names to set beside those of Germany. The countrymen of Pasteur and Richet and Poincare have nothing to fear in modern science and modern thought. But their chief pride should be in the love of mankind, of every free or aspiring country in Europe, a love inspired by that ideal of civilisation which is founded on the teaching of these unconquerable Universities.

SPIRIT OF THE RACE.

Alike on land and water, ever since the beginning of the great war six months ago, innumerable proofs have been given of the inborn valour of our race. In the historic retreat from Mons, in the face of overwhelming odds, in the fighting on the Aisne, in the battles of Ypres and the Yser, and to-day in the herculean labours in the region of La Bassee, we have a chapter of British military history as glorious as anything that is written in the annals of our race; and in Rear-Admiral Sturdee's brilliant victory over the German squadron off the Falkland Islands, in Sir David Beatty's famous exploit in the waters of Heligoland, and now in his defeat of the German fleet in the North sea, we have examples of the old-time prowess that has made Britain mistress of the seas. The conspicuous gallantry of Private George Wilson, of the Highland Light Infantry, near Verneuil, who, single-handed, shot the officer and six men working a hostile gun, and followed it up by capturing the gun, is matched by the daring of Lieutenant Holbrook, who dived in a submarine under five rows of mines and torpedoed the Turkish cruiser Messoudieh. Both of these men won the Victoria Cross. Many other instances of individual bravery might be given; and we know that every day furnishes innumerable acts of unrecorded heroism. When the war broke out the German Emperor referred to the British Expeditionary Force as "a contemptible little army," and bade his soldiers "walk over it," and among the German people generally, who boasted so loudly of their own "kultur" and of the dominating place in the sun they were about to win for themselves, the belief had taken root that the British nation belonged to an effete civilisation, and that all its glories were buried in the past. Not only was Prussian militarism to crush everything that stood in its way, but the German fleet was to wrest the trident from Britain's hand. "Germany's future is on the water," the Emperor had said. The response to Britain's call, the valorous deeds of the Empire's soldiers and sailors, have answered. It is something of a paradox that a nation which has won its chief victories along the paths of peace, building up a mighty empire, not by means of the sword, but by those arts of peaceful colonisation in which the British race excels, should at the same time be a warlike nation; but such is the fact—the fighting instinct in us, though it remain for a long time dormant, is always ready to assert itself when danger threatens. Yet, when we examine it closely, it is not surprising. It required a people of strength and valour to win the liberty we enjoy. Now that a nation of militarists, wantonly breaking the peace of the world, attacks that liberty, and even challenges the right of the British Empire to exist at all, the fighting spirit in us bursts out afresh, the same strength and valour as of old are seen again. One can be strong, and yet be no militarist. Just before he died, Admiral Mahan, the great American naval historian, paid a wonderful tribute to the British people—and Admiral Mahan, though a master of the art of war, was no militarist. Writing to an English friend, he said the testimony to the uprightness and efficiency of Britain's Imperial rule, given by the strong adhesion and support of India and the dominions, was a glory exceeding that of pitched battle and overwhelming victory.

But Admiral Mahan shared with British statesmen the belief that the best way to ensure peace was to be prepared for war; and we have his opinion of the British navy as "remaining to-day as incomparably superb as ever." For this we are indebted largely to Mr. McKenna and Mr. Churchill, who, as successive heads of the Admiralty, resolutely followed the only safe line of policy. But we are indebted also to the men who command and the men who man our fighting ships. When we read of victory going to the side that has the biggest guns, we should be thankful that in this respect we have a marked superiority over the enemy; but we shall do well also to remember that to-day, no less than in former great sea fights, the personal element is, perhaps, the greatest thing of all. The Royal Navy has some proud traditions to uphold, and when its ships go into action, every man is at his post ready to fulfil England's expectation, the spirit of Nelson is there, animating all, from admiral to sailor. The sea is England's glory just as much to-day as ever it was; her fleet is her "all in all." A great fleet has potentially a range of action far greater than that of any army, however strong. It is free and mobile, it has no boundaries, follows no beaten track, and even though it be concentrated in home waters, it can make its existence felt in every quarter of the globe. The naval battles that have taken place so far, important as they have been, are but as skirmishes compared with what we may expect when the great German fleet comes out; but the exploits of Sturdee, Beatty, and Tyrwhitt, and the magnificent bravery of our sailors, encourage us in our confidence in the final result. When the day comes for Admiral Sir John Jellicoe to lead the Grand Fleet in line of battle against the enemy, we have no doubt that it will usher in another and a greater Trafalgar. On land and sea our forces are gathered. It has fallen to Australia and New Zealand to be represented both on the sea and on the land, and there is evidence enough that the people of these lands are made of the same stern, courageous stuff as the people of the homeland. The danger to the Empire has been a great test of Imperial and colonial relations, and we may well be satisfied with the result. But we must shrink from no sacrifice until the end of the war is in sight. Every fit man should be in the fighting line, and whatever a man can give he should give, as the Governor-General has said, to "the sacred cause of the Grand Alliance." We are fighting not only for the peace, progress, and integrity of small nations, but for the honour of the great ones, not only for the welfare of humanity to-day, but for the destiny of the human race for generations to come. An Empire that flings itself into the battle and stakes its very existence upon the issue, merely to stand by the flag of human liberty, is an Empire that is not only worth fighting for, but worth dying for. It is a war in which all classes are called upon to do their share. In a notable speech at Bristol, Mr. William Brace, M.P., a Labour leader, said he wished to place on record his profound admiration of the way in which the sons of the noble families of Britain had given their beloved and their lives for the Empire. They had displayed a valour, a courage, and a self-sacrifice, he said, never excelled in the history of the country. Alike in those of noble birth and in those of humble homes, we find the same valour and the same spirit of self-sacrifice.

FEDERAL WORKS.

LARGE SUM TO BE SPENT IN STATE.

"The Estimates provide for the spending this year in New South Wales—exclusive of the Federal Capital—of the sum of £250,000. The Minister for Home Affairs does not wish to apologise for being in Sydney," said the Minister for Home Affairs (Mr. Archibald) yesterday. The Minister proceeded to point out that there was plenty for him to do in and around Sydney. Next week he intended to pay a visit to Port Waratah, where the two new works of the Broken Hill Company were in course of construction. He said that it had been intimated to him that the company would be able to supply rails and other railway and engineering requisites to meet the demand of the Commonwealth and of the States. He wanted to see for himself, and judge for himself, and had accepted an invitation to pay a visit to the works.

"The policy of our Government," added Mr. Archibald, "is to purchase everything we can in Australia. It is a surprise to me—and I speak now as a public man—that works similar to those now being constructed were not thought of by the Government years ago. Coal and iron are both to be found there, and that meets the American ideal for a situation for engineering works. However, I am sure that in a case like this it is better late than never."

SOUTH AFRICA.

THE LATE REBELLION.

ENEMY'S WARSHIP.

VICTORIES ON LAND AND SEA.

(FROM A CORRESPONDENT.)

CAPE TOWN, Dec. 31.

Troop-trains in unceasing procession were again speeding along the railway during the middle of this month. I passed them constantly during the day, and heard them throughout the night. Being in close proximity to the railway stations, my resting-places could only be termed such by courtesy. The rattle and the roar of passing trains, pierced ever and anon by the staccato shrieks or by the long-drawn screams of engine-whistles, are hardly conducive to slumber. The thought that even such inconvenience was one's share in the Empire's burden certainly allayed the irritation, though it may not have prevented one from feeling disinclined to rise betimes in the morning.

There was another thought which afforded further consolation. The passing of these trains meant that the rebellion was practically ended; they were all speeding south, conveying to Cape Town the men who had been largely engaged in suppressing it. At the same time, the presence of those men in those trains forced one to "think furiously"—as our French Allies say. Light was thrown on a situation which had been rendered somewhat obscure by a very rigid censorship.

BOER WAR VETERANS.

The men in these trains belonged to regiments that had already won distinction in the Boer War, such as the Imperial Light Horse, the Natal Carbineers, and others that are well known. Some of these had been brought back from German South-west Africa, where they had gone at the beginning of the war, and they were now returning thither. In the midst of sedition, treachery, and open rebellion, Louis Botha knew that in these corps at least there was unimpeachable loyalty as well as valour. The man who had proved their prowess as opponents in the field had readily availed himself of their whole-hearted support in the stern task to which honour and duty had called him.

No one could help being impressed by the gallant bearing and the fine spirit of these men. Bronzed and happy; eager for the fray, and showing already the marks of campaigning, each train-load as it passed could be heard singing snatches of popular songs, but chiefly "It's a long way to Tipperary"—the simple ditty that eccentric Thomas Atkins decided to immortalise. In many instances the regimental wits had scored with billiard-chalks, on the outside of the coaches, divers "proud devices." The one that caught my fancy the most was "Mrs. Botha's Boys." Any man might be proud to lead such troops, and there is no doubt that they will give a good account of themselves, while facing the great difficulties and hardships of the campaign in German South-west. On my return to Cape Town, I found some 15,000 troops encamped in the neighbourhood, and the first fleet of transports bearing them to their destination left yesterday.

There has been but little news from that important area of conflict, and whether the censor is keeping information for private consumption or not we do not know. But I do not think so; it is only natural to suppose that the rebellion has delayed operations in that quarter.

PLAN OF CAMPAIGN ALTERED.

It is also possible that the treachery of Beyers has necessitated an alteration in the plan of campaign, leading to a suspension of active hostilities. Meanwhile the positions gained have been fortified, the railway has been repaired for some distance, and needful preparations made for an advance when the time comes. No one knows what forces we have there, but in addition to the transports that I have just mentioned another fleet left not very long ago under the escort of several cruisers. That was before the news arrived of the naval victory off the Falkland Islands. We shall probably hear soon of the renewal of operations, and I venture to foretell that they will be hazardous, lengthy, and costly.

NAVAL ATTACK FEARED.

The news of the naval victory must have been a great relief to many nervous persons in Capetown. All kinds of rumours were afloat; it was freely stated that German cruisers were somewhere off the coast, that Simon's Town—our naval base—expected an attack, and that the women and children there had been warned to leave at two hours' notice. We now know that the rumours were somewhat premature; but it is obvious that the destroyed squadron would have endeavoured to relieve the pressure on German South-west if Admiral Sturdee had not intervened.

That the cruiser menace was ever in the minds of travellers is evident from the stories one hears from people who arrive here either from the home land or from your part of the world. I met a man the other day who came over recently from Melbourne in the Anchises. Just before she arrived off Durban a cruiser suddenly appeared on the horizon. As this cruiser was showing no flag, nor any other sign of her nationality, the passengers at once concluded that she was one of the German cruisers, and they prepared themselves for the worst. To their great relief they found that the cruiser did not approach them, and they then knew that it was one of John Bull's watchdogs. They realised, as we all must do, the constant watch and ward which is being kept throughout the wide world by the navy of which we are all so justly proud.

END OF THE KOENIGSBERG.

Reference to the cruiser menace makes one think of the meteoric career of the Emden. You can well imagine how heartily we congratulate you on the fine exploit of your Sydney in putting an end to her depredations. Even as she was a menace to your ocean highway, so was the Koenigsburg to ours. Although the latter has not done so much harm to commerce, you can judge how gratified we were to hear of her end, because of the fate of those brave fellows on the Pegasus, who were destroyed without a fighting chance.

The Koenigsberg caught and sank poor "Peggy" (H.M.S. Pegasus) when her boilers were being cleaned, and she was helpless. The position of our vessel had probably been disclosed by a German spy. Most unfortunate as this incident was, it led to the undoing of the hostile craft, at it revealed her whereabouts, and our cruisers were speedily on her track. The chase must have been fairly hot, as she "took cover" up the Rufigi River, in German East Africa. This river has several mouths, but only one navigable channel, and that will admit only vessels of light draught. Here she might possibly have remained undetected, and her mischievious career might have been prolonged, had it not been for the German liner Somali, which, on leaving the river one morning, was sighted by the cruiser ——.

COLLIER SOMALI SUNK.

This vessel was known to be acting as collier to the Koenigsberg, and when she was seen to turn and make for the river again, suspicions were naturally aroused. She was immediately followed, and further investigation revealed the most interesting fact that the cruiser herself was a few miles up the river. The draught of the —— prevented her from following up, so her captain had to be content with raining shells on the two enemy ships.

As the result of this, the Somali was set on fire and was sunk in the fair-way, while the cruiser worked further up-stream. There she anchored out of range near some groves of palms, branches of which were fastened to her rigging to lessen the risk of detection.

It was then decided to bottle her up, and a tramp collier with its cargo on fire was commandeered for the purpose. Manned by a naval crew, and accompanied by a cable vessel and two naval launches, she set out for her lasting resting-place. Arrived there, she was carefully worked into the required position, and was sunk with three charges of gun-cotton, so that her masts pointed up-stream. The silting of the river would complete the process.

The exploit was not so simple as it might seem; it was, indeed, attended with some hazard, for a strong force of the enemy with guns was entrenched on one of the river islands. Sacks of coal and bags of sand, together with sheets of iron, afforded sufficient protection on the outward journey, but during the return in the launches several casualties occurred.

A few days later the cable ship was badly holed on a reef, and so she also was taken to the river and sunk there as a further obstruction. Thus there are three vessels blocking the channel, and the career of the Koenigsburg has ended somewhat ingloriously.

The rumour of her fate reached me from Natal very shortly after it was settled, and long before there was any announcement. I cannot help reflecting how many rumours of events in Africa have been proved to have had substantial basis, and I wonder why these rumours have been correct. It seems to indicate leakage of information somewhere, and when there are spies about this is not desirable.

FRANCE.

GERMAN LOSSES.

COSTLY AGGRESSION.

ACTIVITY IN EAST.

The Austro-German forces are developing a movement in Galicia apparently with the object of relieving Przemysl.

The Turks in Trans-Caucasia have been reinforced, and are attacking vigorously.

German losses on the western front on Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday are estimated at 20,000, the enemy's special efforts made to celebrate the Emperor's birthday all being repulsed.

The battle west of La Bassee was the biggest in which the British have been engaged for some time.

Both sides lost heavily, but, after having to fall back, the British not only re-established their former positions, but broke fresh ground.

The civilian population of Thann (Alsace) have left, owing to the German bombardment.

It is reported that the battle-cruisers Derfflinger and Seydlitz were little more than afloat when they got back from the North Sea battle.

RUSSIA'S TASK.

IN GALICIA.

AUSTRO-GERMAN MOVEMENT.

PETROGRAD, Jan. 29.

An Austro-German movement is developing along the Dukla-Wyszkow front (Galicia), approximately 100 miles in extent.

Columns are trying to cross the mountains by numerous passes. Presumably Przemysl is their objective.

THE TURKS.

VIGOROUS ATTACKS.

The Turks have obtained considerable reinforcements in the Caucasus, and are developing vigorous attacks, which are being repulsed.

ARMENIAN MASSACRES.

KURDISH SHEIKH JOINS RUSSIA

An influential Kurdish Sheikh, Shah Madzinoff, has joined the Russians. He states that the Turks massacred almost the entire Armenian population in the Alashkert Valley.

GERMAN EFFORT.

EMPEROR'S BIRTHDAY.

ENEMY LOSES BADLY.

PARIS, Jan. 29.

A communique yesterday stated that the total German losses on Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday exceeded 20,000.

The enemy made a great effort on the German Emperor's birthday, but it was a good day for us. Along the whole front all attacks were repulsed, and all our attacks resulted in progress.

Our artillery demolished several trenches in Belgium, and the English artillery swept the German routes and points of concentration south of the Lys.

The Germans lost a brigade on Monday and Tuesday in the Craonne region. Our losses were 800, including two companies taken prisoners owing to a landslide.

We now hold all disputed ground, and have gained 400 metres north of Senones (in the Vosges district, north-north-east of St. Die).

The latest communique says the fighting consists chiefly of artillery duels, the situation being unchanged.

LA BASSEE BATTLE.

BRITISH DO WELL.

Monday's fight was the biggest in which the British recently have been engaged. The La Bassee plains were a bog, and the Germans found the only workable foothold to be the highway. They suddenly attacked unsupported British positions, and the latter fell back before a rush led by the 56th Prussians and 7th Pioneers. The enemy swept along the road to the outskirts of Givenchy, capturing half a dozen prisoners.

The English reinforcements did not hurry, and crossing the sodden morass, for 300 yards knee-deep in mud and water, under a heavy fire, they secured a trench, and though they lost heavily, drove back the Germans, who left 400 dead.

A small force of the enemy entered Givenchy. The British fired from windows and wounded many. The remainder surrendered.

The British re-established their old positions, and broke fresh ground.

BETHUNE ATTACKED.

Reuter's correspondent at Saint Omer says the Germans, concentrating important forces between La Bassee and Festubert on Monday, attempted to pierce the Allies' line and capture Bethune (eight miles west of La Bassee). The Emperor watched the preparations on Saturday, and inspected the German positions at La Bassee.

The attack was supported by heavy artillery, and an armoured train which fired twenty shells into Bethune. The Germans planned to draw the Allies towards Festubert by a vigorous attack, while two infantry regiments made a turning movement via the La Bassee-Bethune road. The Allies became aware of this plan, and the German infantry, advancing in close formation, received a murderous fire, being caught between the English artillery in front and the French artillery on the flank. The Germans were literally mown down.

A couple of regiments, endeavouring to outflank the Allies, advanced towards Annequin. They were allowed to approach within five hundred yards of the Allies' lines, and then the French "seventy-fives" opened fire. Those who did not escape were killed or taken prisoner, and two companies were captured.

The enemy vainly renewed their attack five times, seeking to break through the allied lines. They managed once to reach Givenchy church. The bayonets did deadly work in the plains round Vermelles, Givenchy, and Guinchy, which were strewn with dead Germans.

Later the Germans fired four 150-millimetre shells on the theatre. One nearly fell on a convoy of German prisoners.

A severe artillery duel continues throughout the district.

GUERILLA WARFARE.

FRENCH BANDS ACTIVE.

After the battles in Belgian Luxembourg in August several small French detachments were unable to rejoin their corps. They carried on guerilla warfare in the dense woods for four months, ambushing passing Germans.

One force of 450 ultimately passed the German lines and rejoined the French in the Argonne. Other bands still continue their guerilla warfare.

IN ALSACE.

GERMANS BOMBARD THANN.

BERNE, Jan. 29.

The civilian population has quitted Thann (in Alsace, north-west of Mulhausen), which is on fire owing to the German bombardment.

NEAR SUEZ CANAL.

GERMAN SPY CAUGHT.

CAIRO, Jan. 29.

A German spy has been captured near El Kantara.

British sailors have destroyed the telegraph wires at Sidon and Alexandretta.

ITALY AND TURKEY.

THE HODEIDEH INCIDENT.

LONDON, Jan. 28.

The "Echo de Paris" states that Turkey has failed to settle the Hodeideh incident according to promise. Italy threatens to take action.

It was cabled on January 12 that this incident, which arose through British and French Consuls being taken by force from the Italian Embassy at Hodeideh, had been settled.

THE VON DER TANN.

UNFOUNDED REPORT.

LONDON, Jan. 28.

The Admiralty declares as unfounded a report recently circulated that the German battle-cruiser Von der Tann had been sunk.

CAPTURED AIR-RAIDERS.

TREATED AS CRIMINALS.

PETROGRAD, Jan. 29.

The crew of the Zeppelin, which was brought down by the forts at Libau, after dropping bombs on an undefended part of the town, will not be treated as prisoners of war, but as criminals.

They will be court-martialled for murder, or attempted murder, in attacking an undefended place.

GERMAN TOWN.

AEROPLANE ATTACK.

COPENHAGEN, Jan. 29.

Berlin newspapers are circulating a report that aeroplanes dropped bombs on Dortmund (20 miles north-east of Essen), doing considerable damage. Twenty-one inch walls were cracked, and the inhabitants were panic-stricken. The Germania monument was smashed.

The aeroplanes proceeded towards Essen.

TERMS OF PEACE.

THE DOMINIONS' SHARE.

LONDON, Jan. 29.

The "Times" says: "Manifestly the Dominions must be consulted on the terms of peace. The essential point is that they should be our partners in every necessity of the task of war, and we should invite their co-operation in our diplomatic and international demands equally as in the provision of men and munitions.

TRADE AND COMMERCE.

DYE-MAKING INDUSTRY.

LONDON, Jan. 29.

A committee of dye users has adopted a modified scheme of national dye-making, with provision for future expansion. The Treasury has approved of financial arrangements.

CHICAGO WHEAT MARKET.

The following quotations ruled on the Chicago wheat market yesterday:—May, 149 to 150¼ cents per bushel; July, 133¼ to 135¼.

MERCHANT SHIPPING.

The steamer Marathon, which left Sydney on December 7, has arrived at Plymouth. The steamer Perth has reached Queenstown.

THE SEA FIGHT.

BATTERED GERMANS.

APPALLING CARNAGE.

LONDON, Jan. 29.

It is reported that the German battle-cruisers Seydlitz and Derfflinger got home little more than afloat. The former was afire, while the Derfflinger had every gun out of action, and was damaged astern by a torpedo.

Narratives of survivors from the Blucher show that the British broadsides made the ship reel. Guns were torn from their settings, and whole gun-crews hurled to destruction. Men were swept from the deck like flies. Everywhere blood trickled and flowed.

Shells burst in the interior of the vessel in a halo of flame. Those in authority lost their heads, their nerves being unable to stand the strain.

The light-cruiser Arethusa finished the Blucher with a couple of torpedoes.

One of the Blucher's officers confessed that the Fatherland might beat England on land perhaps, but on the sea never. Another remarked, "Your shells are terrifying, and your seamanship marvellous."

A member of the Arethusa's crew stated that the Blucher's men were game to the last. They lined the rails, and one of our officers megaphoned, "Torpedo coming." Instantly they dived overboard. We threw over hundreds of planks, to which the Germans clung until they were picked up."

IMPERIAL CONFERENCE.

CANADIAN VIEW.

LONDON, Jan. 29.

The "Times" correspondent at Toronto says that although the Canadian Government is unconvinced that great advantages will accrue from the holding of the Imperial Conference while the energies of Ministers in England and Canada are devoted to the war, it must not be understood that they have any desire for a long postponement.

WAR NOTES.

THE EMPEROR'S BIRTHDAY PRESENT.

Wednesday last was the German Emperor's birthday, and the news from the western theatre of war indicates that a special effort was put forth by his generals to present him with a list of successes as a birthday gift. The Allies, however, seem to have been curmudgeonly enough to have objected to the pleasant little attention. German assaults were delivered at many points of the long battle line stretching from the Belgian coast down to Switzerland, but the result was a monotonous list of repulses, and, so far from the birthday present being a record of victories, it proved to be a casualty list for Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday reaching the dismal total of over 20,000. It seems to have been but one more instance of German miscalculation, and the Emperor in a very special sense will perforce have to accept his army's will for the deed. Apparently, the British came in for particular attention in the birthday plan, for, perhaps, the most formidable of the German movements against the Allied line was in the La Bassee district, where our troops are. A vigorous-looking feint was made upon Festubert with the object of drawing thither as many of our troops as possible, while a flank movement with a large force was executed along the La Bassee-Bethune road. The Allies, however, learned the German plan in good time, and so were able effectively to meet it. Some ground was lost here and there at the outset, owing to the sheer weight of the German assault, but after some particularly fierce fighting the attackers were badly cut up, and the Allies at the end of the episode were actually occupying new ground at a couple of points.

MORAL EFFECT OF SUNDAY'S ACTION.

The naval action of Sunday last should certainly have a big moral effect on the German fleet, inasmuch as it has rammed home so hard the lesson of the British guns. In the first place, the men of Emperor Wilhelm's navy can hardly banish from their minds the sinister comparison between the achievements of the two fleets when it has been a case of straight-out, above-water fighting. Apart from the Pegasus, which was battered to pieces while she lay at anchor, only two British ships have been sunk by gunnery in action —the Good Hope and the Monmouth—whereas the Germans have lost no less than 12 vessels —the Blucher and Kolberg on Sunday, the Scharnhorst, Gneisenau, Leipsig, and Nurnberg off the Falklands, the Mainz, Koln, and Ariadne, and four destroyers, in the Bight of Heligoland, the Emden off Keeling Island, and four destroyers in the action off the Dutch coast, in October. But it is the account of Sunday's action, as it will be spread throughout the German fleet by the men who survived on the Derfflinger, Seydlitz, and Moltke, that should have a particularly disturbing effect. This morning's messages state that the two firstnamed vessels were barely afloat when they got back to port, and that every gun on the Derfflinger was out of action. It should be not at all steadying to the nerves of the bluejackets of the hiding fleet to hear of what it is like to come within the range of British battle-cruisers, and at the same time know that only the most insignificant damage was done in return. Apropos of this, it would not be a matter for regret if the survivors of the Blucher could escape from England and make their way back to their own fleet. One of the officers has summed up his view of things thus: "The Fatherland might beat Britain on land, but on sea—never!" And if the truth were known, that is probably the firm conviction of every man who took part in Sunday's action. Admiral Beatty's guns did considerably more damage than the sinking of two vessels and the battering of two others. Their range will prove in the long run to have been very much beyond the ken of all ordnance text books.

PROBABLE ATTEMPT TO HIT BACK.

We may take it for granted, however, that the German Admiralty will put forth a special effort to achieve some sort of a set-off against the disastrous expedition of Sunday. The situation demands that something should be accomplished, so that the news of it might serve as a tonic to the nerves of the public. It is hardly likely that anything in the nature of a raid on the English coast will be attempted. On the German plan a couple of battle-cruisers have been the back-bone of such forays so far, and they are somewhat "hard up" in the matter of battle-cruisers for the moment. The probabilities are that some special coup will be planned for their submarines. Up till the present they have accomplished far more with these craft than with their surface vessels, and they will doubtless attempt to add to their list of successes in this direction. The sinking of more or less obsolescent British ships by submarines, however, is far less spectacular and does not arouse the German population to anything like the pitch of enthusiasm that the bombardment of English watering-places does, but something of the kind will probably be counted on to serve its turn. From the British point of view the position can be looked forward to with a certain degree of confidence. The fleet, in view of past experience, should be fully prepared for some special activity on the part of the enemy, and, with the lessons already learned well in mind, should be able largely to checkmate that activity, whatever form it may take. It is certain that since the sinking of the Formidable all the German submarines have not been in harbour, and the fact that they have done no damage seems to indicate that our fleet is making it increasingly difficult for these craft to strike home.

ITALY AND TURKEY.

What is known as the Hodeideh incident threatens to precipitate a crisis between Italy and Turkey. It will be remembered that some weeks ago Turkish soldiers attacked the British and French Consuls at Hodeideh, an Arabian port, and they sought refuge in the Italian Consulate. The troops pursued them thither, and, despite the protests of the Italian Consul, opened fire on the building. One of the Italian attaches was wounded, and then the British and French Consuls, in order to avoid further bloodshed, gave themselves up to the soldiers. When the facts became known, there was great excitement in Italy over the violation of the Consulate, and the Government demanded the release of the British Consul and the punishment of the officials responsible for the affair. There was an exchange of Notes, marked on the Turkish side by prevarication and delay, and then, about the middle of December, the Italian Minister for Foreign Affairs announced in Parliament that Turkey had consented to release the British Consul, and to remove the Governor from office. Early in this month it was cabled that the whole affair had been settled, but apparently that report was premature, for the "Echo de Paris," according to this morning's cables, states that the Porte has failed to give the Italian authorities satisfaction, and Italy now "threatens to take action." If this is so, then Turkey seems to have been wantonly antagonising Italy. The violation of the Consulate could not be defended, and the reparation which Italy was prepared to accept could not be considered excessive. Further, there has been ample time to adjust the matter if Turkey was sincerely desirous of avoiding a rupture, and there is every reason to believe that Germany would use considerable influence in Constantinople to that end. For a breach between Italy and Turkey would mean the entry of the former into the great war at once, and Germany and Austria have been strenuously endeavouring to assure the maintenance of Italy's neutrality. There is yet time for German pressure to influence the Porte in the direction of placating Italy; but the situation has reached such a delicate stage that the events of the next few days will be watched with the closest interest.

AUSTRIAN ARTILLERY.

In reply to a series of questions from "R. B." (Moree) concerning the artillery of the Austrians, some recent remarks by an English military writer may be quoted:— "There has been a disposition in some quarters to belittle the Austrian artillery, and, while it is certainly inferior to the Russian artillery, both in quantity, personnel, and service (and also it by no means justifies the extravagant eulogies recently passed upon it in the official German communiques), yet it has, like the Turkish artillery, the advantage of heavy guns lent by the German army, and a great deal had been done just prior to the war to remove its old well-known defects. For example, the Austro-Hungarian mountain artillery underwent a thorough re-armament early in 1910 by the introduction of the 7-c.m. gun, and this was shortly followed by the adoption of the mountain howitzer of 10-c.m., M.8. It recoils on its carriage, is protected by a shield in two parts, and takes to pieces in three parts for transport, each weighing 500 kilogrammes, which may be drawn by two horses harnessed in tandem. Its initial velocity and power are the same as those of the M.99 howitzer, but its rapidity of fire is greatly superior. Then, late in 1912 a combined shrapnel and high-explosive shell was adopted as the sole projectile of the new Austrian light field howitzer. In addition to its use as a time shrapnel or percussion common shell, this projectile has a third method of action; when burst as a shrapnel in the air the head flies forward and acts as an efficient percussion shell on its own account. It has now been proved that the shrapnel effect of this, as compared with ordinary shrapnel, is proportional to the weight of the bullets, viz., about 7 per cent. less than that of an ordinary shrapnel of the same total weight. The effect of this universal shell against shielded guns ought to be very good, as it can pierce ordinary gun-shields; but then, on the other hand, the Russian artillery, while having nothing to learn in that respect, has also the advantage of the latest improvements to the incomparable French quick-firers."

METAL CONTRACTS.

WAR CLAUSE.

A peculiar situation has arisen in connection with certain contracts made between Australian mining firms and agents and German metal buyers.

It was discovered recently that a large number of Australian mining and metal companies were bound by contract to supply to German firms practically the whole of the concentrates, ores, etc, from their mines until 1921. The operation of those contracts has, of course, been suspended since the outbreak of war, and, in the ordinary course, such an event would have been sufficient to terminate the contracts.

The contracts, however, contain a provision, the effect of which is that, in the event of a suspension owing to the war or other circumstances, the periods during which the operation has been suspended are to be added on to the period of the contract after the date of expiry named. This means that in the event of the present war lasting for a period of three years the contracts would not expire till the end of the year 1924. As the law stands at present the mining companies concerned would be liable to heavy penalties if they failed to comply with these provisions.

This matter has been brought under the notice of Mr. W. M. Hughes in his capacity of Attorney-General of the Commonwealth. Mr. Hughes recognises the seriousness of the position, and he has made a suggestion to the Imperial Government, the effect of which is that legislation should be introduced to provide for the voidance of all such contracts from the date of the outbreak of the war. This would meet the case as required by the companies, and there appears to be every probability that it will be done.

Mr. Hughes states that as far as contracts made in Australia are concerned definite steps to bring about their voidance will be taken as soon as the Federal Parliament reassembles.

BELGIANS THANK AUSTRALIA.

The director of a large manufacturing firm in Brussels, writing to the Australian representatives, says:—

"We have noticed in the press that the Government of the Commonwealth of Australia has come to the assistance of our hard-pressed country by granting a considerable amount of money for the relief of Belgium. We have also noticed with the greatest appreciation that very many Australian women have likewise come forward to assist their sisters in distress. We should consider it a favour if you would, in the name of the Belgian women, express our deepest gratitude for the splendid assistance so willingly given and so much needed."

MINE-SWEEPING.

In his report to the Premier announcing the purchase of three steam trawlers for fishing in Australian waters, Mr. D. G. Stead, Fisheries Inquiry Commissioner, makes some interesting references to the war.

The Admiralty, he says, has a fleet of steam trawlers and drifters in its mine-sweeping fleet around the coasts of Britain and Ireland. The tendency of the Admiralty to requisition anything likely to be of use to it made Mr. Stead's task very difficult. "The British Government," he reports, "found it necessary to acquire a large number of the best powered and largest steam trawlers for the purpose of mine-sweeping, so many mines having been sown by the Germans in the North Sea. Among the vessels so acquired were all I had been looking at." The Commissioner explains that he was only able to make the purchases he did owing to the complete upset of the commercial life of Belgium leaving a number of Belgian trawlers on the builder's hands.

ENEMY SUBJECTS.

NEW ORDERS.

STRINGENT PROVISIONS.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

All previous instructions which have been issued to the police relative to the internment and treatment of alien enemies and to the treatment of naturalised subjects of enemy origin have been cancelled, and new orders were issued to-day by the State Commandant, Colonel R. Wallace.

These direct that members of armed forces of the enemy and all enemy able-bodied men between the ages of 18 and 50 liable for military service found in the Commonwealth will be arrested and interned as prisoners of war. Alien enemies who are reasonably suspected of being in any way dangerous to the safety of the realm will be arrested and interned as prisoners of war, and alien enemies who refuse to sign a parole in the form provided will be arrested and interned as prisoners of war. Alien enemies on parole who are unable to obtain employment may be interned.

The instructions also provide that all enemy able-bodied men between the ages of 18 and 50 liable for military service found on board any neutral vessel shall be interned as prisoners of war, but members of the crews shall not be removed if it is clear that the vessel's seagoing efficiency, having regard to her destination, will be seriously affected thereby.

All alien enemy subjects found on board British vessels shall be removed, and those who are liable for military service shall be interned.

District commandants will arrest and intern as prisoners of war any alien enemy, reservist or otherwise, who is on parole if found, or reasonably suspected of, spreading reports regarding the war, or if he has given naval or military information in private correspondence, or if found carrying arms.

Parole is not to be given in any circumstances to an officer or reserve officer of the enemy forces.

No male enemies, irrespective of age, are to be allowed to leave Australia during the war, and no female alien enemies without the permission of the Minister for Defence.

An alien enemy who, without the permission of the military authorities or senior police officer of the district in which he resides, is in possession during the war of (a) any petroleum, spirits, naphtha, benzol, or any inflammable material in quantity exceeding three gallons, or (b) any apparatus or contrivance intended for or capable of being used for signalling; or (c) any carrier or homing pigeons; or (d) any motor car, motor cycle, motor boat, yacht, or air craft; or (e) any cypher code, or other means of conducting secret correspondence; or (f) any telephone installation; or (g) any camera or other photographic apparatus; or (h) any military or naval map, chart, or handbook, may be deemed to be acting in a manner prejudicial to the public safety and to the defence of the Commonwealth, and be dealt with as provided in the War Precautions Regulations, 1914.

Alien enemy subjects are not permitted to frequent hotels or other licensed premises, or any places of public amusement. The withdrawal of parole will follow in cases where this order is disobeyed.

The circulation among alien enemies of any newspaper wholly or mainly in the language of the State or any part of the State at war with his Majesty is forbidden, unless with the permission of the military authorities.

EQUIPMENT.

MAXIMUM OUTPUT.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

The Minister for Defence was questioned to-day with reference to various rumours concerning lack of equipment and clothing for troops at present in camp. "My recent visits to the various camps," said Senator Pearce, "have served to impress the fact upon me that there are deficiencies in the matter of equipment. My attention is being given now to the pressing on of supplies. At present the requirements of the department are taxing the resources of the factories throughout the Commonwealth to the very utmost. As time goes on, however, the position will become easier, and one of the matters which I discussed and came into agreement upon with the Associated Chambers of Manufactures to-day was a closer co-operation of the department and the manufacturers with regard to the manufacture of the necessary equipment. We are now assured of the maximum output of the factories during the next few months, as the Chambers of Manufactures have promised to do their utmost with a view to that end being achieved.

THE AUSTRALIANS.

GLIMPSE OF CAIRO CAMP LIFE.

The Australians were having a gay time in Egypt when the last mail left. The "Egyptian Gazette" says that companies of Australians daily explore the inscrutable Sphinx of the Pyramids, and suffer considerably from the impositions and extortions of street touts, cabmen, etc., in Alexandria and Cairo.

"A broad military road leading to the camp has been cut," says the "Gazette," "and down this road the horses are being exercised, and forage carts, laden with meat and other provisions, are constantly moving. The camp is laid out in big squares throughout the whole length and breadth of the wide valley at the back of the Pyramids. In long rows the horses are tethered. Everywhere, on all sides, there is stir, hammering, frizzling of joints over huge wood fires, and pickets marching out. As one walks through the camp cheery greetings come from all sides, and bright faces, energy, strength, and activity are evident."

THE TEST.

We have heard the call of the Empire, we have seen the lure of the flag,
But here we have something greater than even the grand old rag.
For men may fall in their millions, women and children wail,
But the march of the people's freedom must never be known to fail.
The flag of the people's freedom floats over the fields of death,
And surely a freeborn people will fight to the last hot breath.
Surely the blood of the fighter runs in Australia's veins,
From the waves of her sparkling seaboard to the dust of her sun-scorched plains.

Why should you skulk in the city? Why should you hide in the street?
You who were made for the army, you who were bred for the fleet?
Is it that you have slumbered, that you have not heard the cry
Of the women and children wailing? Or listened and let go by?
Is it that you are fearful of the bayonet's stabbing bite?
Is it that you are shrinking from shells that shriek in the night?
Shells that shriek in their triumph through bodies bloody and torn,
Does the shock of the shrapnel scare you? Better you never were born.

Those who are God's true mothers, those who are worthy wives,
Think you they value their honour, or only your sloth-stained lives?
Will she who is worth the winning, she who is yet to be won,
Take to her maiden bosom one who has turned from a gun?
Can they not hear their sisters, and babes who wail in their woe,
Shrieking for men's assistance? And yet you have failed to go!
Think you that they can love you, men who have failed at need?
Could they be proud of the children born of such skulking breed?

For those on the field of slaughter, those on the watchful seas,
Mothers, and wives, and sweethearts, pray on their bended knees.
Who fight for the people's freedom, with bayonet, plough, or pen,
Those they will hold as heroes, these they will know as men.
Laggards in love and wartime, down on your knees and pray
For courage and manly vigour to fight as a fighter may.
For these are the things that matter, the only things that can,
Women, and war, and freedom, and courage to be a man.

WAR COMEDY.

HOW THE TURKS TRIUMPHED.

(COPYRIGHT RESERVED BY THE CROWN.)

MELBOURNE, Friday.

The following cable has been received from Captain C. E. W. Bean, Australian press representative with the Australian Expeditionary Imperial Force:—

Cairo, 28th, 8 p.m.—The attitude of the Turkish officials at coastal ports visited by British ships provides a continual comedy. A cruiser lately called at Sidon and landed a party of sailors. The commander of the Turkish troops said he was temporarily indisposed, and retired to a certain private room. He remained there till the British went away after a thoroughly successful friendly visit. Later the Governor of Damascus published a communique with an official account of how the Turkish troops, under their commander, bravely took up a position defending Sidon, and finally drove off the enemy. The communique caused considerable amusement when it reached Sidon. The cruiser again landed parties at Alexandretta, and there was no resistance.

The Australian first general hospital now occupies Heliopolis Palace Hotel, which is generally held to be one of the most magnificent hotels in the world. It is an immense stone building of Arabic style, surrounded by large gardens, in the centre of a new suburb, and was built by the Belgian Land Company on the desert north of Cairo. The whole suburb resembles a huge solidified white city. The hospital can hold 700 beds.

MOTOR LORRIES.

FOUR OR FIVE UNDER OFFER.

MORE FUNDS NEEDED.

"Although funds are coming in very freely," said Miss Marjorie M. Mort, yesterday, "we want more, as in addition to those already purchased, the Red Cross Society has four or five most suitable lorries under offer, and will be glad to hear from any persons desiring to present a lorry. Full particulars of suitable machines can be obtained at 215 George-street. Each lorry sent from New South Wales will bear the inscription: 'Australian Red Cross Society, N.S.W. Division,' and, if desired, will also have upon it the name of the branch or private donor presenting it. The people of New South Wales should be proud to think that the motherland has appealed directly to them in her hour of need, and surely they will not fail to respond to the utmost and send all the lorries they possibly can, so as to enable the British Red Cross Society to carry out its noble work in the most efficient manner possible."

The hon. treasurers (Mrs. Spencer Brunton and Mr. Wilfrid Docker), Norwich-chambers, Hunter-street, announce the receipt of the following:—

LOYAL NATIVES.

PATRIOTIC GIFTS IN THE ISLANDS.

The natives of the Ellice Islands recently approached the resident commissioner, Mr. Smith-Rewse, and suggested a fund for the relief needed in England on account of the war. As the commissioner was making his usual tour of the islands the natives brought forward their subscriptions, and each—even the poorest—tried to give a little more than the one previously visited.

The commissioner, at length, had to put a limit on the subscriptions of these loyal people in justice to themselves. The second officer of the steamer Tofua, Mr. M. Johnstone, referring to the patriotic action, says: "These natives are a grand race and a charming people, and are full of character. Their means of livelihood is in the making of copra, and in justice to them I hope that you will bring before the public an act which makes us Britons feel proud of the natives of our Pacific possessions."

The following subscriptions were sent by Mr. Smith Rewse to the High Commissioner of the Western Pacific in Suva, to be sent to England in aid of the War Fund:—Funafuti Island, £32; Nukufetao Island, £40; Vaitupu Island, £45; Nui Island, £50; Nanomea Island, £30; Nuitao Island, £20; Commissioner Smith-Rewse, £10; Captain Allan, steamship Dawn, £10; employees Samoan Shipping and Trading Company, £23/10/; J. and D. O'Brien, local traders, £30; Nitz, local trader, £2. Total, £292/10/.

There are two other islands which have not yet sent in their contributions.

BLUE CROSS.

WOUNDED WAR HORSES.

A HUMANE MOVEMENT.

"Our Dumb Friends' League," an old-established English society, recently started the Blue Cross Fund, the object of which is to help horses wounded in battle. The organisation is working in conjunction with the French Government. The Earl of Lonsdale and Lady Smith-Dorien are at the head of the British Blue Cross Fund, the English collections to which, at the end of November, amounted to £12,000.

Captain Claremont has charge of eight hospitals for wounded horses in France. He writes:—"Under shot and shell the horses are willing and eager to the death. In several cases they have brought their riders back from the charge, reached the lines with their last effort, and dropped dead when their riders were saved." "In a single meadow," Captain Claremont adds, "were 2000 of these poor beasts, some standing dazed, some running about quite mad, and some lying groaning and screaming in pain. I had always thought that the saddest sound in life was the cry of a little child until I heard the cries of these horses."

An appeal in this humane cause is now being made in this State. Mr. Harry Chisholm, of 60 Castlereagh-street, city, is acting as hon. secretary, and receiving subscriptions to the local Blue Cross Fund. Although the lists were only opened on Thursday £338 18s 3d has been subscribed. The Australian Jockey Club has given a generous lead with £300.

Mr. Chisholm states that, with the many calls on the public at the present time, he does not expect big donations from individual subscribers. Any sum will be acceptable, especially if given now, as the matter is one of urgency. He draws attention to the following extract from the Liturgy of our Russian Allies:—"For those, O Lord, the humble beasts who, with us, bear the burden and heat of the day, and offer their guileless lives for their countries, we supplicate Thy great tenderness of heart, for Thou hast promised to save both man and beast."

Subscriptions to date follow:—

Australian Jockey Club, £300; New South Wales Club (collected by E. Hirst), £3/17/3; George Osborne, £1; Frank Osborne, £1; Ben. M. Osborne, £1; Noel Mair, £1; J. M'Carthy, £1; Dr. Grassau, £1; W. Grassau, £1; H. Y. Gordon, £1; W. T. Forrest, £1; Henry R. Osborne, £1; J. Davies, £1; W. H. Kell, £1; Roy White, £1; Roy Chisholm, £5; W. Hill, £1; T. Rodgers, £1; A. Hordern, £1; S. Hordern, £1; A. Amanual, £1; John Ryrie, £1; Arthur Davies, £1; Rob. Maddrell, £1; Edgar Maddrell, £1; G. S. Morrish, £1; J. Sinclair, £1; H. V. Jaques, £1/1/; V. M'Kay, £1; N. M. Niverson, £1; A. T. Niverson, £1; Aymer Maxwell, £1; A. W. Whitney, £1. Total, £338/18/3.

FREEZING SPACE.

AUCKLAND, Friday.

Owing to the war and drought there is an unprecedented demand on freezing space for the purposes of export. Contractors for army supplies of beef for the Allies are offering inflated values for beef on hooks at Southdown works, as all space at the works had been previously booked. One firm is approaching the Premier with a view to bringing pressure to bear on the freezing company to take cattle intended for the army.

BRITAIN WANTS

AUSTRALIA'S WOOL.

ABLE TO TAKE THE WHOLE CLIP.

GERMAN COMPETITION ALLEGED.

FEDERAL ACTION PROMISED.

An influential deputation of wool buyers and brokers asked the Acting Prime Minister, Mr. W. M. Hughes, yesterday to assist them to prevent enemy subjects from exporting wool directly or indirectly to Germany.

The deputation was introduced by Mr. A. H. Moore, and consisted of Messrs. J. L. Row, E. R. Moser, J. H. Robinson, C. L. Wallis, and J. Leach, representing the Wool Selling Brokers' Association; and Messrs. Harry Austin, P. Lamerand, J. W. McGregor, J. Sykes, J. W Clough, Balthasar, T. Kitamurra, Booth, Ayrton, F. W. Hughes, and A. Duboc, representing the allied buyers.

Mr. Moore said the men who had supported the wool market recently had been Yorkshire and Japanese buyers principally. Everybody was pleased to see our Allies—France and Belgium—back in the market, but these two groups of buyers found as soon as they recommenced to operate that they were being seriously and unfairly interfered with by the action of certain German buyers. The French and Belgians also found that they were keeping on a certain number of employees, but at the same time could do nothing, owing to the fact that they were unable to get into communication with their houses at home, which were in many cases in the battle arena. Yet German buyers could get into touch with their houses by sending communications by way of America. Taking all these circumstances into account, buyers for the Allies said: "We are not going to bid if you allow wool to go into the enemy's hands."

LICENSES PROPOSED.

Mr. Hughes: What remedy do you propose?

Mr. Moore: We ask that licences be granted by the Federal Government to buyers who can prove they are not dealing directly or indirectly with the enemy.

Mr. F. W. Hughes said it was absolutely unfair that Germans and Austrians should be allowed to trade, whilst French and Belgians were giving their lives on the battlefields fighting the battle of Australia just as much as of their own country. They wanted to eliminate every chance of supplies of wool reaching Germany. In spite of the action of the Government German firms, or firms of German constitution, which hitherto had had practically no American connections, had plunged into the Sydney market with large orders. These were being executed, and the goods sent to America. He referred to a German firm which he said had had what amounted to almost a monopoly of the export from Australia of the raw material for which gelatine, used in the manufacture of explosives, could be made. Previous to the outbreak of war, the product had been continuously sent to Germany direct, but now it was sent to America.

Mr. Clough, president of the Wool Buyers' Association, referred to the dealings of a firm of Germans, who could not get wool from Australia, but who, nevertheless, were allowed the freedom to develop an oversea business with America. These Germans were reservists, and were making use of our banks and of our ships. We were thus trying to protect the business which they were being allowed to build up, and which would become greater after the war. Just now Germans were able to use negotiable documents, and thus a safe means was available for them to carry on financial transactions with Germany.

MR. HUGHES IN REPLY.

The Acting Prime Minister (Mr. Hughes) in reply, said: Perhaps one of the chief motives which had induced Germany to precipitate the war and prepare for it for 40 years was her envy of the commercial position of Britain, and in the hope that she (Germany) might by a tour de force be herself where we were. It appeared from the statement of the deputation, and which he assumed to be accurate, that Belgium and France, to a less extent, which normally absorbed very large quantities of our wool, were practically out of action—a large number of their factories were closed down. Competition in the normal and fair sense of the term between Germany, France, and Belgium, so far as our wool was concerned, was no longer possible. Trade with Germany, directly or indirectly, and it was a round-about way Germany were taking, was an intolerable, impossible, and unfair handicap on France and Belgium. "It is vital to Australia to sell our wool," he continued. "But there does not seem to be any reason why we should not sell our wool without selling it to Germany or to persons about whose bonafides we have reason to be in doubt. You will quite understand one hesitates to admit that America is allowing herself to be used as a channel from Australia to Germany, and I cannot accept that as a statement of the facts." At the same time, Mr. Hughes continued, he had listened very carefully to the statement which had been made in this direction, and which, perhaps, supported an assumption that America was a conduit pipe for Germany. He had taken a note of the remarks regarding the export of raw material for gelatine extraction, but whilst the case was a most important one, it was a simple one. The request that the Government shall lend you their aid is nothing but fair. The suggestion that the Government should do everything to discourage competition by Germans about whose bonafides there was reason to be suspicious was very proper, and would be acceded to. The question as to how it would be done was a matter with which they were not materially concerned, so long as it was done effectively. He would not commit himself to the proposition regarding licenses; but as to the tightening of restrictions upon exports the Government would give this their most careful and immediate attention.

ATTITUDE OF GOVERNMENT.

"I think I ought to say here," Mr. Hughes added, "that the Government has information that Great Britain is able to take the whole of the wool clip of Australia. I have a communication here on the matter which is confidential, but I think I ought to say that much to you because you are very materially concerned in the matter, and because it is very pertinent to the issue in respect to it."

Mr. Hughes concluded by saying that propositions had been made to the Federal Government that licenses should be given German and alien buyers to store wool until the end of the war. This left untouched a means whereby German credit and finance could be strengthened. Whilst the German could not draw against it in the ordinary way, he had no doubt he would be in an immediate position to benefit financially, and would be, in any case, at the end of the war, in a better position than if the wool had been sold to a Frenchman, a Belgian, or a Japanese.

The attitude of the Government was to support the resources of Great Britain and her Allies to the uttermost, and at the same time to do this in such a way as not to hinder or to place an obstacle in the way of the volume of trade or industry of the country. The representations of the deputation would be most carefully considered, and they might rest assured upon this point that the Government would support them so far as they could in their attitude to discourage German competition. The Government would prevent by every means at their disposal wool or financial aid as a result of deals in wool from reaching Germany either directly or through America in any circumstances whatsoever.

SHORTAGE OF OFFICERS.

MINISTER'S DENIAL.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

It has been frequently stated recently, even by members of the units in training at Broadmeadows camp, that one of the difficulties with which the defence authorities are confronted was the shortage of officers for contingents which are undergoing training for active service. The Minister for Defence, Senator Pearce, stated to-day that no report of any such shortage had reached him or the defence authorities. On the contrary, they had the assurance that through the various schools of instruction in Victoria and the other States a quite sufficient staff of officers was coming forward as contingents were being formed.

OUR TROOPS.

VOLUNTEERING CONTINUES.

NEW TRAINING CODE.

The week, which concludes to-day (the fourth since the Christmas and New Year holidays), has hardly been productive of the same amount of recruiting achieved during the previous three weeks, when, for the whole period, the average was 1000 per week. But the result, as it now stands, is more than equal to the average obtained before Christmas. There was, for November and December, approximately 500 enrolments per week, and that was more than the Commonwealth was guaranteeing to supply. Since the New Year this total has been doubled, and, if it should not be actually doubled when this week's figures are made up, the total should be very little below the new average of 1000 per week. Monday saw nearly three hundred recruits; Tuesday, being Anniversary Day, was practically a dies non; Wednesday brought another century; so did Thursday; and yesterday Staff Sergeant-Major H. M. Scott put through close on 200. It will be seen therefore, that the call to duty, without any special appeal being made, is proving more than equal to present Commonwealth Government requirements.

What the Defence Minister knows, and what he has sent on to the leader of the Opposition can only be surmised, but the fact remains that Australian volunteering is a long way ahead of the resources—such as the supply of rifles, ammunition, clothing, and general equipment.

Acts of gallantry and devotion to duty in many other respects, are to be rewarded by medals for "distinguished conduct" in respect of the Australian Imperial Expeditionary Force. The "Army Orders," issued in November, contains the names of about 30 men of different ranks who have earned this distinction. The chief interest to the men from Australia, however, is that, what has been gained by men of the Imperial Forces is open equally to them. One point which will merit more than ordinary consideration, is that comrades are allowed to select, by their own vote, those of their number who are, in their opinion, deserving of this special recognition. The list of distinctions refers to men who did deeds of gallantry in various aspects under varying conditions of danger. For instance, it is mentioned that a private, although wounded, remained with his gun in the firing line at Nery. A sergeant for handling his troops with great coolness and determination and by getting round the enemy's flank, brought a well-directed fire to bear on hostile supports. Others conveyed messages by day and night under circumstances dangerous to themselves; one man, under heavy fire, carried forward ammunition over open stubble fields. Another man is mentioned as having carried out orders under distinctly heavy firing; another man is mentioned for catching and bringing back loose ammunition pack-horses, also under heavy fire. The Commonwealth Government has specially asked that these distinctions conferred upon troops of all grades should be made known to Australians as under offer to them, also, for any deeds of gallantry and devotion that should come under official recognition.

Yesterday's district order contained the governing conditions for infantry training, as already outlined. It was stated that this new training code will be taken into use forthwith for the training of the Australian Imperial Force, the Citizen Forces, and the Senior Cadets. The adoption of four company organisation for infantry battalion and senior cadets will date as from July 1, 1915.

Intimation has been received from the secretary of the National Rifle Association, Surrey, England, that, at the request of Colonel R. W. Schumacher, the Council of the National Rifle Association has decided in consequence of the war to suspend the Empire Day Challenge Cup competition for the year 1915.

It is notified for information that members of the military forces attending a fete in aid of the Belgian and Red Cross Funds, to be held in the grounds of Clifton, Kirribilli Point, on the 30th instant, may do so in uniform.

Mr. R. Bedell-Sievright, who captained the English Rugby team which visited Australia and New Zealand a few years ago, has gone to the front.

Among those doing duty in London as special constables are Messrs. Bertie Darley, W. M. Allen, and E. Southeuse, all of Sydney. Sir John Fuller, formerly Governor of Victoria, is at the head of one division.

"White Cedar:" There is but one shift being worked at the Lithgow Small Arms Factory— 7 a.m. to 5 p.m., overtime included.

"Subscriber, J. W.:" If you were at the Boer war and have medals, it might be possible to get a record of your engagements by applying to the Commandant of the State you then represented.

"Corporal:" You can assist in home defence by joining a local rifle club. The age limit does not apply there, as in the case of the Expeditionary Forces.

"H. P.:" There is no present call for motor drivers. You can enlist and leave with the A.A.G. your qualifications for any distinctive rank.

AUSTRALIANS IN EGYPT.

RABBITS AS MASCOTS.

GOULBURN, Friday.

Signaller Isaac, of the 3rd Battery of the First Division of the Expeditionary Force in Egypt, in a letter to his parents, states that the Zoo at Cairo is credited with being the best in the world, and he thinks it must be correct. "There is one animal missing, and that is the kangaroo, but there are about a dozen pet ones here in camp, which have all been given to the Zoo, though they stay with us until we leave Egypt. An enormous number of European residents of Egypt visit the camp, and are all very much taken up with the pet kangaroos. The New South Wales troops were not allowed to bring any mascots, but the artillery managed to get some rabbits somewhere in Cairo, and we have them quartered in an artificial burrow in the centre of a map of Australia made on the ground with white stones. They are very quiet and never attempt to go away." The writer says that in connection with Sir George Reid's visit, the statement appeared in one of the Cairo newspapers that "Australia was part of the New Zealand Commonwealth." A letter later appeared from one of the troops correcting this statement.

"WE WANT YOU NOW."

MINISTER'S APPEAL.

ENLIST OR JOIN THE RIFLE CLUBS.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

"My earnest word to every man who feels that he ought to present himself for active service, and that he can offer himself, is, 'Come, we want you now;' and to the man who feels that at present for private reasons he cannot offer himself my appeal is, 'Join the rifle club nearest to your home, and induce others to join. When you have joined, drill, and induce the other members to drill.' If you are capable of imparting drill instruction, offer yourself in that capacity. I want you to realise that I am in earnest about this business. We want all the men that we can get."

These words were spoken to-day by the Minister for Defence (Senator Pearce).

GERMAN SHIPS.

PERTH, Friday.

The annual report of the Fremantle Harbour Trust Commissioners states that during the year ended June 30, 1914, the number of German ships using the port while engaged in the Australian-European trade (excluding ships trading between Australia and America) was 66, the number of ships' entries made being 135, with an aggregate net tonnage of 424,227. These ships paid in port dues £4533, and £3491 in light dues. The cargo landed from them was 57,269 tons, and they shipped 35,264 tons, making a total of 92,533 tons, on which the wharfage and harbour improvement charges amounted to £9997, and handling charges £5434, which were paid to the trust. The amount of disbursements, apart from dues, was estimated to total £34,500.

RECRUITING AMONG POLICE.

PERTH, Friday.

In the Legislative Assembly a motion by Mr. Johnson that the Government allow the police to volunteer for military service under a guarantee that their positions would be kept open was rejected. The Premier declared that the police force was too shorthanded to spare constables.

RED CROSS.

RAILWAY OFFICERS' DONATION.

The New South Wales division of the Australian Red Cross Society cabled yesterday arranging for the erection, equipment, and maintenance of three huts at the Red Cross Hospital, Netley. The cost of erection and the equipment for each hut is £300, and the weekly maintenance per hut is £20. Each hut contains 30 beds, and has every convenience for both nurses and patients. This contribution to the work of the British Red Cross Society has been undertaken by the New South Wales railway and tramway officers, and the huts will be inscribed "From the New South Wales railways and tramway officers, Australian Red Cross, N.S.W. Division." Besides this magnificent contribution, the officers have given two motor ambulances to the Red Cross society, and subscribed largely to the Patriotic Fund, Chamber of Commerce, and the Belgian funds. Red Cross workers are reminded that the Lady Mayoress's sewing circle will re-open on Monday next.

SOCK FUND.

Last Saturday Mrs. Jopp and a committee issued an appeal for socks for the soldiers at the front. In four days material and money for 1400 pairs had been subscribed. The fund is still increasing, and it is now found that no more socks can be obtained. In the meantime, money is being received for other necessary comforts for the troops.

The committee of the fund comprises the following ladies:—Mesdames Keith Jopp, Dean Thomson, Phillip Street, W. Street, J. Donkin, Hixon, W. S. Gordon, H. Merewether, Learoyd, Orr, Davis, T. Walker, and Reid.

The contributions received of sums varying from 6d to 10s amount to £41 6s 3d.

BANK'S PATRIOTIC ACT.

At the meeting of the shareholders of the Australian Bank of Commerce yesterday the chairman, Sir W. P. Manning, said:—

"With the full approval of the board, 26 members of the staff had volunteered for military service abroad. Leave of absence had been granted until the end of the war, and positions in the bank would be available on their return to duty. Any deficiency in these officers' military pay, as compared with their salaries, would be made up to them by the bank; and their interests in the bank's pension fund were being maintained."

MOTOR AMBULANCES.

Messrs. John Williamson and Sons, who have been interesting themselves in the appeal made by the Minister for Defence for an additional 25 motor ambulances for the efficient equipment of the Australian Field Hospital, and who have undertaken the work of enlisting subscriptions for, at least, one ambulance, specially desire subscribers to forthwith forward on their donations, inasmuch as it is imperative that the ambulance should be forwarded to our troops in their field of operations at the earliest possible moment.

DIED AT SEA.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

The Minister for Defence (Senator Pearce) announced to-day that he had received information to the effect that Private Phillip Edward Carlton, No. 421, 15th Battalion, died at sea from pneumonia on the 24th inst. His father's address is post-office, Bowen.

WHEAT PROBLEM.

FURTHER PROTEST BY FARMERS.

WAGGA, Friday.

The meeting organised by the district council of the Farmers and Settlers' Association to protest against the Wheat Acquisition Act was attended by about 300 farmers, including Mr. Patten, M.P., and Mr. Trethowen, vice-president of the association.

Mr. George Lindon moved, "That this public meeting emphatically protests against the Wheat Acquisition Act, as we consider it a direct violation of our rights as citizens under the Federal Constitution." He regretted the necessity of making a protest against the action of a Government which was supposed to look after the farmers. The latter had enough to contend with in drought, to say nothing of the war, without having to suffer by the Government practically robbing farmers of their rights. Wheat to grow this year cost him 15/ a bushel, and he challenged the Government to show that on the Wagga Experiment Farm they had grown a bushel at less than 15/.

Mr. E. J. Sullivan seconded the motion, and said the working classes were not gaining anything by the Act, as Mr. Hall's claim to cheapen the loaf of bread had been exploded. There was a political dodge behind the whole thing. Mr. Hall had claimed that farmers were satisfied because their contracts for sale prior to September 15 had been broken. That was a dangerous proceeding, and not one farmer had asked for the provision. While some had taken advantage of the clause, other farmers had held to their contracts, and sold their wheat at the price agreed upon, thereby defying the Acquisition Act.

Mr. Patten said the Ministers were still trying to induce the people to believe that the farmers supported them in the "lovely act of piracy" they had committed. If the Government reduced the price of bread to 3½d to the constituents of the State bakery there might be some justification for the entry into private enterprise, but at present there was no justification.

The motion was carried unanimously. It was also resolved to commend the action of the Federal Attorney-General in seeking to have the legality of the Act tested, and the action of the association in appealing to the Interstate Commission.

REDUCED SERVICES.

BALMAIN FERRY.

The Balmain New Ferry Company has decided to reduce the number of trips on certain services. The following notice, which the company is about to issue, will explain the reason:—"On and after February 1, in consequence of the reduced number of passengers now travelling, owing to the business depression caused by the war, the company regrets that it is compelled to reduce the number of trips on all services."

Mr. Grattan, secretary of the company, informed a "Herald" reporter that a new timetable would be issued during the day. With respect to the Mort's Dock service, he said that no alteration had been made. Under the old timetable the Darling-street boats ran every 10 minutes during the slack hours of the day, viz., 7.40 to 9.20 a.m. and 4.20 to 6.40 p.m.; under the new timetable the service would be a 20-minutes one during the slack time of the day. On the Bald Rock service the 15-minutes trips during the slack time of the day had been altered to half-hourly trips. In other respects no material change had been made. Mr. Grattan said that the reduction in the number of trips would affect a number of employees, but the company was trying to arrange to keep on the whole of the staff, even though they would not all be fully employed. The company had asked the Masters and Engineers' Association to make suggestions by which the work could be shared by the whole of the hands while the reduced services were maintained.

COPRA CARGOES.

ISLAND TRADERS' COMPLAINT.

The Minister for External Affairs (Mr. Mahon) was waited upon yesterday by a deputation of traders in the New Hebrides. A complaint was made to the Minister that the traders were at the mercy of one firm in regard to the selling and shipping of copra cargoes. They alleged that they had to sell the copra to that firm at its own price or else it would not be shipped away from the islands.

Mr. Mahon indicated that he had only heard one side of the case. He would look into the matter, and hear what the other side had to say before giving any answer.

INTERSTATE CRICKET.

VICTORIA v. QUEENSLAND.

VICTORIA LEADS.

BRISBANE, Friday.

The match between Victoria and Queensland was begun to-day on the Brisbane Cricket Ground. The wicket was good, and the out-field in splendid order. The attendance was only 200. Queensland's innings lasted only 97 minutes. Ryder and Park opened for Victoria, but both were soon dismissed. At the tea adjournment five wickets had fallen for 66 runs. Armstrong, who came in at the fall of the sixth wicket, was soon at home, and scored 56 before Barstow bowled him. Matthews batted well for 32, which took him 77 minutes to make. The innings concluded for 179, made in 158 minutes. Scores:—

RIFLE CLUBS.

SENATOR PEARCE'S VIEW.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

Referring to-day to the views of Mr. A. C. Carmichael, New South Wales Minister for Education, regarding the formation of national rifle clubs throughout Australia, the Minister for Defence (Senator Pearce) said they had been provided for by the Defence Act, with the idea of expansion. He had every sympathy with the idea of their expansion. "During my visit to New South Wales," he continued, "I publicly took part in various meetings for that purpose, and I should be glad to see the same enthusiasm in other States. I believe there are some people who cannot see their way clear to go to the front at present, but who may afterwards arrange to go, and by undergoing drill now they will be so much nearer being fit. Every man we can train in war time is an asset, and the value of that asset depends on their training."

THE ATHLETES.

Notwithstanding the uncomfortable conditions governing drill on wet turf, there was a splendid roll up of members of the Athletic Sports Rifle Club at the Sydney Cricket Ground on Thursday. This was the second parade, and the attendance (250) included 50 new members who enrolled and paid their subscriptions on the ground. Almost every branch of sport was represented, and the squad was composed, as nearly as possible, to meet the desires of each particular faculty. The men are entering into the drill cheerfully. In future parades on Tuesdays and Thursdays will be held. Those anxious to join the movement must do so at once.

HIGHLY-PAID OFFICERS.

LABOUR FEDERATION'S PROTEST.

PERTH, Friday.

The Premier (Mr. Scaddan) was taken to task at last night's meeting of the Labour Federation for the proposed introduction of a 44-hours week in the railway service. Speaking to a resolution of protest against the Premier's remarks on the subject, Mr. Pratt, delegate of the Railway Employees' Union, asked why a man drawing £2000 a year, who had just returned from a jaunt round the world, and other officers, who had had their salaries increased since the Labour Government came into power, did not set the rank and file a good example by cutting down their own salaries before they tackled the man with 9s per day? A lady delegate said that she did not regard 9s per day as a living wage. The resolution was agreed to.

OFF THE HEADS.

VESSELS IN COLLISION.

A collision occurred off Sydney Heads early yesterday morning, between the pilot steamer Captain Cook and the Hawkesbury River S.N. Company's steamer Erringhi.

The Erringhi, which is a wooden steamer of 66 tons, arrived off the Heads shortly after midnight, and the Captain Cook later steamed out to give the vessel permission to enter the port.

The Captain Cook approached the Erringhi. The swell caused the pilot steamer's bow to dip, and her bowsprit struck the Erringhi on the port side. The bowsprit snapped an iron stanchion near the bridge of the Erringhi, and carried away portion of the roofing, and other tophamper on the port side.

The Erringhi afterwards entered the harbour, and proceeded to the company's wharf in Darling Harbour. She sustained no damage below the waterline, and was able to proceed to sea last night.

PRICE OF OATMEAL.

The New South Wales manufacturers of oatmeal asked the Necessary Commodities Control Commission yesterday for permission to increase the price of oatmeal from time to time, and that the present increase be £5 a ton. The price had increased already by £4 10s a ton since the outbreak of the war, so that the advance now asked for would bring the increase to £9 10s a ton since July. The price of oats in that period had increased 100 per cent. Tasmania had only a small supply of oats available, and, as for New Zealand, manufacturers here had been informed that if the tariff here were reduced the price of New Zealand oats would be put up.

FATAL DIVE.

Last Tuesday Mr. Roy Carman and his brother Frank were swimming in the Rushcutter Bay Baths. The former dived in shallow water, and received fatal injuries. The deceased, who was born in Burnie, Tasmania, came to Sydney about three years ago. He was one of the founders of the Darlinghurst Concert Band. He was buried on Thursday in the Randwick General Cemetery.

SAD CASE OF SHOP-LIFTING.

PERTH, Friday.

The case in which a young married woman, wife of an Imperial reservist who has gone to the war, pleaded guilty to extensive shoplifting from a city drapery firm, was before the police court yesterday. The arresting constable said the case was a sad one. The woman had been left on her own resources with four young children to look after, her only means of livelihood consisting of 1s a day from the Imperial Government and 30s per week from the local distress fund. Accused, who sobbed bitterly, was treated as a first offender, and was bound over to be of good behaviour for six months.

DEATH BY MISADVENTURE.

PERTH, Friday.

The inquiry into the death of Frederich Franks, who died at Collie from a bullet wound, on January 17, resulted in a verdict of death by misadventure. The evidence showed that Franks drank heavily, especially on paydays, illtreated his wife and threatened her life. His son Albert, aged 16, who frequently intervened to protect his mother, heard her cry for help. He got a revolver, loaded it, and ran to the window. He saw his father had his mother by the throat. He thrust the revolver through the window, intending to frighten the father, when the revolver went off and shot him.

BROKEN HILL'S EXODUS.

BROKEN HILL, Friday.

The town clerk reported that, on account of the war and the slackness of trade and the money shortage, approximately 10,000 people had left the town. As a result the sanitary service was run at a great loss, and he suggested a wholesale reorganisation, to reduce the men to five days per week, and to knock off vans and a number of horses also, because of the high cost of chaff and bran.

FATAL QUARREL.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

After hearing the result of the post mortem examination on the body of James Walker, marine dealer, who died at Bendigo on Friday night after an altercation with his son, Albert Walker, who was subsequently arrested on a charge of murder, the District Coroner said there was nothing in the evidence to say that anyone was criminally responsible for the death. An autopsy showed that deceased died from heart failure. Albert Walker was accordingly discharged.

NEW ZEALAND'S EXPORTS.

WELLINGTON (N.Z.), Friday.

Addressing a public meeting, Mr. Massey said he believed a record of exports would be established, and stated that the figures supplied him showed that during the year ended December 31 the value of the exports of produce was £26,261,447. Details were as under: Wool, over £9,000,000; butter, £2,300,000; cheese, £2,500,000; beef, over £1,000,000; lamb, £2,500,000; mutton, £2,500,000; sheepskins, £656,000; tallow, £694,000; oats, £166,000; hides, £350,000. The figures, commented Mr. Massey, made a total of £22,000,000 raised directly from the soil of the country.

DOCK AT COCKBURN SOUND.

PERTH, Friday.

The Premier (Mr. Scaddan) received a telegram from the Commonwealth Government to the effect that it had been decided to place a floating dock at Henderson naval base, Cockburn Sound.

WHY MEAT IS DEAR.

PASTORALISTS' VIEWS.

RAILWAYS AND THE DROUGHT

TRUCK PROBLEM.

A number of pastoralists yesterday gave evidence before the Necessary Commodities Control Commission, as to the causes of meat being dear. Mr. Justice Edmunds presided. Mr. J. Mair appeared for the Pastoralists' Union and Stock Owners' Association; Mr. Fallick for the Carcase Butchers' Association; and Mr. Chisholm for the Sydney Fat Stock Salesmen.

Mr. John Robertson, a grazier of Hay, said the severe drought in his district had been responsible to a large extent for the increased price of meat. At ordinary times, his property carried from 40,000 to 50,000 sheep, but at the present time he had only 20,000, and half of these were being hand fed. As a result of the drought, no owners in his district had any fat stock.

Mr. William Wilson Killen, grazier, of Merribee, near Barellan, said the present drought was about as severe as the 1902 drought, but in Riverina it was worse. The price of stock in 1902 was considerably higher than now. In 1902 he secured 23s for prime wethers. For the same conditioned wethers he was now receiving from 24s to 25s. Meat was dearer in 1902 than now. The increase in dairying and closer settlement had been the means of preventing the greater breeding of beef cattle. Country that had been utilised for fattening and breeding was now used for wheat growing and dairying. New South Wales in the past had received large drafts of cattle from Queensland, but not now. In fact, Queensland was now getting stock from New South Wales. He was feeding his sheep on Merribee, and this was costing him 2s per head per month. He had had to wait for trucks to send his stock to market. He was of the opinion that the drought was responsible for no lambing in places for two years. He never kept fat stock back for a higher market.

Higher wages, increased cost of stores, the blow-fly, and increased taxation, said Mr. Killen, were the reasons for increasing the cost of running stations 25 to 30 per cent. Dingoes had increased, and they had been responsible for reducing the lambing in some places in the west by one-half. The higher cost of handling the meat was one of the causes of the increased price of meat.

Mr. William Henry Wheatley, of Goulburn, said sheep were much dearer in 1902 than now. He had paid 40s at Homebush for sheep, and got £33 for a bullock. He had noticed in some of the Queensland meat works they were killing three and four year old steers. He complained of the delay in receiving trucks in New South Wales for the transport of stock. In Queensland, he had seen a stock train sent from Longreach to Brisbane, 828 miles, in 56 hours. The passenger trains stood aside to enable these special stock trains to get through. He had urged the local Railway Commissioners to allow the stock trains to follow the mail trains. He believed that fat sheep, trucked from Moree to Flemington, would lose 10lb in weight. The stock should be killed in the country and sent to Sydney. There would be less loss of weight.

In reply to Mr. Chisholm, the witness said that stock-owners obtained a better train service for their stock for market 15 or 20 years ago than now.

Mr. Alexander Glen Stephenson, grazier, in the Hay district, said he had had great loss through the lack of trucks. He had to wait two months before he got trucks to remove his starving stock. Twenty years ago, he trucked fat stock on Tuesday for the Thursday's sale; now the Railway Commissioners would not guarantee to land stock trucked on the Tuesday for Thursday's sale, hence they had to truck 24 hours earlier. In his dealings with the Victorian railways, he had no difficulty; the Victorian Stock Department was excellently well managed. He had experienced trouble with the New South Wales railways recently. It took 72 hours to truck a valuable horse from Wagga to Cooma, and though he had communicated with the Commissioners, he had not received any reply.

In reply to Mr. Moore, the witness said he had never heard of the agents putting their heads together to regulate the number of stock yarded in the market.

In reply to Mr. Connington, the witness said he sent most of his fat stock to Victoria. If the New South Wales Railway Commissioners made adequate arrangements for the transit of their stock, they would get a great number more for Sydney.

PERSONAL.

The Acting Prime Minister (Mr. Hughes) received a visit yesterday afternoon from the Governor of the Commonwealth Bank (Mr. Denison Miller). Subsequently Mr. Hughes inspected the new bank premises that are being built at the corner of Pitt and Moore streets.

The Minister for External Affairs (Mr. Mahon) leaves Sydney for Melbourne by the Indarra this afternoon.

The Minister for Home Affairs (Mr. Archibald) has arranged to leave Sydney on Sunday night for Port Waratah on a visit of inspection.

The Postmaster-General (Mr. Spence) will attend the picnic of the A.W.U. to-day.

The Premier, Mr. Holman, is expected to return from Mount Kosciusko early next week. He is reported to be in more vigorous health.

The State Attorney-General, Mr. Hall, will return from New Zealand on Tuesday.

The Acting Premier of New South Wales (Mr. Cann) interviewed the Acting Prime Minister (Mr. Hughes) yesterday concerning the relations existing between the Commonwealth and the State.

Mr. E. Jacomb, a barrister at Vila, in the New Hebrides, who has just returned from a visit to England, will be a passenger by the Makambo next Monday on his return to the islands.

Sir Robert Best, member for Kooyong in the House of Representatives, and formerly Minister for Customs, is, with Lady Best, spending a holiday in New Zealand.

Mr. H. N. Southwell, who left Australia on a visit to Europe in search of health some months ago, has now quite recovered. Mr. Southwell, who has resigned his position at Paling and Co.'s, finds London at the present time of such engrossing interest that he intends to remain until the end of the war.

The Chief Engineer for Commonwealth Railways (Mr. N. G. Bell) left Melbourne for Sydney last night. On Sunday Mr. Bell will join in the visit of Commonwealth Ministers to Newcastle for the purpose of inspecting the Broken Hill Proprietary Company's new steel works.

Dr. Lee Brown was entertained by the Kensington Literary Institute at a smoke concert on Thursday evening, and presented with an illuminated address in recognition of his services as president for three years.

Mr. J. J. Ranshaw, of the account branch of the Office of Director-General of Public Health, was made a presentation yesterday by his fellow officers, to mark the occasion of his recent marriage. The presentation was made by Dr. R. T. Paton, Director-General of Public Health.

The New Zealand Institute has awarded the Hector Medal for Geological Research to Professor Marshall, of Dunedin.

COMMERCIAL BANK OF AUSTRALIA

MELBOURNE, Friday.

Messrs. Blake and Riggall, on behalf of certain preference shareholders in the Commercial Bank of Australia, have issued the following statement in reference to the rearrangement of the share basis of the bank. Assuming litigation is undesirable, the following terms of settlement are proposed:—

A (1) The preference to write off £2 per share, retaining a preference of 5 per cent. on £6 per share; the ordinary to be increased to £1/10/ per share; after the ordinary have received 5 per cent. all shares to rank alike. (2) The preference to write off £2 per share, and surrender the preference rights; the ordinary to be increased to £1 per share, all shares to rank alike for dividends; or

B. The preference to write off £2/10/ per share, and retain a preference of 6 per cent. for 10 years; the ordinary to be increased to £1/10/ per share, and after they have received 6 per cent. all shares to rank alike.

NEW ZEALAND WOOL SALES.

WELLINGTON (N.Z.), Friday.

At the Napier wool sales competition was keen, and prices advanced. Crossbreds reached 14d.

BARRIER DISTRESS.

CASES OF SWINDLING.

BOGUS APPEALS.

BROKEN HILL, Friday.

Joseph Evanoff, 30, a Bulgarian, a trucker, was charged at the police court with pretending to a constable that his name was Vinoff; that he was married, and had been unemployed for six months; that his wife, child, and himself were starving, and wanted a Government pass to go to work at Condobolin, by means of which false pretence he obtained a railway ticket to Condobolin from the Minister for Works with intent to defraud. He showed the constable a woman and a child, and said they were his wife and baby. The constable afterwards found them to be the wife and child of another man; that Evanoff had been a regular worker, and had sold the ticket for 14s to another man. He was fined £5.

Mr. C. F. Butler, S.M., said investigation was being made into a number of other downright swindles. People had been obtaining Government relief who had no right to it. There had been some diabolical cases among them. One person had been in employment the whole time he had been getting relief orders, which he had been selling. Further prosecutions are pending.

The City Council carried a motion by Dr. Booth, seconded by Alderman Rowe, to request the Government to give the council control of the relief money expended in Broken Hill. Dr. Booth stated that about £6000 had been expended, yet the city was not one bit better. Money had been given to undeserving people. If the council had control of the money it would be expended on streets, which urgently needed attention.

WIRE-WORKERS.

TO RESUME ON MONDAY.

After being on strike for about two months because of a disinclination to work with non-union labour, the wireworkers have decided to resume on Monday at the establishment of Lysaght Bros. and Co., Ltd., Abbotsford. The terms will, it is stated, be those mutually agreed upon between the deputation from the Labour Council and the management.

NEWCASTLE.

STOCKTON WATER SUPPLY.

NEWCASTLE, Friday.

Stockton, which has made great progress during the past few years, and which may become largely populated owing partly to its close proximity to the steel works and Government workshops, is likely to remain without a water supply for two or three years.

At the Hunter District Water Supply and Sewerage Board it was stated that in addition to the difficulty of selecting a route for the pipe line it was inexpedient for the board to undertake the extension of the water supply to Stockton until some satisfactory arrangements had been made for amplifying the present water supply works, so as to assure the maintenance of the supply. The board decided to inform the Board of Fire Commissioners to that effect.

HOSPITAL NEEDS FUNDS.

The annual meeting of subscribers to the Newcastle Hospital was held last night, with Mr. A. A. Rankin presiding.

The report stated that financially the past year had been a very bad one. The credit balance to commence the year 1915 with was only £102, while the cost of maintenance, on the barest possible basis, without allowing for anything in the way of emergency expenditure, was £525 per month. The total amount received as regular subscriptions during the year was only £442, not nearly sufficient to maintain the hospital for one month. As the accommodation of the hospital was being rapidly increased to endeavour to keep pace with the ever-growing demands of the district, and no corresponding increase of revenue was forthcoming to meet the additional cost of maintenance, the committee of management was faced with the responsibility of considering the question of the advisableness of reducing the accommodation of the institution within the limits of its income, until such time as adequate arrangements were made to allow of the whole of the capacity of the hospital being utilised to the best advantage, and that could only be effected by the subscriptions being increased and the subscribers' list extended.

NEW TARIFF.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

In anticipation of the visit of the Minister for Customs (Mr. Tudor) to Sydney, merchants and others interested in the new tariff are deluging the department with applications for deputations. Already twelve deputations have been arranged, and others are under consideration. Mr. Tudor leaves for Sydney on Monday, and expects to be kept busy there till the following Saturday. He will be accompanied by the Comptroller-General (Mr. Mills).

ALLEGED TRADE WITH ENEMY

ADELAIDE, Friday.

Alfred Joseph Coulls, clerk, came before the Adelaide Police Court this morning on a charge that, during the continuance of the war, he had aided, abetted, counselled, and procured Francis Hugh Snow, broker and merchant, of Adelaide, unlawfully to attempt to trade with the enemy, namely:—Aaron Hirsch.

A further remand until February 9 was granted by consent, Coulls to be released on his own recognisances of £300.

ALLEGED MUTINY.

THE KANOWNA TROUBLE.

BRISBANE, Friday.

The Kanowna inquiry was resumed to-day, when Captain John Lewis Ward gave evidence. He emphatically denied that he was under the influence of liquor when the alleged mutiny occurred. Neither did he come aboard at Port Moresby under the influence of liquor. He denied emphatically that he had caused the men to be arrested out of revenge for some previous trouble.

Witness, in cross-examination, admitted that the firemen who had interviewed him were coming off work, and that it might be eight hours before they would have an opportunity of refusing duty.

Mr. Sullivan (counsel for the Federated Seamen's Union): The chief engineer says there was no mutiny.

Witness: I consider it was mutiny when those five men came to me interfering with me in the execution of my duty in regard to the water supply.

Mr. Sullivan: So that was the mutiny?

Witness: Yes.

The case was further adjourned till to-morrow.

MEAT INDUSTRIES' EMPLOYEES.

ADELAIDE, Friday.

Mr. A. W. Styles, M.L.C., was a passenger by the express on Friday for Sydney. He will, as Federal president of the Australian Meat Industry Employees' Union, attend an executive meeting of that body in conference with the executive of the A.W.U. Convention, now being held there to discuss the proposed amalgamation of the two bodies. Some time ago an agreement on the subject was entered into by the two executives, but it has to be ratified by the unions in the various States before being put into operation. So far, three of the States have voted for, and three against, the amalgamation. It was hoped that the matter would be finalised at this conference.

NORTH COAST RAILWAY.

GRAFTON, Friday.

A public meeting last night was addressed by delegates from Woolgoolga in favour of causing further inquiry respecting a deviation in the North Coast railway line, via Woolgoolga, as against the Coramba route. It was stated that recent surveys show that the Woolgoolga deviation would effect a saving of £166,000, yet the Minister for Works decided in favour of the Coramba route. The following resolution was carried:—"That, in view of the enormous saving effected by adopting the deviation of the eighth section of the North Coast line through Woolgoolga, as recommended by Mr. Surveyor Edwardes, the subsequent saving in working expenses, and the maintenance of the line, this meeting of citizens of Grafton and South Grafton urges the Minister to submit the whole question to the Public Works Committee for full investigation."

SOUTH COAST MINERS.

TROUBLE OVER A LEVY.

WOLLONGONG, Friday.

For some time past an effort has been made to get all the colliery employees on the southern coalfields into the union. Trouble has also been experienced in getting some of the men to pay the levy for the Newcastle miners now on strike.

The miners at South Bulli have determined that the rules must be enforced, and the lodge has decided that they will not work with non-unionists after this week. It is understood that a number of men are making arrangements to pay up.

A meeting is to be held at Bellambi on Sunday morning next for the purpose of hearing the secretary's report on the position.

OWNERS PREPARED TO ACT.

WOLLONGONG, Friday.

The action of the South Coast miners in declaring their intention not to work with non-unionists after this week is not to be allowed to go unchallenged by owners.

In some quarters it is held that any such action would render the officials liable to prosecution, and one lodge secretary at least has been officially informed by the management that he will be held personally responsible for any stoppage that may occur amongst the unionist members of his association. Other owners, it is said, intend taking similar steps should necessity arise.

TREATING INEBRIATES.

MR. HALL PROMISES REFORM.

WELLINGTON (N.Z.), Friday.

Mr. Hall speaks enthusiastically of the result of the reafforestation efforts of the Government carried out by prison labour. He stated that he had investigated the grand jury system of New Zealand, and was inclined to think the New South Wales system gave as much satisfaction as that in New Zealand. He was not disposed to recommend any change in the New South Wales practice. With regard to the treatment of inebriates, he was not very much impressed by the New Zealand methods. Apparently inebriates handed over to the Salvation Army were placed on two islands to work under very healthy conditions, in the hope that they would be reformed. No doubt, a proportion would be reclaimed by such treatment, but he was afraid the percentage would be very low. He thought the New South Wales system was about the worst possible way of treating inebriates. It was costly and ineffective, and he proposed to make some radical changes within the next few months, but would look to the methods employed in Victoria rather than those in New Zealand as a basis of change.

WESTERN AUSTRALIA.

THE PARLIAMENT.

PERTH, Friday.

The Legislative Council, before adjourning till Tuesday, further amended the Industries Assistance Bill by providing that the right to sue for breach of contract to deliver wheat sold in advance be extended to April 30, 1915. The Colonial Secretary stated that unless the clause providing for advances to settlers to enable them to pay land, water rates, etc., due to Government departments, were carried the bill would be dropped. This clause had been struck out by 10 votes to 8.

The Assembly passed the second reading of a bill permitting Henry Rowley to remove from certain Crown lands zamia palm and blackboy for the extraction of commercial products, paying 6d per ton royalty and spending £1000 the first year in plant and £5000 the second year.

THE V.C.

A NEWSVENDOR'S HONOUR.

The latest recipient of the Victoria Cross is a Scotsman, Private George Wilson, 2nd Battalion the Highland Light Infantry, and the official description of the act which won him the coveted distinction reads:—

"For most conspicuous gallantry on September 14 near Verneuil, in attacking a hostile machine gun, accompanied by only one man. When the latter was killed, he went on alone, shot the officer and six men working the gun, which he captured."

Unofficial descriptions received in Edinburgh show, says the "Telegraph's" correspondent, that Wilson discovered that there was a German machine-gun stationed in a wood, and, apparently on his own initiative, he decided to stop its operations. In his desperate venture he got the co-operation of a private of the 60th King's Rifles. They went out alone, and managed to get quite close to the enemy's position, when Wilson's companion was killed. Undaunted, however, Wilson continued on his perilous mission. One by one he shot the officer and the entire gun team of six soldiers, and then ran in and took possession of the gun and two cases and a half of ammunition. Wilson, a few months ago, was selling newspapers in the streets of his native city of Edinburgh. He is one of a family of eight orphans, and started life as a newsvendor, finding customers for his papers among the soldiers stationed at the Castle. When a lad he himself enlisted in the Highland Light Infantry. After serving for some years, he turned to Edinburgh, and for a time he worked in the coal pits at Niddrie, but got back to his first job as newsvendor.

The work was proving more lucrative on the outbreak of war, with the great demand for the papers, but a week after the commencement of hostilities he was called up as a reservist for service. His sister, Mrs. Devlin, to whom he has frequently written from the front, is the wife of a driver in the Royal Field Artillery, and her own brother is now home, wounded in the fighting at Ypres. The new V.C. hero has himself a brother, John Wilson, who is fighting with the 2nd Battalion Royal Scots Fusiliers.

In one of his letters to his sister Private George Wilson says:—

"Yesterday, you will be surprised to hear, we caught four hens, and I volunteered to take them to a farm under fire to cook 'em. We are getting shelled with shrapnel something terrible. I was knocked blind for about three hours. The Germans got into the trenches of B Company of my regiment, and they had a proper Saturday night fight, with hands and head. We lost seven, and three wounded, but the Germans lost 30 and 53 prisoners. If we could do that every night the war would be over by the New Year easily."

TRAIN SERVICES.

A deputation representing the Armidale Municipality waited on the Chief Commissioner for Railways yesterday in regard to the discontinuance of the 7.40 a.m. passenger train from Armidale to Sydney as from February 14.

The deputation asked that the 7.15 a.m. train from Tamworth be extended to leave Armidale, and that Armidale passengers be allowed to travel by the Brisbane express. The Chief Commissioner regretted that he could not see his way to comply with either request.

ARMIDALE, Friday.

A public meeting of citizens of Armidale was held to protest against the discontinuance of the day train from Armidale, and a motion was carried—"That the Commissioners be approached and asked to continue the train on from Tamworth." The Mayor, with Alderman Curtis, was requested to wait on the Commissioners.

MANILLA, Friday.

The municipal council has decided to ask the State member, Mr. G. R. M'Donald, to enter a protest against the proposed tri-weekly train service for Manilla; also to write to the Federal member, Mr. P. P. Abbott, to interview the postal authorities to safeguard the daily mail for Manilla.

The Mayor agreed that while the war was on the people should put up with some inconveniences, but he failed to see why the out-country places should be asked to bear all the discomfiture, while Sydney and favoured places went untouched.

DEATH OF MR. HERBERT DAVIES.

PERTH, Friday.

Mr. Herbert Davies, of Millard's Timber and Trading Company, chairman of the Kimberley Pastoral Company, and brother of Colonel Karri Davies, died suddenly.

SCHOONER BEACHED.

BRISBANE, Thursday.

The four-masted schooner Coquitlam City, which returned to Moreton Bay leaking on Saturday night, was beached near Pinkenba yesterday. The Beaver picked up the schooner at Mud Island, and during the four hours' run to Pinkenba she had about 90 tons of water in her.

"EXCELSIOR."

WATCHWORD OF LABOUR.

MR. FISHER'S ADVICE.

WELLINGTON (N.Z.), Friday.

Mr. Fisher, in the course of an interview, said that one of the political objects he had in view in visiting New Zealand was to bring the Dominion into closer relationship with Australia. The mutual help that might be secured by reciprocal understandings had been made perfectly manifest. He was satisfied that the result of his interviews with Mr. Massey and Sir Joseph Ward would be that in the near future, whichever party was in power, satisfactory arrangements would be made in regard to tariff concessions and the general application of the old-age pensions system, and the provisions of the Workmen's Compensation Act.

The argument Mr. Fisher used with trades unionists throughout the Dominion was that there was too much division of opinion in the ranks of Labour at present. A democratic platform, Mr. Fisher maintained, must come from the people, not from any political leader, and when it is finished with the people must prescribe another platform. In industrial as well as in political organisations there must be no loophole left for the creation of aristocracies. The people would soon learn what was reasonable and practicable by platform tests. There was no use trying for a thing unless it was reasonable and practicable. A proposed reform might be a little before its time, but if it was reasonable justice would be secured sooner or later by force of argument and by education, not by strikes.

As to arbitration, Mr. Fisher did not consider it a sovereign remedy for all industrial ills. It need only be regarded as a temporary remedy for industrial differences. To rely upon arbitration and preference for unionists wholly to right the wrongs of people might cause them to be lulled into false security so that advantage might be taken of them. The people's proper political basis of action must be a platform agreed to by a duly accredited representative conference from all labour organisations. It must be changed from time to time to suit circumstances. "Excelsior" must ever be the watchword of those allied with the labour movement, but no more than justice should ever be contended for.

Mr. Fisher and party will leave this evening for Sydney.

WOLLONGONG SHOW.

JUDGING DAY.

IMPROVED CATTLE CLASSES.

(FROM OUR SPECIAL REPORTER.)

WOLLONGONG.—Contrary to the usual practice, the cattle were not brought on to the ground this year until the second day. This new departure was decided upon by the committee because of the Kiama show being held in the same week, and it gave breeders a chance of getting their stock along for exhibition. The cattle section has never previously been a strong feature at Wollongong, but judging from present indications, there should not be much room for complaint in this direction in the future, for the display seen here this year, although not yet up to the standard of some of the shows further south, shows a marked advance over previous exhibitions. Breeders from below Kiama were represented, and the number of entries received easily constituted a record. The open classes, which included Illawarras, were well filled, and some good competitions resulted. Interest chiefly centred around Jersey pens, however, and in this section there were between 70 and 80 entries. Some splendid types were shown, the champion Jersey bull and cow, owned by Mr. R. Cochrane, both being high-grade animals. Other championships were awarded as follows:—Ayrshire bull and cow: Lindsay Bros. Durham bull: J. W. Gorrell. Cow: A. G. Burss. Dairy bull: Alexander Bros. Cow: Lindsay Bros. Although rain fell in the early part of the day, it cleared off sufficiently later on to induce a fair number of people to attend the fixture. The ring events were keenly contested for the most part, and great interest was evinced by those present in the various trotting and jumping competitions, for which there were a large number of entries. The points were taken to-day for the Hunter's Plate of £30, which event will be run off to-morrow.

The show was officially opened by the Minister for Agriculture. In introducing Mr. Ashford the president (Mr. J. B. Thomson) referred to the failure of the Government to fulfil its promise to assist financially the association in getting a new showground nearer the town.

The Minister, in a short speech, dwelt on the absolute necessity for the withdrawal of subsidies, and said he hoped to see them restored before the next annual exhibition. He also pointed out that the farming community received more assistance from the Government, in the way of education and advice particularly, than any other body of men in the State, £300,000 having already been spent in the furtherance of their interests. Mr. Ashford informed the president that he was prepared to inspect the proposed new showground site straight away, and, if he thought it advisable, to do what he could to help them.

Mr. G. M. Burns, M.P., briefly referred to the European trouble and the possible beneficial results that might accrue to Australia when it was over in the direction of opening up local industries and manufactures.

The show will be continued to-morrow (miners' pay Saturday), when a big attendance is expected. Besides the hunters' plate, there is a £15 open trot, of 1½ mile, for horses 4.17 or better, and a cadet display, the prize for the best team to be a grand challenge shield valued at £10 10s. Additional awards:—

SOLDIER DROWNED.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

Several privates of the Light Horse reinforcements at Broadmeadows camp went to a creek at Campbellfield to-day for the purpose of watering their horses. One of them, James Smith, aged 23 years, entered the water, and was seen to hold up his hand. He sank immediately afterwards, and was not seen again until his body was recovered an hour later. It is stated that Smith's brother resides at Moorabbin.

SPORT ABROAD.

COUNTY CRICKET.

LONDON, Jan. 28.

The Advisory County Cricket Committee has decided that there will be no county competition during the ensuing season, but if the war has ended, then each county can arrange a programme of matches.

LIVERPOOL GRAND NATIONAL

BULLAWARRA'S WEIGHT.

LONDON, Jan. 28.

The weights for the Liverpool Grand National Steeplechase, to be run over the Aintree course in March, have been issued. The Victorian steeplechaser, Bullawarra, has been allotted 11st 12lb, while the French horse Lutteur III., who won the Grand National in 1909 with 10st 11lb in the saddle, is top weight with 12st 7lb.

Bullawarra is the property of the Riverina sportsman, Mr. N. Falkiner, and has proved himself one of the best cross-country horses in Australia. His last important victory in Victoria was under 12st 11lb in the Australian Steeplechase, four miles, at Caulfield, in August, 1913.

UNITED STATES LEGISLATION.

IMMIGRATION BILL VETOED.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.

President Wilson has vetoed the Immigration Bill, as he does not approve of the literary test.

FEDERAL MINISTERS.

The Federal Ministers in Sydney will hold a Cabinet meeting on Monday.

VICTORIAN BY-ELECTION.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

Contrary to expectations, the election to fill the vacancy in the Legislative Assembly, caused by the resignation of Mr. A. J. Hampson, who is contesting the Bendigo Federal by-election, will be a straight out contest between Liberalism and Labour. The candidates are David Andrew (Liberal) and Luke James Clough (Labour).

TAX ON BACHELORS.

The Annandale P.L.L. at its last meeting carried a motion to the effect that all bachelors be separately taxed.

FINANCIAL.

WAR RISK LIFE ASSURANCE.

WHAT THE OFFICES ARE DOING.

When the war broke out a good deal of uncertainty existed as to what would be the attitude of life offices towards those actually taking part in hostilities. It was very generally felt that every consideration should be extended to those who were risking their lives for the Empire. But life assurance is a mathematical science, and the rights of those who remained at home had to be preserved. So difficulties arose, and some offices adopted one attitude, others another. We have already published some details of what is being done in this regard by some of the leading Australian offices.

Messrs. Smee and Ackland, well known English authorities, record their opinion that "the average rate of death of the army in the field may be estimated at about 5 per cent. per annum of the force engaged." They computed the death-rate in the American Civil War as 7 per cent. per annum.

During the South African war the extra premium generally charged by British life offices, in cases of new assurances or of assurances in force where the risk was not already covered by contract, was £5 5s per cent. for the first year of the war, and £2 2s per cent. per annum afterwards. These extras do not appear to have covered the extra risk, for in the first year of the South African war the mortality experienced by the officers of the regular forces seems to have been about 8 per cent. of the number engaged. Messrs. Schooling and Rusher estimate that the mortality in this war for officers alone during the whole period of the war was at the rate of 5.3 per cent. per annum, and for the whole of officers and men 3.81 per cent. per annum. They say: "These annual death-rates practically give the required annual premium per £100 according to the actual war experience, including the risk of death from normal mortality, and make allowance for the return of a portion of the premium for any unexpired fraction of a year. They fall considerably below the rates deduced from the mortality of the German Army during the France-German war, and compare even more favourably with the death-rates experienced by the Northern Army during the American Civil War. It should be noted, for it is most important, that the rates are for the period of the war only, and cannot be said to represent the correct extra premium for existing policies at the commencement of the war, or for a new policy to be continued after the expiration of the war. They are, in fact, the term premiums for a temporary assurance. On the one hand, it is true the rates cover the risk of death from normal mortality, but, on the other hand, they do not take into account the probability of deterioration through wounds or disease contracted during the campaign. What the value of this liability to deterioration is it is impossible to say, but no doubt it is very considerable."

It may also be pointed out that the premiums referred to make no allowance for commissions or expenses, and also that an equivalent annual charge does not seem to fit the case, as in the South African war the rate of mortality was higher in proportion to the forces engaged in the first year than in subsequent periods of the war.

Of late years and in time of peace it has been the practice amongst most British life offices to cover any war risk during currency of policies on British military or naval officers, in all cases where the officers prefer this method to paying the ordinary premium and taking the chance of being called on to pay such extras as may be imposed in time of war, by a small annual extra premium (in the majority of cases 10s per cent. on the sum assured), sometimes payable until retirement from service, sometimes for 10 years only, and sometimes for 10 years as a maximum, but ceasing on previous retirement during that period. In some other cases it has been arranged only to charge the ordinary rate of premium under participating policies, but to defer participation in profits until retirement from active service.

Shortly after the declaration of war between Great Britain and Germany a meeting of representatives of life offices made certain recommendations as to extras to be charged for war service, and these recommendations have apparently been approved by the Associated Scottish Life Offices. Their general effect appears to be as follows:—

(a) In the case of Territorials volunteering for foreign war service, and in the case of the new levies raised for this war only, no extra premiums for war risk to be charged in respect of existing policies. If, however, policyholders continue in military service after the conclusion of the war they are to be liable to extra premiums for war risk in the same way as those serving in the regular army.

(b) In the case of the regular army, where war extra is not already specifically covered by the contract, an extra of five guineas to be charged for one year or less on the existing assurances of combatants, and three guineas per cent. for non-combatants. For new assurances the extra charge for combatants to be seven guineas per cent. and for non-combatants five guineas per cent.

(c) With regard to those serving in the Navy afloat, at home, or abroad, it is recommended that in the case of combatants or non-combatants there should be an extra charge of five guineas per cent. on new assurances. For those engaged ashore in home service it is recommended that no extra be charged. It is also recommended that no extra premium should be charged on the assurances of the Royal Naval Volunteer Reserve and the Royal Naval Reserve.

Whilst it is probable that these recommendations will find general acceptance amongst British life offices, there are indications that under certain descriptions of policies more favourable terms may be obtained by military and naval officers.

GOULBURN GAS.

The net profits of the City of Goulburn Gas Company for the half-year ended December 31 amounted to £401, which, with £284 brought forward, left £686 available. A dividend at the rate of 8 per cent. per annum is recommended, absorbing £400, and £286 is carried forward. The manufacture and distribution of gas cost £3042, and sales of gas, etc., brought in £3685. Capital amounts to £10,000, reserve to £2000, plant renewal account to £3190. Plant, land, mains, etc., are valued at £12,596, Government stock at £1469, and the cash and bank balance amounts to £1272.

NEWCASTLE WALLSEND COAL COMPANY.

The report of the above company covers the six months ended December 31. It shows a net profit of £10,106, which, with £2934 brought forward, made £13,039 available. The directors recommended a dividend at the rate of 10s per share, absorbing £10,000, leaving £3039 to be carried forward. The following comparison may be made:—

The meeting of shareholders was held yesterday, Mr. Harry S. Levy, chairman of directors, presiding. The report was adopted. Mr. H. De Y. Scroggie was re-elected a director, and Messrs. J. Hunter Stephenson and Thos. B. Frith were elected auditors. At the close of the half-yearly meeting a special meeting was held, at which alterations in the deed of settlement were submitted and adopted.

SOUTH COAST ROAD METAL QUARRIES

The report of the above company, covering the half-year ended January 29, shows a net profit of £1301, which, with £1605, renders £2906 available. An interim dividend of 9d per share, at the rate of 7½ per cent. per annum, absorbing £975, is recommended, and £1931 is carried forward. Gross earnings amounted to £12,201, and expenses to £10,350. For depreciation £300 is written off, £100 is written off the preliminary expenses, and £250 is placed to S.S. Dunmore contingency account.

At the meeting of shareholders yesterday, the report and balance sheet were unanimously adopted; Mr. Frank Grimley was re-elected director.

NEWCASTLE GAS COMPANY.

A PROSPEROUS HALF-YEAR.

NEWCASTLE, Wednesday.

The 97th half-yearly meeting of the shareholders of the City of Newcastle Gas and Coke Company, Limited, was held at the company's head office in Hunter-street today.

Mr. John R. Hall, chairman of directors, who occupied the chair, said, in moving the adoption of the report and balance-sheet, that the directors had again been able to submit a very satisfactory financial statement, and considering the present world-wide upheaval the results showed an illustration of the soundness of the Newcastle district. The profits, £11,111, permitted of payment of a dividend at the same rate as the last half-year, and would leave a balance of £1351, which it was proposed to add to the "divisable profit" account, or carry forward to next half-year.

The company up to the present had not been obliged to increase the price of gas, and had the distinction of supplying gas at the lowest price in Australasia. Two companies which had been selling at the same rate as the Newcastle company had found it necessary to apply to the Necessary Commodities Commission to increase their price by 4d per 1000 cubic feet, and after inquiry their applications were granted. The increase in gas supplied amounted to 7.4 per cent., while the sales of residuals had also been very satisfactory. The company had agreed to dispose of its whole output of tar for a term of years to a firm of tar distillers at satisfactory rates. During the half-year under review 394 new services had been laid. Larger mains had been put down in several districts to meet the growing demands for gas, and a number of new mains had opened up new districts. The demand for cooking stoves, gas-heated washing boilers, and other gas appliances had been large. Large stocks of goods were on hand, and care had been taken to see that those goods, as well as plant, had been purchased only from the Empire and her Allies.

NOTES AND COMMENTS.

The Australian Mutual Fire Insurance Society, Limited, notifies that the half-yearly interest at the rate of 8 per cent. per annum on the paid-up capital is payable at the head offices on February 1.

The Department of the Premier has from the Secretary of State further papers relating to the measures taken by the Imperial Government for sustaining credit and facilitating business during the war, and these papers may be seen at the Premier's office on application to the secretary.

The McVicar's Steam Laundry, Limited, has been registered with a capital of £1000 in £1 shares. The objects are to carry on the business of laundrymen, bleachers, and scourers, etc. The permanent directors are Messrs. L. Hermanson, L. Witkowsky, R. Hamilton, V. Wilson, and O. S. Wilson.

The half-yearly meeting of the New South Wales Monte-de-Piete was held yesterday, Mr. John R. Hardie presiding in the place of Dr. Edwin Chisolm, who was indisposed. The report and balance-sheet were adopted.

The half-yearly meeting of Aaron's Exchange Hotel Company, Ltd., was held yesterday, when Mr. Francis Bligh presided. The report and balance sheet, particulars of which have already appeared, were adopted.

At the half-yearly meeting of W. E. Smith, Ltd., held yesterday, Mr. F. J. Waley occupied the chair. The report and balance sheet, particulars of which have already appeared, were adopted.

An interim dividend of 1s per share has been declared by the Silverton Tramway Company, payable on March 1.

INCOME TAX PROBLEMS.

A WARNING.

The Income Tax Commissioners desire that the public should be warned again the visits of bogus officials from the department. These have been inducing taxpayers to pay money to them, usually 5s, promising that no further charge would be made. The police have the matter in hand.

WIFE'S AND HUSBAND'S INCOME.

"Essex" writes:—

Sir,—My wife and myself have been in Sydney about five months. My wife is in receipt of an income of about £500 a year, derived from shares in English railways, etc. Her executors pay her income tax in England. Are my wife or self liable for any taxes in this country?

The wife is not liable. The husband is only liable if his income earned in New South Wales is over £250.

RENT.

Mr. E. Lukey writes:—

Sir,—Referring to answer 2 to question put by "Funded," I was advised by the Commissioners under date of 18th instant as follows: "If the property is owned by the taxpayer no amount should be added in respect of rental value of his private residence, but if it is leased or rented the annual rental of that portion used for private and residential purposes should be added."

The Commissioners' reply is correct.

WHEAT, FEED, AND BAGS.

"Farmer" writes:—

Sir,—Will you kindly inform me how I should deal with (1) wheat, stock in hand and later used as seed-wheat, and similarly hay which was later used for feeding horses in cultivating the land; (2) bags bought and given in with wheat sold; (3) carriage on wheat by road to railway? I refer more particularly to the items "value of goods taken from stock and used in carrying on the business."

The seed wheat should be brought into stocks, and so also should the hay. No deduction can be allowed for the feeding of horses or the cultivation of the land, as both feed and wheat will have been produced by the taxpayer. If the hay and seed had been purchased from outside sources an allowance would be made.

The wheat bags and cost of freight are allowable deductions. The value of goods taken from stock and used in carrying on the business should be included as income.

LEASE OF AN HOTEL.

"1700" writes:—

Sir,—In 1906 I bought the lease of an hotel which I sold in 1914 at a price higher than what I paid. The Income Tax Commissioners do not allow any deduction for depreciation or expiration of leases of hotels—do they require me to pay income tax on the profits gained through the re-sale of the lease?

No.

AN ANNUITY.

"Annuities" writes:—

Sir,—Am I to include in my income tax return any amount received by way of an immediate annuity in an American company? The annuity policy is made out on New York and signed in New York, but is paid by an agent in Sydney. The company is not carrying on actual business in Australia.

No.

INCOME FROM OUTSIDE.

"Woman" writes:—

Sir,—The sum of £20 is paid in monthly to my account in the bank from a business outside of Australia. Will you kindly inform me if I have to send a return. I am in receipt of no other form of income.

No.

ROOMS LET.

"Atlas" writes:—

Sir,—I am renting a house, and have let two rooms, which helps to pay the rent. Has this to be included in my return? I have a small property which brings in about £200.

Yes.

IS A RETURN NECESSARY?

"Copax" writes:—

Sir,—Is it necessary for me to send in an income tax return? Last February, 1914, I bought a cottage for £700, and also paid half the commission fees amounting to £8/15/, and in August last I sold the cottage for £725, and paid £18/2/6 commission on the sale, thereby being a loss of £1/17/6 on the deal, besides legal expenses for transfer. I earned £100 only in wages during last year altogether through lost time, and now have £900 in the bank since selling the cottage. Is it necessary for me to send in a return, and mention all the above particulars?

No.

COMMERCIAL.

THE MARKETS.

The chemical market was steady yesterday. Interest centred chiefly in cream of tartar, in tartaric acid, and in the Customs Department. In the first place the Customs Department held up a quantity of cream of tartar brought from the United States in the steamer Cape Corso until what it considers satisfactory evidence of place of origin is furnished. Then the Customs Department, having been furnished with a cablegram from the British Consul at Genoa testifying to the Italian origin of tartaric acid brought by the Messicano and the Annam, released it. But other tartaric acid out of the Annam, of which the invoice from the supplying factory in Italy has been furnished, is still held up awaiting orders from headquarters. Tartaric acid was worth 2/1½ for parcels, and cream of tartar 2/. Some German cement sold at 15/. English cement was scarce. American plaster sold in parcels at 22/ per cask. Small lots were available at 25/. Carbide was worth £20 per ton.

The distributing price of linseed oil was raised a penny per gallon, first brands being quoted—raw 4/1, boiled 4/3. In some instances another penny on these rates was asked. Turps was cabled at 3/1½ c.i.f. and e., war risks extra, and subject to fluctuation in freight. Whitelead was easy. Copra was irregular round about £19/12/6 f.o.b. export steamer for sun-dried in bags.

Advices were received of a further advance in the English price of canvas. No doubt the local price will be advanced next week.

The oat millers applied to the Necessary Commodities Commission yesterday for leave to advance the price of oatmeal from time to time, and they asked for an immediate increase of £5 per ton to £31/10/ per ton. In July last the price of oatmeal in 7lb bags was £19/10/ per ton. In July oats were quoted in Sussex-street at 2/10 per bushel. To-day the quotation is 4/8. Should the advance in oatmeal be granted the price will have increased a trifle over 60 per cent., while oats have advanced a trifle over 64 per cent.

A strong market was in evidence at the auction sale of tea yesterday. Competition was keen, and prices generally were a full farthing and in some cases a halfpenny above the prices of the previous auction. Of Ceylons, 165 packages were sold up to 11¼d per lb; of Indians, 45 packages up to 9½d; and of Javas 170 packages up to 8½d. The catalogue was cleared of Ceylons and Javas. Common teas sold in Colombo on Tuesday at the equivalent of 10d per lb Sydney. News by the mail from Java stated that some gardens had sold right out to the Russian buyers at a halfpenny above Sydney rates.

The jute market continued dull, and prices were unchanged.

TARIFF DECISIONS.

The following decisions in interpretation of the tariff are announced by the Customs Department:—

Piece Goods.—Muslin, known as "Spot Muslin." Item 105 (A).

Oil Baize, with back containing wool. Item 105 (F).

Piece goods of foreign origin, referred to in Item 227, composed wholly of cotton, may be admitted under Item 105 (A), at 5 per cent.

Tags, linen. Item 240 (A).

BREADSTUFFS.

The proclaimed prices for flour, bran, and pollard were unchanged.

RETURNED WHEAT.

When war broke out between Great Britain and Germany the German boats Rhineland and Anholt, which were carrying wheat from Australia to Europe, made for Sumatra, where they have since been sheltering. We now learn from Messrs. Lane and Dawson that they have loaded 5000 tons of this wheat in their time-chartered steamer Inveran, which sailed from Telock Betong on Saturday last for Australia. The wheat should reach Melbourne early in February.

WHEAT LOADINGS AND STACKINGS.

During the week ended January 23 the quantity of wheat despatched from country stations was 104,136 bags, compared with 123,955 bags for the previous week, and 261,078 bags for the same period of last year.

The stacks at country stations and Darling Island on January 23 were 609,901 bags, compared with 590,031 bags on the previous Saturday, and 4,812,727 bags on January 24 last year. The number of bags despatched from the railway districts during the week ended January 23 and stacks in railway districts on January 23 were:—

District	Despatched week ended Jan. 23. Bags.	Stacked on Jan. 23. Bags.

At Darling Harbour yesterday 663 tons of wheat and 155 tons of flour were manifested to arrive.

THE POSITION OF BUTTER.

The position of the butter market is serious. Four boats are booked to leave for England early in February, but owing to the heavy demands being made on their refrigerating space by the meat exporters, they will be able to take only a limited quantity of butter, and at the present rate of production it is estimated that unless some additional boats are put on stocks in Sydney will have reached 90,000 boxes before the Orsova leaves on March 10. The difficulty is that there are not sufficient cold rooms available to store this huge quantity of butter.

GENERAL MERCHANDISE.

BONDED STOCKS.

The amount in hand on January 30, 1914, was 44,380 tons Australian and 16,854 tons foreign; and on January 31, 1913, 45,618 tons.

The amount of wool manifested to arrive at Darling Harbour yesterday totalled 2019 bales.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

Wheat nominal, 7/8 to 7/9; flour, £16; bran, £9/15/; pollard, £10/15/; barley firm, English 6/9 to 6/8, Cape 4/5 to 4/7; oats scarce, nominal, 4/6 to 4/10; maize firm, 5/2; chaff active, £7/10/ to £8; hay, trusses, £7 to £7/10/; manger sheaves, £6 to £7; Victorian straw £2/5/ to £3/10/, Tasmanian £4; potatoes easier, owing to greater arrivals, £3 to £3/10/; onions steady, £6 to £8. Tea firmly held. Cornsacks, 6/1 to 6/2 net; branbags, irregular, up to 5/3, less discount. Linseed oil firmer, some recent sellers advanced /3, B. S. now 4/ to 4/1 raw, and 4/2 to 4/3 boiled.

LONDON MARKET CABLES.

WOOL SALES.

LONDON, Jan. 28.

At the wool sales yesterday competition was animated at full late rates for all qualities. Fleeces of the clips mentioned realised: Hay, highest, 11½d, average 10½d; Mondo, 23d, 21½d; Bangate, 12½d, 11½d; Billaboo, 13½d, 11½d; Moorlands, 12½d, 10½d; Keerongolo, 11½d, 10d, Erudina, 10½d, 9½d.

[Dalgety and Company, Limited, are in receipt of a cable message from their London house, under date of Thursday last, as follows:—Wool sales continue with animated competition. Prices for good greasy merinos are now 10 per cent. higher than December rates. There have also been advances of 10 to 15 per cent. on other descriptions of greasy merinos, 5 per cent. on scoureds, par to 5 per cent. on greasy fine crossbreds, 7½ per cent. on medium crossbreds, and 5 to 7½ per cent. on coarse crossbreds, while scoured slipes are par to 5 per cent. dearer.]

BRADFORD TOPS.

The Bradford tops market is exceedingly firm, and a fair business has been done. Prices are: 64s 27d (1d up), super 60s 26½d (1d up), common 60s 25½d (½d up), 56s 27d (unchanged), 50s 25½d (½d up), 46s 23½d (1d up), 40s 20½d (½d up).

SHEEPSKINS.

At the sales of sheepskins there was a full attendance, and the catalogues were practically cleared. Competition was good. Australasian merino clothings and combings were at par to a farthing dearer; crossbred combing lambs were ½d dearer.

[A telegram to Dalgety and Company, Limited, from their London office, dated Thursday last, states that at the auction sales of sheepskins held in the home market during the past week, 6200 bales were offered, practically the whole of which was cleared. Merino skins were very firm, and unchanged. Crossbreds were ½d per lb higher on the rates in force at the previous series.]

CEREALS.

The wheat market is firm, and is 3d to 6d dearer upon reports of heavy rains and hail in Argentina. Northern Manitoba wheat of February-March shipments is selling at 59/9 per quarter of 480lb.

Flour is firm. Australian ex store selling at 42/6 to 43/6 per sack of 280lb.

Barley is quiet and firm, Australian brewing selling at 40/ per quarter of 400lb.

Oats are firm. Bahia Blanca of February-March shipment being worth 29/7½ per quarter of 304lb.

Peas are firm. New Zealand maples selling at 60/ to 58/ per quarter of 504lb. Beans are steady. New Zealand at 44/.

DAIRY PRODUCE.

Butter is easier all round, owing to the weakness of Danish butter and the arrival of 20,000 boxes of colonial butter in a week. Australian choicest is selling at 136/ to 138/ per cwt, exceptional lots at 140/; New Zealand, 140/ to 142/.

Cheese is very firm, and is in strong demand—Canadian at 88/, New Zealand 85/ to 86/.

SUGAR.

The market for sugar is firmer. American granulated being worth 27/6 per cwt., an advance of /6 on the week.

METALS.

Closing quotations to-day were:—

Copper: G.M.B., spot £62/17/6 to £63/2/6 per ton (15/ down); at three months, £63/5/ to £63/10/ per ton (7/6 down).

Tin.—Spot £168 to £168/10/ per ton (10/ up); at three months, £157/5/ to £157/15/ per quarter (£1/5/ up).

PRODUCE.

DAIRY.

WEAKNESS IN CHEESE.

An unmistakable feeling of weakness prevailed in the cheese market yesterday, and in some quarters supplies could have been secured at a small concession. The general quotation for prime loaf from the South Coast, however, was unaltered at /6¾ and /7.

New-laid eggs were unchanged at from 1/2 to 1/3, and case eggs at from 1/ to 1/1, according to quality. It is interesting to note that case eggs are selling at the same price to-day as they were when new-laid varieties commanded 1/9.

There was a good inquiry for butter at 122/ per cwt delivered in boxes. It is not likely that there will be any movement in values on Monday.

Quotations were:—

DAIRY PRODUCE.

Bacon.—Sides /10 to /10½, flitches /9 to /10, middles /10½ to /11, shoulders /7 to /7½; bacon hams, /11 to 1/1, special brands, sides /10½, flitches /10, middles 1/, shoulders to /8½; bacon hams, /11 to 1/ per lb.

Turkeys: Hen, medium to 7/6; cock, medium to 15/; no choice turkeys to hand. Geese, 4/6 to 7/ per pair; pigeons, to 1/6 per pair; carcase pork, to /7½ per lb; carcase veal, to /4½ per lb. All classes of produce were in fair demand at above rates.

FORAGE AND GRAIN.

NEW SEASON'S MAIZE.

The first of the new season's Clarence River maize was to hand yesterday. The grain, which was consigned by Mr. J. J. Duggan, of Grafton, was dry and hard, and sold readily at 5/ a bushel.

There was no change in the prices of either onions or potatoes.

Firewood was cheaper. The top price secured was 17/ a ton. Altogether 30 truckloads were offered.

Quotations were:—

FORAGE.

Chaff.—None offering.

Derrick Straw.—Tasmanian: Oaten and wheaten, £4/10/ a ton.

RAILWAY MARKET.

At the railway forage and grain sales yesterday a large yarding of produce was offered at auction to a fair attendance of buyers. During the early stages of the sale the bidding was brisk, but afterwards, with the exception of a few cases, it became extremely dull. The quality of chaff was inferior to that of the previous day, and generally all-round prices showed a slightly lower tendency.

Wheaten chaff, which had an excellent representation, sold from 5/10 to 7/9, the latter being obtained for a prime consignment from Booty, of Wagga. Oaten, which was not so plentiful, was of an inferior standard, and changed hands at figures ranging from 6/ to 7/3; whilst lucerne brought from 4/8 to 5/6 per cwt. One parcel of oaten hay was cleared at 6/1, and lucerne was worth from 3/7 to 5/6. Maize sold at 4/10 per bushel.

Potatoes were present in small quantities only, and met a slightly improved market, prices varying from 3/ to 4/ per cwt.

Consignments placed in position for sale:—Hay, straw, chaff 95 truckloads, grain 10, potatoes 6.

Produce manifested to arrive:—Hay, straw, chaff 478 truckloads, grain 85, potatoes 5.

FRUIT MARKET.

PEARS IN BAD CONDITION.

The excessively hot weather of the past few days has played havoc with the pears. Many of the consignments which arrived in the markets yesterday could not be offered for sale, as the fruit had melted into a mass of brown-coloured jelly.

A shipment of 14,000 bunches of bananas was received from Fiji. The fruit will be available to-day.

Quotations were:—

Passionfruit.—Local: Choice 3/, medium 2/, small 1/ to 1/6 a half-bushel case.

Pineapples.—Queens, 5/ to 7/; Commons and Ripleys, 4/ to 5/; small 3/ to 3/6.

Pears.—Local: Williams, choice 5/ to 5/6, medium 3/, small 1/6 to 2/; China, 2/ to 4/; others, 1/6 to 3/ a bushel-case. Victorian: Williams, 6/ to 8/ a bushel-case.

Grapes.—Black Hambro, 2/6 to 3/6; Muscats, black, 4/6 to 8/ a half-case.

Cocoanuts.—8/ a bag.

MELBOURNE.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

The following were the wholesale prices for fruit at the Western Market:—Apples, eating 3/ to 10/ per case, cooking 2/ to 5/6; figs, 6/6 to 9/; grapes, 3/ to 7/; lemons, 10/ to 14/; nectarines, 6/ to 7/; oranges, imported, 20/6 peaches, dessert 3/ to 7/, canning 4/ to 6/; pears, 2/ to 4/; plums, 5/ to 7/ per case; pineapples, roughs, 4/ to 8/ double case; strawberries, /4 to /6 per box.

VEGETABLE MARKET.

At the Municipal Market yesterday vegetables, especially cabbages and tomatoes, met with a good steady demand. Business was very fair, and in the majority of cases prices were firmer than those of the previous day.

Quotations were:—

Beetroot, 6/; carrots, 1/6; celery, 2/6; eschalots, 1/ to 1/6; herbs, 1/ to 1/6; lettuce, /9 to 1/; parsley, 1/6 to 2/6; parsnips, 2/; radishes, /6; rhubarb, 1/6 to 3/; watercress, 2/ to 2/6; white turnips, /6 to 1/; spinach, /6 to 1/ per dozen bunches; beans, 1/6 to 3/6; peas, 2/ to 5/ per bushel; cabbages, 1/6 to 6/; vegetable marrows, 1/ to 2/; watermelons, 3/ to 16/ per dozen; rockmelons, 1/6 to 2/6 per case; cucumbers, 2/ to 4/ per bushel-case; tomatoes, extra choice, 4/, others, 1/6 to 3/ per half-case; pumpkins, local, 1/ to 2/ each; Queensland, 9/ per bag; onions, brown, 12/, pickling 18/, white 14/, Hunter River 8/ to 9/ per cwt; potatoes, Tasmanian, 7/, Melbourne 8/, local varieties, 3/ to 6/ per cwt; Swedes, 5/ per cwt.

PIG SALES.

At the City Yards yesterday 550 pigs, the majority of which were porkers, were offered at auction to a representative attendance of buyers. Competition was generally weaker, and consequently prices for heavy porkers and baconers were lower than on Monday last.

Quotations were:—

Best backfatters £6, good £4/10/ to £5/10/, medium £3 to £4, light 50/.

Best baconers 78/, good 65/ to 75/, medium 55/ to 60/, light 45/.

Best porkers 45/, good 35/ to 42/, medium 28/ to 34/, light from £1.

SAFETY ON THE RAILWAYS.

The Chief Commissioner for Railways and Tramways has inaugurated a "Safety First" movement in his department, and a committee of officers has been formed with the object of publishing at regular intervals pamphlets showing the more common dangers met with by employees in railway and tramway working, that are prolific sources of accident, and giving illustrations showing the correct manner in which to carry out the operations.

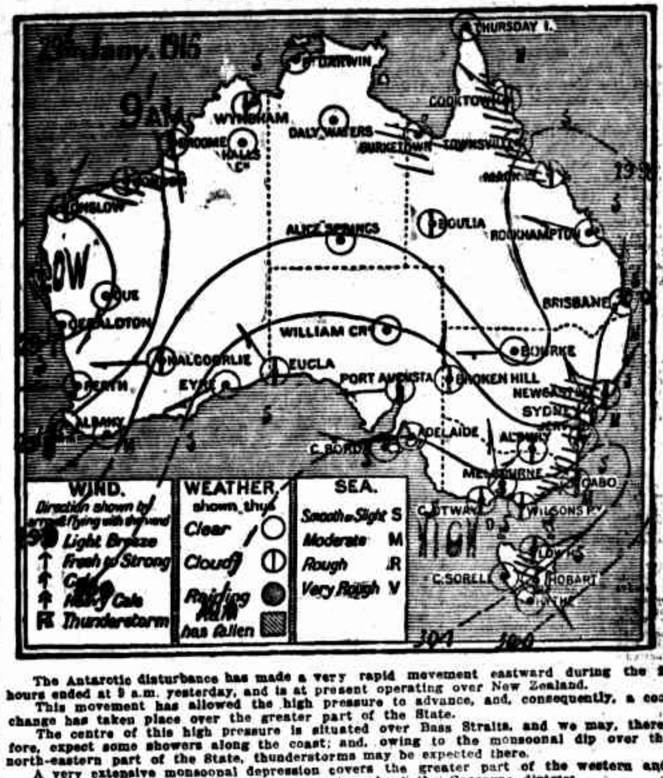
AUSTRALIAN WEATHER.

THE "HERALD" MAP.



The Antarctic disturbance has made a very rapid movement eastward during the 24 hours ended at 9 a.m. yesterday, and is at present operating over New Zealand.

This movement has allowed the high pressure to advance, and, consequently, a cool change has taken place over the greater part of the State.

The centre of this high pressure is situated over Bass Straits, and we may, therefore, expect some showers along the coast; and, owing to the monsoonal dip over the north-eastern part of the State, thunderstorms may be expected there.

A very extensive monsoonal depression covers the greater part of the western and northern half of the continent, with the centre about the Gascoyne district.

Ocean Forecast:—Squally south-east winds on the North Queensland coast; smooth to moderate elsewhere.

MORE ACTIVE MARKET.

VALUES FIRM IN TIN, COPPER, AND BARRIERS.

A glance at the list of Stock Exchange sales recorded yesterday will clearly show that the market was much more active than has been the case since its resumption this year.

Indeed, the volume of business transacted was reminiscent of the activity that ruled in pre-war days, added to which there was also a more buoyant feeling in respect to share values. This is undoubtedly due to the improved metal values ruling. Taken altogether a decidedly more cheerful atmosphere pervaded the market generally.

MINING NOTES.

The Mount Lyell Company's smelting return from December 24 to January 20, inclusive:—23,634 tons of ore have been treated, being 14,740 tons from Mount Lyell mine and 8894 tons from North Mount Lyell mine. In addition there have been treated 4 tons of purchased ore. The converters produced during the same period 556 tons of blister copper, containing copper 550 tons, silver 35,878oz, gold 792oz.

The operations of the Mount Lyell Mining and Railway Company for the fortnight ended January 20 are officially recorded as follows:—"North Mount Lyell mine: No. 2 engine winze sunk to 95ft below 1100ft level. Reduction works: Three furnaces under blast during period. During current half-year 2368 tons blister copper despatched to electrolytic refining and smelting works, Port Kembla, for refining."

The manager of the Briseis Tin and General Mining Company, in his report for December states:—"Derby mines: Working on overburden, and doing dead work. Now resumed tin-raising so far as water permits. Wallace properties: Yield, 512oz gold."

The Victory Gold Mining Company (C.T.) reports a yield of 254oz of gold from 140 tons of ore.

MINING IN THE STATE.

HILL END, Friday.

The mining companies are in full work again, and extra hands have been employed since the holidays in both the Amalgamated and Reward mines. The crushings of both those companies before the holidays were the best for 1914. Both managers report an appearance of improvement. The crushing at the Reward has gone on for the past two weeks, the yield not being reported. Have asked for the results, and can only get the reply that it is very good.

HAMPDEN-CLONCURRY COPPER MINES.

DUCHESS AND ANSWER MINES DEVELOPING WELL.

A telegraphic report from the manager, dated January 25, states:—"Hampden mine: No. 1 shaft, 420ft level rise 150 S, 45 W. to 136 feet; 500ft level, S.E. drive 7 N. 66 E. to 385 feet.

"Duchess Mine.—Main shaft sunk to 865 feet; 700ft level, N. drive in 269 feet, width sampled 92 inches, value 17 per cent. Not on western wall.

"Answer Mine.—No. 6 shaft sunk to 65 feet, width sampled 38 inches, value 20 per cent. Not on western wall.

"Pindora Mines.—No. 3 shaft, 200ft level N. drive in 65 feet, width sampled 42 inches, value 1 per cent. Not on eastern wall. South drive in 68 feet, width sampled 39 inches, value 3 per cent. Not on eastern wall."

ARDLETHAN TIN FIELD.

ARDLETHAN, Wednesday.

The Warden's Court was held here on Thursday and Friday last, when 29 cases were dealt with by Mr. Warden James. Of 10 applications for authority to enter five were granted, four refused, and one postponed. One authority to enter was cancelled, and one application for cancellation postponed. One extension of time before cancellation was granted. Two summonses were withdrawn. Four inquiries for assessment of compensation were heard. Three inquiries for assessment in connection with the Southern Cross dam were heard and postponed. Supervision of labour conditions was granted on five leases, and two applications were postponed.

The Southern Cross Tin-mining Company, through their manager, stated that a suspension of labour conditions was required to give time for making further financial arrangements. The battery, as it was crushing ore from other claims, would be kept going, as long as water lasted. Suspension granted for three months.

W. C. Wale and party were granted three months' suspension on the Marethoil lease at Bald Hill, on the grounds of scarcity of water. R. McGill obtained two months' suspension of authority to enter part of the former Central Blocks on account of sickness. W. W. Persee, on behalf of the Commonwealth Syndicate, stated that on one block £380 had been expended, but returns were not up to expectations. A three-months' suspension was granted. During the hearing of an application by the same parties on three other leases, it was stated that £2846 had been expended, but, owing to the condition of the metal market and the war, things were only normal at present.

The Carpathia is in full swing, and a large quantity of good quality ore is being raised, but carting has not yet commenced. In the open cut the kaolin deposits are looking as well as they were over two years ago.

The White Crystal mine has not yet commenced crushing, the overhauling of the plant and cleaning operations having been retarded by two very heavy dust storms.

At the Wild Cherry operations are also in full blast. The manager despatched another 6 tons 7cwt of concentrates to Sydney on the 23rd, and anticipates being able to send another 6 tons or more at the end of this week. Mr. Nield has sent in his resignation as manager.

The Homeward Bound Company put a parcel of 26 tons of ore through the Southern Cross battery for 2 tons 10cwt of concentrates, which are being stored in Sydney, pending an improvement in the market price of tin.

At the Southern Cross mine the battery is kept fully employed crushing for other claims, and judging from appearances is doing its work well. Messrs. Corner and Persee, of Bygoo, had 45 tons of very rich ore passed through the battery. A parcel of 64 tons from Coote's Lone Hand at Bygoo has been cleaned up, and it is said will go over 10 per cent. metallic tin. Another 100 tons of ore are to come from this mine. The Dumlish Hill stuff, also from the Bygoo end of the field, went over 12 per cent. metallic. From Schultz's claim some good stuff has been sent in, and has turned out well. It really seems as if the Bygoo end of the field is not only looking up, but will possibly equal some of the best portions of the field. At the other end of the field (25 miles distant) Frew and party got a very good return from ore crushed at the Southern Cross.

A meeting of the Outcast mine was held here on Thursday last. It is said that an offer of £32,000 was made for this mine, and has not yet been accepted. It is stated this is the only mine that has been requested by the Government to forward a specimen of their ore for exhibition at the Panama Exposition. The secretary reports the mine is going along well, and the shareholders are well satisfied with their prospects.

There are over 500 claims on the field, and while some may not prove as remunerative as others, the fact remains that there are good deposits, not only of tin, but also of wolfram and molybdenite, and the Ardlethan field is yet going to prove itself a valuable asset.

AMUSEMENTS.

THEATRE ROYAL.

The revival of the "Scarlet Pimpernel" appears to have been a happy inspiration on the part of the J. C. Williamson management, and since the first night the attendance has been uniformly good, notwithstanding several uncomfortably hot evenings. The cast, long as it is, has been so judiciously allotted that even minor roles assume some importance, and the leading characters stand out prominently. The chivalry and grace of the period enhance the stage effect of the romance, and the audience is impressed with the emotional power of Miss Irene Browne as Marguerite Blakeney, and the dramatic strength of Mr. Julius Knight as Sir Percy Blakeney.

HER MAJESTY'S.

This evening "The Girl on the Film" will enter upon its last week at Her Majesty's, after a run which cannot be deemed otherwise than satisfactory. There is some taking music in the play, which holds more than passing attention, and ample entertainment is derived from the plot. The chorus and ballet are also strikingly efficient.

THE CRITERION.

"Broadway Jones" is still running brightly at the Criterion, to excellent business, and the farcical humour which abounds in every act keeps the audience in a constant simmer of merriment. Owing to ill-health, Miss Josephine Cohan had, perforce, to drop out of the cast and recuperate in the mountain air. Her part—Josie Richards—has, in the meantime, been taken by Miss Gwen Burroughs, who gave an excellent conception of the character.

In the absence, on holiday, of Mr. Haslitt, business manager, Mr. G. L. Goodman is filling the position.

THE ADELPHI.

The fact that to-day the "Babes in the Woods" enters upon the eighth week of its run at the Adelphi Theatre affords ample evidence of its attractive features. It still draws crowded audiences, consisting of juveniles as well as adults, and the interpolation of fresh specialities is evidently appreciated. In her current mixed budget of both light and serious items Miss Daisy Jerome is seen and heard at her best. There will be a matinee to-day, commencing at 2 p.m.

PALACE THEATRE.

Last evening saw the final performance at the Palace, at any rate for the present, of the amusing farcical comedy "The Chaperon," which has been attracting large audiences since its initial night. This evening "The Glad Eye" will be revived, and will probably finish up the last week of the season. It is one of the most amusing in the repertoire of the Beaumont Smith Company.

"The Seven Little Australians" is still drawing well at the afternoon performances.

HIGH JINKS.

On Saturday, February 6, a fresh musical comedy entitled "High Jinks" will be produced at Her Majesty's. It was originally presented in America, and was the only play of its class that was at all largely patronised during the summer months in New York. The plot is of a novel and ingenious kind.

ANCELON-CHAPMAN RECITAL.

The plan will be open at Paling's on Monday next for the first of this year's series of the Ancelon-Chapman recitals, to take place in St. James' Hall on Thursday, February 11. The next dramatic club quarter, will begin on February 1.

MISS MYLOR BURGE.

This well-known operatic soprano, who has recently returned from England, will, on Monday, open a studio at 286 George-street, where she will receive pupils who desire to take lessons in voice production and singing. Miss Burge possesses the degree of the Royal Academy of Music, London, and has had experience at home in opera. She also received lessons from Alberto Randegger, Alen Hill, the well-known London conductor, and, in Sydney, from Burns Walker and Madame Melba.

"OUR YOUNG AUSTRALIANS."

This is a combination of Australian juveniles, 20 in number, who will give an entertainment at the School of Arts, Pitt-street, this evening.

BURNS DAY.

This annual event will be celebrated to-day by the combined Scottish societies by a grand statue demonstration in the Domain, commencing at 3 p.m. Prominent speakers, including Senators Millen and McDougall, will be present. A combined choir of over 100 voices will also take part, and a Sydney Kilties band will be in attendance. A procession will start from Eddy-avenue, Central Railway Station, and march to the Domain.

WEST'S PICTURES.

Two performances will be given to-day, starting with the matinee at West's Theatres—the Glaciarium and the Olympia, in Oxford-street, when the big Reliance picture, entitled "The Floating Call," will be screened for the last time, in addition to several Keystone comedies, whilst the Australian Gazette is also on the programme. On Monday the management promise a big spectacular war drama, entitled, "How Heroes Are Made." There will also be screened at both theatres a new Keystone, entitled, "Shot Guns That Kick." De Groen's Vice-Regal orchestras supply the incidental music at both theatres.

SPENCER'S PICTURES.

"On His Majesty's Service," a photo-drama illustrating a battle of wits between the officials of the British and German secret service, will be the new feature film at Spencer's Lyceum on Monday. The play shows how the Germans schemed to destroy an important line of communication, and how they were in the end defeated by the diplomats of Great Britain. It is said to be full of excitement and general interest, with a rousing patriotic finale. There will be shown in addition a special series depicting the visit of King George to the front, Pathe's English War Gazette, "How Heroes are Made" (Keystone Comedy), and "The Wrong Flat" (Vitagraph Comedy).

THE WHITE CITY.

Special attractions are added weekly to the White City, where, in the spacious grounds, any and every kind of pleasure may be found. If the taste of the visitor runs to breathless speed, or the exhilaration of motion without risk, it may be had there. Rollicking fun is provided in a score of different ways. The free attractions include the realistic fire scene, appropriately styled "Fighting the Flames." This sensational spectacle is witnessed every night by a large and expectant crowd. A fireworks display is announced for next Thursday evening, and another fancy dress carnival is to be held for Thursday, February 11. The White City opens to-day from 2.30 to 11 p.m., and on other nights from 7.30 to 11.

THE PICTURE BLOCK THEATRES.

At the Crystal Palace Theatre on Monday the star film will be a Keystone comedy, "His Prehistoric Past." The comedian's role in this film is said to be the most novel he has yet assumed. On Monday, under arrangement with Australasian Films, Limited, the management of the Lyric Theatre will present the film version of Rex Beach's story, "The Spoilers," after a highly-successful season at the Lyceum Theatre. The Colonial Theatre will screen on Monday as a feature drama, "The Red Lantern" and a Keystone comedy "Fatty's Wine Party," with Sid. Chaplin in the title role, is also on the programme. At the Empress Theatre on Monday a film version of Shakespeare's "A Winter's Tale," will be screened. A Keystone comedy, "How Heroes are Made," will also be shown.

RIFLE SHOOTING.

DUBBO, Friday.

Following is the result of a rifle match, shooting at 300, 500 and 600 yards, between Dubbo and Wellington, shot on the Dubbo range:—Wellington, 884; Dubbo, 811.

QUEANBEYAN, Friday.

Canberra Rifle Club defeated Queanbeyan on the former's range on Tuesday by 68 points. Conditions were seven shots at the 500 and 600 yards' range.

SPORTING.

THE TURF.

Metropolitan racegoers will this afternoon have the choice of horse racing at Rosehill and pony and galloway racing at Ascot; while those who prefer to go further afield can have an outing at Rutherford, where the Maitland Jockey Club holds a reunion. Sandown Park will be the rendezvous for Melbourne sporting folk; the Tasmanian Racing Club brings its annual Cup meeting to a close at Elswick, and the Queensland Turf Club caters for Brisbane sportsmen.

Pony and galloway racing will be the attraction at Ascot this afternoon, and an interesting bill of fare promises good sport. Large entries have been received, necessitating several of the events being run in divisions, and a start at 1.30 p.m. The track is first-class going, and the general arrangements up to the customary standard. Special trams land visitors at the racecourse gates, and the ordinary service to Botany will also be available. The results of the racing may be anticipated as under:—Welter Handicap: First division, Trustworthy or Larras; second division, Jack Bradshaw or Alfana. Fourteen-two Handicap: First division, Lady Liddell or Thelma C.; second division, Bing Bing or Galfield. Encourage Stakes: Cape Barley or Try Again. The programme for the Kembla Grange racing fixture for the 16th prox. comprises half a dozen events, over which 280 sovs prize-money is distributed, of which 50 sovs each endows the Flying and Newton Handicaps and the Lake Welter; while the other two races carry 40 sovs each. Entries close with the secretary, Mr. A. H. Hart, at 4 p.m. on Monday next.

The Richmond Pony Club holds a race meeting on the Londonderry racecourse on the 8th prox., and has provided 155 sovs prize-money, distributed over six events, the best endowed of which is the Richmond Handicap (for horses) of 60 sovs. Nominations will be received by the secretary, Mr. G. N. Kilduff, Richmond, up to 6 p.m. on Monday next, and up to 5 p.m. at the office of the Associated Racing Clubs, Elizabeth-street, Sydney.

Messrs. H. Chisholm and Son hold their monthly blood stock sale on Monday next, the 1st prox., at their stables, Randwick, and a lengthy catalogue is in the course of compilation. Among those already listed are the racehorses Ibon, Spanish Gipsy, The Myalla, Swanker, King Broomstick, Watchchain, Inverlorn, Wee Minnie, and Naval Gun; and a number of untried lots, among whom are a consignment of unbroken fillies and geldings forwarded by Messrs. Grant and Sheriff, of Collarendabri. They are by imported Pompous from well-bred mares, several of whom have been successful in metropolitan company. A truck-load of high-class horses from Cooma, some of whom are suitable for military purposes, will also be brought under the hammer. Revere and Keith, well-known performers at the meetings of the Associated Racing Clubs, are also included in the catalogue. The sale commences at 2.30 p.m.

Our Melbourne correspondent telegraphs that White Water dropped dead after finishing second in the Hurdle Race at the Ballarat Miners' Turf Club meeting yesterday.

ROSEHILL RACING CLUB.

JANUARY MEETING.

The first of the Rosehill racing fixtures for the new year takes place this afternoon on that well-appointed sporting resort, and a highly interesting bill of fare is down for discussion. The recent favourable weather has benefited the track and surroundings, and first-class going is assured. The transit arrangements include special trains starting from the Central Railway Station at 11.10 a.m. (horses and attendants), 12.6, 12.17, 12.40 (reserved compartments), 12.51, 12.56, 1.8, and 1.27 p.m. The 12.6, 12.51, and 1.8 p.m. trains stop at Strathfield to pick up passengers. Those who wish to avoid the crush at the railway station can secure combined railway tickets for admission to either reserve at the Central Booking Office, Challis House, Martin Place.

The sport commences at 2.10 p.m. with the January Stakes, in which Oweenee, Brattle, Barley Water, Sweet Malt, and Salue appear to have good prospects, and the numbers may be hoisted for Brattle, Barley Water, and Sweet Malt.

Flavorous, Petrillia, Quarale, and Blue Garde read as well as anything in the Granville Stakes, and the judge may declare for Flavorous, Quarale, and Blue Garde.

A good race is promised for the Juvenile Stakes, in which the brunt of the battle should fall to Drummuir, Crozot, La Penna, and Royal Parade; and Royal Parade, La Penna, and Drummuir may pass the post in that order.

A large field is promised for the Flying Welter, and the race wears an open appearance, but the most likely to figure prominently in the contest are Guncar, Pankhurst, Balustrade, and Lady Antonio; and Balustrade, Pankhurst, and Lady Antonio may pass the post in that order.

Ocean Blue, Quisita, Orama, and Necktie should have most to say in the settlement of the Rosehill Handicap, and the situations may be occupied by Necktie, Quisita, and Orama.

The meeting will be brought to a close with the Carlingford Mile, towards the business end of which Mandowa, Purdey, Balustrade, and Hobble Skirt should be most in evidence, and the honours may be divided by Mandowa, Hobble Skirt, and Purdey. The programme is appended:—

Third Grade.—Centennial Park: Mercantile Mutual v Petersham Cubs, No. 1, 2.15 (Mr. Eagleton); Mick Simmons v Petersham United, No. 1, 3.30 (Mr. Eagleton); Waverley III. v Waverley Waratah, No. 2, 2.15 (Mr. Schott); Leichhardt III. v Leichhardt Junior, No. 2, 3.30 (Mr. Schott). Leichhardt West have received forfeit from Waverley IV.

SWIMMING.

TO-DAY'S FIXTURES.

The majority of the clubs will resume their ordinary week-end races this afternoon.

Sydney Club.—220 yards handicap (Levy Cup), 60 yards general handicap, at Domain Baths.

Rose Bay Club.—500 yards Longworth Cup handicap, at Rose Bay.

Eastern Suburbs Club.—66 yards handicap, at Bronte.

Bondi Club.—50 yards handicap, at Bondi.

East Sydney Club.—100 yards handicap, at Rushcutter Bay.

North Sydney Club.—50 yards handicap, at Lavender Bay.

Manly Club.—50 yards handicap, at Manly.

Entries for all events to be held at the final Kahanamoku carnival, at the Drummoyne Baths, on Monday, February 8, close with the association officials to-night, at the Sports Club.

PALACE EMPORIUM CLUB.

The following is the result of the final of the above club's 66 yards handicap:—Laing, 7s, 1; T. Faulks, 13s, 2; R. Thomson, 6s, 3. Time, 49 3-5s.

The diving competition was won by S. Poulter.

WAVERLEY DISTRICT LEAGUE.

Result of 50 yards handicap, swum at Bronte Baths Thursday night:—First heat: L. Read, 1; L. Peters, 2; S. Evens, 3. Second heat: F. Farrell, 1; D. Mitchell, 2; J. Pergerson, 3. Third heat: G. Lofts, 1; J. Hegarty, 2; C. M'Kinnon, 3. Final: Lofts, 1; Read, 2; Farrell, 3.

FORBES CARNIVAL.

FORBES, Friday.

The Forbes Amateur Swimming Club held its second annual carnival in the Lachlan River. There was a large attendance, and amongst the visitors was R. Provan, the champion diver of New South Wales, who was sent up at the invitation of the club by the N.S.W.A.S.A. The diving displays were the feature of the day, the champion's exhibition being greatly admired, while the local diving troupe also performed creditably. Provan congratulated the club on the substantial nature of their improvements, and said the diving tower was a better structure than that at Manly. A. C. Brownhill, an ex-Bondi swimmer, now at Forbes, was also a prominent performer during the day. A profit of about £15 was made on the carnival. The principal results were:—100 yards invitation race: R. Provan (Sydney), scr., 1; A. Jenner (Parkes), 5s, 2; A. C. Brownhill (Forbes), scr., 3. Time, 1.18. Local diving championship: A. C. Brownhill, 1; P. Mazaraki, 2. Open handicap, 50 yards: A. J. Booth, 12s, 1; A. Jenner, 6s, 2. Time, 40⅘s. 100 yards championship of Forbes Club: A. C. Brownhill, 1; J. Amos, 2. Time, 1m 10s.

NORTH SYDNEY AND ROSE BAY CLUBS' COMBINED CARNIVAL.

The North Sydney and Rose Bay Clubs' will hold a combined championship carnival at the Lavender Bay baths on Saturday, February 6. Entries will close for the interclub events with Mr. W. W. Scott, hon. secretary, New South Wales A.S.A., Sports Club, to-night, at 8.

To avoid clashing with the one-mile president's cup handicap at the Domain baths, the 100 yards championship of the North Sydney Club and the heats of the Kieran Remembrance handicap, will be swum off on Wednesday next, 3rd prox., the championship at 6 o'clock, and the handicap heats at 8.

MEDLEY SWIMMING RACE.

At the final Kahanamoku carnival on Monday evening, February 8, a swimming event—Medley race—new to Sydney will be introduced in connection with the Harris Cup competition. This competition, which is open to teams from four districts—Eastern, Western, Northern, and Metropolitan—includes three swimmers from each district. The race will be swum in relays, commencing with 100 yards by use of the back stroke; the second will be by breast stroke, and the final 200 yards by free-style. This form of race is very popular on the Continent. The object of the A.S.A. in developing the breast and back strokes is to produce a man capable of upholding the country's prestige at future Olympic Games. In the Eastern District team Longworth will probably be selected as the free-style representative, while Barry for Metropolitan, Solomon, Wyld, or Hay, for Northern, and Moloney, Campbell, Harvey, or Brett for Western Districts will be the representatives. The breast stroke men will probably comprise Finley (Eastern Districts), Beck or Voss (Metropolitan), and Pitt or Ball (Northern Suburbs), while Western District will hold a test. The back stroke exponents are not so easy to select, owing to this being a neglected branch of the art, but L. Boardman (the Olympic representative and holder of the Australian back stroke record) seems a certainty for the Metropolitan team.

FINAL APPEARANCE OF KAHANAMOKU.

The last Sydney appearance of Kahanamoku, the world's champion sprint swimmer, will take place at the Drummoyne Club's carnival on February 8. The committee has arranged with the Hawaiian to appear in a special 100 yards invitation handicap, in which the best Sydney swimmers only will be invited to compete. The three-lap course and still-water conditions should be the means of establishing new figures for the distance. The programme also includes 800yds teams' championship of the western districts, 100yds club championship, Harris Cup, medley teams' race (free style, breast stroke, and back stroke), diving competitions, and novelties. Entries for all events will close with the Swimming Association to-morrow.

DEE WHY SURF BATHING CLUB.

Kahanamoku will appear at the Dee Why Life-saving and Surf Club's carnival on Saturday, February [illegible]. At this gathering the Surf-bathing Association's [illegible] championship for rescue and resuscitation drill will be decided.

SYDNEY LEAGUE CLUB.

Following are the results of the 100yds Brace Relay Handicap, held on Wednesday night:—J. Ryan and F. Wood, 1; A. Rice and R. Morgan, 2. Time, 60s.

The committee have decided that the special handicap, for the trophy donated by Mr. Powell, will be held on Wednesday night, February 24. The distance will be 50yds.

AMATEUR SWIMMING CLUB.

The 55 yards handicap of the Amateur Swimming Club held last night resulted as follows:—J. Black, 1; A. M'Clean, 9s, 2; J. Gay, 13s, 3. Time, [illegible]

GUNNEDAH CARNIVAL.

GUNNEDAH, Friday.

The annual swimming carnival was a success. C. Thomas, the representative of the New South Wales association, gave exhibitions, which were greatly appreciated. The youths' championship was won by H. Hinton, and the hundred yards championship of the Namoi by E. Harrison, of Walcha. The Ladies' Bracelet (66 yards) was won by C. Thomas of Sydney. He started 11 seconds behind, and won by a foot, in 37s.

BYRON BAY LIFE-SAVING CLUB.

BYRON BAY, Friday.

The life-saving club's carnival attracted many, and proved interesting. The members of the surrounding clubs were present, and Neath, of Brunswick, secured the first prize for swimming. The Red Cross Society did good work in the way of collecting funds.

BOXING.

DAVE SMITH v HOLLAND.

Great interest is taken in to-night's boxing match at the Stadium, which is the result of a challenge issued by the ex-American middleweight, Frits Holland, to the Australian heavyweight champion, Dave Smith. Since the match was arranged publicity has been given to Holland's performances against heavyweights in his own country. Holland will be substantially over 11st for to-night's bout, and Smith may not weigh more than half a stone heavier.

Between a quarter to 8 and half-past 8 (at which time the main contest will begin) there will be two six-round preliminaries—George Prentice v Billy James, and George Newbury v Stan Campion.

SOUTH SYDNEY AMATEUR TOURNAMENT.

The fourth annual open amateur boxing tournament promoted by South Sydney Amateur Athletic Club commenced at the Olympia Stadium on Wednesday evening, in the presence of a very fair attendance. Mr. Arthur Scott was referee, and the 16 contests were brought to a conclusion in good time. Results:—

Bantam.—W. Bell defeated H. Barker on points; C. Hay compelled T. Foley to retire in the fourth round; C. Poulter knocked-out W. Miller in the first round; H. Arundale beat "C. Turner" in the second round; and S. Ince defeated "S. Goodwin" on points; E. Docker forfeited to F. Cross.

Feather.—R. Foley defeated F. Archer on points; A. Cockling won from W. Bevan after four rounds; "S. Robbo" defeated V. Depena on points; C. Fitzjohn defeated E. Gibbons on points after a very fine display; F. Davis forfeited to R. Cavill.

Light.—B. Wright knocked-out J. Regan in the third round; W. Laurance defeated W. Doyle on points; F. Brownlee received a forfeit from H. Baxter, and "H. Francis" forfeited to G. P. Condon.

Welter.—T. Hook forced J. Harris to retire in the first round; A. M'Donald defeated L. Jackson on points.

Middle.—H. Heaney beat T. Lonergan in a round.

Heavy.—F. M'Carty compelled "W. Flegg" to retire in the third round.

PLAYING WITH SOVEREIGNS.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

Frank Tate, aged eight and a half years, was found sitting in the gutter in Victoria-street, Fitzroy, on Tuesday afternoon, playing with thirty sovereigns. He said he found the money in a purse, while paddling on the beach at Brighton. He had given £5 to his mother, and small sums to other boys, and had spent a little of the money in equipping himself with a whip and spurs. He also paid a visit to the Zoological Gardens. As the result of the publicity given to the case, two boys put in an appearance at the Fitzroy watchhouse this afternoon, and each handed over the sum of 5s, which, it is stated, was given to them by a boy resembling Tate.

GRASS FIRES.

FARMERS LOSE HEAVILY.

SINGLETON, Friday.

A series of fires broke out yesterday at Scott's Flat and Neotsfield district, causing widespread destruction of grass, fencing, etc. The outbreaks are believed to be due to sparks from a traction engine. A westerly wind carried the fire at great speed. About 150 firefighters were engaged. Percy Stacy, of Scott's Flat, was the greatest sufferer. The fire destroyed a shed containing nearly 300 tons of hay—an accumulation of [illegible] months. The hay was not insured. A dairy near to the shed was also destroyed, and fencing was burnt. Mr. Stacy estimates his loss at fully £1500. Others who lost grass and fencing were William Griffiths, J. [illegible] Nicholls, R. Crow, and R. Heuston. The land affected was part of Neotsfield estate, recently subdivided and sold. All holders suffered to a greater or less extent. Portion still held by Mr. Dangar was also swept by the fire. High praise is given to the women of the district, many of whom crossed the river on horseback, in vehicles, or by wading to help drive the stock to safety.

BEER STRIKE.

KURRI KURRI, Friday.

The beer strike ended to-day. The hotelkeepers gave in, and announced that they would in future be 3d. Deputations, however, interviewed the landlords, and announced that another phase had developed, and unless the hotels agreed to give half-a-pint for three half-pence, the boycott would continue. This was a facer for the licensees, as they had the medium beer man in view when they gave way. They said that they would fight rigorously against the latest demand.

DEFENCE CONTRACTS.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

This morning a deputation from the associated Chambers of Manufacturers waited on the Minister for Defence (Senator Pearce) in regard to the clause that has been inserted in defence contracts, giving union officials the right to interview employees regarding labour conditions during the meal hours, whilst they are employed on defence orders. The deputation was received by the Minister in private, and after it had withdrawn Senator Pearce informed a press representative that the manufacturers had asked for the suspension of the clause during the war. The Minister promised to give consideration to the matter.

COAL TRADE.

NEWCASTLE, Friday.

The exports of coal from the port of Newcastle for the week ending to-day reached 73,182 tons, which at the present time must be considered fair, considering that a holiday intervened in the week.

RAIN IN NEW ZEALAND.

AUCKLAND, Friday.

Anniversary Day was marked by the breaking of a six months' drought. Torrential rain is falling.

FOR SALE.

HAVE YOU BOUGHT YOUR "SAVORY" ROASTER YET?

A great boon to housekeepers, because it cuts down the meat bill, and assures better cooking results.

Meat cooked in the "Savory" Roaster is doubly delicious, all the natural sweetness and juiciness of the meat being completely retained. Even the cheapest joint is more tender, appetising, and nourishing than a high-priced cut cooked in the regular way. This is because the "Savory" Roaster is so constructed that the highly nutritive natural juices cannot escape.

Meat and potatoes can be roasted to perfection, and there is not the least possibility of them being burnt.

Can be used with the maximum of success in any kind of stove, and is very economical in the requirement of heat.

GET ONE TO-DAY.

Comes in two convenient sizes:—
12in round shape of Blued Steel, 6/6, posted for 8/. Interstate 8/9.
14½in x 9½in, Oval shape, of Blue Enamel, 8/; posted 9/9, Interstate 10/6.

THE FLETCHER-RUSSELL IS THE SATISFACTION-GIVING GAS STOVE.

Economical in the Consumption of Gas, and gives first-class Cooking results. We have sizes and prices to suit all needs. Write for our little book about "Gas Cooking."

into appropriate allotments of suitable frontages and depth. Apart from the delight of residence here, there cannot fail to be a prospective increment in values of land. It is impossible to forecast the development to occur at PORT KEMBLA, now in its infancy only. It may outstrip Wollongong in importance. Now is the time to buy land in the present subdivision, and secure the unearned increment later on. COACHES now run daily; a branch line of Railway is being agitated for, and is not improbable as development takes place.

VALUABLE CITY PROPERTY,
in
ST. GEORGE'S-TERRACE,
PERTH, WESTERN AUSTRALIA,
PRESENT A.M.P.-BUILDINGS.

LEARMONTH, DUFFY, AND CO., in conjunction with ROBERTSON BROS., have been favoured with instructions from the Australian Mutual Provident Society to offer by auction, in their Rooms, Emanuel-buildings, St. George's-terrace, Perth, on above date, the Property at present owned and occupied by the Society's Perth Branch, in the most central portion of St. George's-terrace.

LAND is portion of Perth Town Lot L 9, Registered Volume 330, Folio 185, and has a frontage of about 48ft to St. George's Terrace, by about 198ft depth, containing 35½ perches or thereabouts, and comprising (inter alia) part of the land the subject of deposited diagram 2093, together with right of way connecting with Howard-street.

BUILDINGS are of brick, of two stories and basement, also caretaker's quarters. The basement comprises 5 offices; the ground floor contains the main office, Boardroom, three other rooms. The first floor comprises 9 offices and conveniences. There are three extensive strongrooms and safe deposit chambers.

POSITION is one of the best in this the commercial centre of the city. The ground-floor offices offer particular advantages to those in search of a banking chamber, insurance office, or any other business dealing largely with the public. Between William and Barrack streets there is no available land left for building, and investors have here an opportunity of securing an up-to-date building in the very best part of the Terrace.

TERMS AND FURTHER PARTICULARS FROM THE AUCTIONEERS ON APPLICATION.

IMPORTANT SALE
LANDED PROPERTIES.

L. McLACHLAN has received instructions to sell by auction, at the GLOBE HOTEL SAMPLE-ROOM, RYLSTONE, on WEDNESDAY, 10th FEBRUARY, at 12 o'clock noon, the following well and favourably known PROPERTIES, comprising some of the best Land in the Rylstone District.

No. 1.—"ROCKVILLE," 1080 acres Freehold, situated 4 miles from Rylstone, all fenced and subdivided into 5 paddocks, 1½ mile frontage to Cudgegong River, 50 acres cultivation, 80 acres splendid lucerne land.

No. 2.—"CAMP HILL," 800 acres, Freehold, situated six miles from Rylstone, fenced and subdivided into 10 paddocks. Beautiful Homestead, 80 acres has been cultivated. 150 acres could be cultivated. Wheat and lucerne lands, well watered.

No. 3.—1180ac. c.p. and c.l., 20 miles from Rylstone, splendid Homestead, yards, etc., fenced and subdivided into three paddocks, watered by never-failing springs.

No. 4.—304 acres Freehold, 80 acres c.l. given in, situated 3½ miles from Rylstone, fenced and subdivided into 3 paddocks, 40 acres cultivation, well improved and watered by dams and springs.

No. 5.—368 acres, c.p. and c.l., 9 miles from Rylstone, fenced and subdivided into 3 paddocks, good buildings, and well-improved land, 7 acres cultivation.

This will be the first time any of the above Properties have been offered by auction, and I can confidently recommend them as ideal Mixed Farming Lands.

CONSIDER YOUR BOY OR GIRL'S PROSPECTS NOW, AND THEIR PROSPECTS A YEAR HENCE.

Consider them if they start in business now with a general education as their only qualification. They begin as an office boy or its feminine equivalent; and a year hence they will have gained little either in experience or increased pay.

BUT SUPPOSE THEY SPEND A YEAR AT STOTT AND UNDERWOOD'S, 70 PITT-STREET, training, learning business, fitting themselves to do well-paid work. Then at the course's end they can secure (we can obtain it for them) a position trebly better paid than any open to the untrained boy or girl. And they will further have acquired business habits and a knowledge of business methods, which must ensure quick advancement.

THE WHOLE MATTER MERITS DISCUSSION.

Discuss it with Mr. ALLAN VIRGO, our Headmaster and Manager, who will be in attendance at the college office this morning from 10 till 12.

MASSAGE.—"A PRECIOUS GIFT."—Eyes, Mouth, and Teeth are all very important, but they occupy such a small space in comparison with the skin. One's complexion holds quite the foremost place in one's facial scheme, therefore every true daughter of Eve should keep her complexion up to concert pitch by having a few treatments of Scientific Plastic and Electrical Massage. Tel., 339 City. Nerves, Rheuma., etc., Scientifically Treated by Madame PATTIE, Scientific Body Masseuse, B. N.Z.-ch., George-Wynyard sts.

MOTOR DRIVING MEANS A PROSPEROUS NEW YEAR, if you are trained at DOHERTY and ADAMS' MOTOR SCHOOL, where each pupil is tutored up to the highest possible pitch. Your driver's license has no more value than A SCRAP OF PAPER if it is not backed up by thorough knowledge of every mechanical and electrical detail of the car. Mr. James McMahon, 21 Loftus-street, writes:—"I desire to express my high appreciation of your systematic method. When I joined your school, I had not the slightest knowledge of motor mechanism, and had never attempted to drive, but the tuition was so systematic and easy that I could not fail to get on."

THERE are many events that suggest Photographs, but none more important than a Wedding.
Only a Photograph can adequately describe the dainty finery of the bride and bridesmaids, and like the memory of the occasion the pictures grow more precious year by year.
The specimen Photographs of bridal groups, etc., in the Eden Showcases are sufficient proof that there are no better Wedding Photographers than Eden.

ON MONDAY
DAVID JONES'
TWO WEEKS' SALE.

FIRST DAY BARGAINS.

The feature on Monday, the first day of our two-weeks' sale, will be the disposal of specially selected bargain lines offered at absurdly low prices. See further particulars in this paper on Monday. The quantities in stock, which are limited, will be quoted in every instance.
Our knowledge of trade conditions enables us to state that values such as these cannot be had again, so early application is essential.
If you cannot shop personally, write for a copy of our SPECIAL ILLUSTRATED CATALOGUE SUPPLEMENT, posted free on request.

SATURDAY'S SPECIAL LINE.

THE "MERCEDES" 12-BUTTON
LENGTH FINE FRENCH GLACE KID GLOVES.

OFFERED THIS MORNING AT 6/3 PR.
USUAL PRICE .... 8/11 PR.

You cannot be too particular in the choice of Gloves, as they are one of the chief factors in good dressing.
We can thoroughly recommend the "Mercedes" (the special line to-day), because only the choicest skins are used in their manufacture, thus ensuring excellent and reliable wear, and being cut by experts they are perfect in fit, and look particularly smart on the hand.
The shades are, Black, White, Beaver, Tan, Brown, and Grey. Mail your order immediately if you cannot call to-day, and we will send the Gloves at the SPECIAL PRICE, carriage paid, to all parts of Australasia.

MY GREAT OFFER IS A FREE TRIAL TREATMENT WHICH WILL NOT ONLY SHOW
BUT THE ONLY WAY, to all those who have possibly been foolishly advised as to the permanent removal of their superfluous hair growth, and after having done all they are told, possibly by inexperienced operators, only find the growing again; well, I ask every one to reason and think one minute. If you will do so; you must know that I should not remain at the one address working day after day, year after year,

SUPERFLUOUS HAIRS

REMEMBER, FOR FOURTEEN YEARS

removing these Superfluous Hairs for thousands of ladies. I want you to appeal to your friends, if not to them, ask your two best friends—father or mother—and I am sure they will tell you of some one they know or have heard I have cured.
I WANT YOU NOT TO BE NERVOUS, BUT COME AND HAVE A LITTLE CHAT WITH ME.
I will meet you with sympathy, and explain how all your trouble can be cured.
AGAIN, I TELL YOU,
MY FEES ARE MODERATE, FOR I remove a certain number of hairs FOR £1 1s, NOT CHARGE £1 1s for each hair. As so many have remarked of late that they had not called thinking the above statement was true, I feel called upon to give THIS EXPLANATION.

MOLES OF ALL KINDS
REMOVED IN ONE OPERATION.
A WRITTEN GUARANTEE.

FACE MASSAGE.

The system employed by me is to bring the features back to what they were. This I can and will do by proper manipulation, which will remove the hollows, wrinkles, crow's feet, and all other blemishes.
HAVE ONE TREATMENT.
It will allow you to prove my assertion. If you cannot come, and want a skin cleanser or flesh builder to remove those unsightly lines, send for
NETTOYER FACE CREAM,
GUARANTEED UNDER THE PURE FOODS ACT.
WILL NOT ENCOURAGE THE GROWTH OF SUPERFLUOUS HAIRS. ONLY 3/6 Per pot.

THE RETURN OF TULLE TO FASHION.

Tulle is so soft, so delicate, so dainty, so feminine in its loveliness—it imparts such youthful appearance to the wearer—that nothing could stem the tide of its return to popularity.

When buying Tulle do not be content merely to ask for "Rainproof Tulle," say—"'Dynamo' Rainproof Tulle, please," and look for the name on the card on which the Tulle is wound.

This is important, because even a mist will ruin the most expensive ordinary Tulle; but "Dynamo" is waterproof. When wet you simply shake it until dry. It immediately regains the appearance it had when new.

"Dynamo" Rainproof Tulle does not stick to the fingers when handled. Its fresh crispness, its lustre and beauty of colouring are not impaired by exposure to the strongest sunlight, and it never becomes tender or limp.

All the best Milliners use "Dynamo" Rainproof Tulle. All the best Stores sell it by the yard. But be sure you get the genuine. The name is on the end of the card on which the Tulle is wound. If any difficulty in obtaining locally, send direct to address below, stating colour, quantity, and price per yard, and we will see that you are immediately supplied.

"DYNAMO" RAINPROOF TULLE.
36ins. wide. In Black, White and all fashionable shades,
9d, 10½d, 1/, 1/3, and 1/6 per yard upwards.

SUPERFLUOUS HAIR

LADIES.—It gives me pleasure to make known to you this wonderful treatment for destroying hair, and I assure you that LAVINIA will carry out all it promises, for I speak from an experience that has covered a ... of fashions. LAVINIA has brought relief and happiness to innumerable women. Why not to you? The method for destroying the root and follicle is ... marvellous. The coarsest and heaviest growth can be removed entirely at first treatment without pain or injury to the skin, leaving the latter smooth and clear without a sign of its former blemish.
